Cycling across country

Heading east to Williamsburg, Virginia on a 71 day bicycle hike are 16 students of the Mercer Junior High School, Mercer Island, Washington. The students and their teacher Miss Frances Call and co-sponsor Mrs. Mary Gnehm spent two nights at the St. Frances Xavier School. Four of the cyclists in the group were, from left, Eric Muller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Muller, Lucia Pirzio-Biroli daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jim Pirzio-Biroli, Andy Hamp son of Mr. and Mrs. David Hamp and Steve Gill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Gill.

Organizers stay hidden as lawyer meets press

Organizers of the petition drive to change Sikeston's form of government still refuse to come out from behind a cloak of anonymity.

That was the word Friday from attorney Robert Dempster who says he is the group's legal representative. He said any questions as to who his clients might be are "impertinent."

The group is expected to present their petition calling for an election on the matter at the August City Council meeting.

He said the reason why the group was opposing the present form of city government is that the city manager form is too expensive.

When asked why he would not say who the organizers were, he replied "That isn't any of your business."

When asked how many organizers there were, he replied, "That isn't any of your business, or anybody elses business."

He told the reporters they obviously did not know anything about the legal profession of the ethics of the profession.

"Would you go in and ask a doctor 'are you treating Don here for gonorrhea? I'd like to know it, because the people would like to know it, it would make a good news story.'"

Dempster said the only individuals supporting the drive were "the people."

He asked a reporter why city officials were afraid to let the matter come to a vote. The reporter responded by asking why the organizers were afraid to make their names public.

"You're not even close to staying with the point," he said. "These people are a lot bigger than you reporters."

When asked what he meant by 'bigger,' he replied, "They're substantial people, moneywise."

He was asked if that made them different from everybody else.

"They're alot different," Dempster replied, "because they have high ethical standards."

Dempster said the present form of government is too expensive for the taxpayers to support.

"It's just too expensive for what we get," he said.

He said the city manager's office has $71,000 in its budget, including $41,400 for the city manager, $11,300 for the city attorney and $5,200 for the police judge.

He said he served as city attorney and felt it was an honorary position. He said the $11,000 was excessive.

Dempster said the $5,200 for a police judge was also excessive.

"You boys know how much time he spends there and how much expertise a police judge has to have to sit and fine people $5, $10 or $15 dollars for violating some ordinance," Dempster said.

"A police judge, and I've talked with other lawyers, would serve for much less," he said.

"As soon as this federal give-away program stops, (revenue sharing) this city is going to be in the same trouble as New York City," Dempster said. Revenue Sharing was recently renewed by Congress.

Dempster said there was no question about the city's ability to find a city attorney for less money than it now spends. He said he was told there was a law firm in Sikeston which would be willing to act as city attorney for "substantially less."

"I know that you could get a police judge for a lot less," he said.

He said those positions are honorary positions.

He said the people would be appalled at the city budget if they knew what was in it.

When asked where other cuts would come from, beyond the $71,000 in the city manager's budget, he replied he would "cut all the way down."

Councilman Steve Sikes Thursday told the chamber of Commerce that tax rates in Sikeston in 1960 were higher than today and that Sikeston's tax rates are lower than most other communities in the Bootheel. In 1960, Sikeston's $2 per $100 assessed valuation was the highest in the state. This year's tax rate is $1.51.

Dempster called the comparison, "absolutely wrong." He said the reason taxes had fallen was because assessments had risen.

When asked if the assessments in other cities had risen as well as Sikeston's, he replied, he did not know.

Dempster said the City Manager was a "dictator" who was responsible to no one, not even to the city council.

When questioned on the statement he said he had never seen in the law any reference requiring city council approval of the city manager's actions.

He said one city councilman told him the first he had heard about a man being hired to fill a position in the city was when he read it in the paper.

When asked to name the councilman, Dempster refused.

When asked for comparisons, the costs of running with other communities such as Dexter or Poplar Bluff, he said he could not make any.

He said he did know what it would cost to run Sikeston. But

Motorists warned of crossing

Motorists are being asked to use caution when driving through the area.

Arrest three for shoplifting

Two juveniles and an adult were arrested by Sikeston Police Friday in connection with shoplifting which occurred at the TG & Y Store at Kingsway Plaza Mall.

Assistant Manager Fowler Sheddix, reported to police he observed one juvenile leaving the store without paying for two sets of earrings valued at $2 and a necklace valued at $2.

Police followed one juvenile who led them to a parked car where the other juvenile and the adult Odell Kent of Wyatt were waiting. Police discovered wraped in a jacket a pair of slacks valued at $6.88.

Kent is being held in Sikeston jail and the juveniles were released to parental custody.

Homer Trigg, 900 Hawthorne Dr. reported to police Saturday that a soda machine at Trigg Shell, 535 N. Main had had the door pryed off and that the person or persons had obtained approximately $12 in quarters.

The incident occurred between 12 a.m. Saturday and 7:39 a.m. Saturday.

Sixteen teens cycling to coast stop for rest at Sikeston church

Sixteen teenagers and two adult sponsors, who are going across country this summer by bicycles, spent Friday night through Sunday morning housed at the St. Francis Xavier Elementary School part of their scheduled rest and recreation before traveling on to their destination of Williamsburg, Virginia.

The group, Cyclemates IV, left North Mercer Junior High School, Mercer Island, Washington (four miles outside of Seattle) on June 11 and plan to arrive at the Governor's Palace in Williamsburg on August 10 at 3 p.m.

After their arrival at Williamsburg the group will then travel on to Jamestown and Washington D.C. where they hope to meet President Ford.

They will then travel by van to Boston where they will ship their gear by Global Van Lines and board a plane for home, 71 days after their departure from Mercer Island, and after 61 days on bicycles.

Cyclemates started in 1970 with the aid of teacher-sponsor Miss Frances Call who wanted more challenge in recreational activities for the students.

Miss Call, who is a junior high history teacher at Mercer Junior High School, has since made 4 cross country trips. Helping her along the way on Cyclemates IV is a mother of two former cyclematers. Mrs. Mary Gnehm.

The students participating in the cross country feat participate during the school year in an Outdoor Fitness class which takes the place of regular physical education. The class helps the group prepare for the trip through hikes and cycling trips.

While talking with two members of the group, Steve Gill, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gill and Lucia Pirzio-Biroli, 13, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jim Pirzio-Biroli, this reporter learned that the course enables the student to prepare

River claims truck

At 8 a.m. Friday Carl Barnes, 202 Line, New Madrid a commercial fisherman attempted to back down the boat launching on the Mississippi River and the brakes on the truck he had just purchased Monday failed to stop the vehicle causing the truck and a boat trailer to end up in the Mississippi river in about 30 feet of water. Barnes was able to get out of the truck before it sank, however he received some minor injuries trying to get free.

A spokesman Doye Tanner for the New Madrid Police department who were notified of the accident reported Saturday, that the truck and trailer had not yet been recovered. However Tanner said that a salvage team searching for the truck uncovered a car which had been reported stolen, several weeks earlier from the Cabana Courts. The car a 1975 model belonging to Johnny J. Beirne of Creve Couer had been stripped.

On Saturday, Tanner said while searching for the truck and trailer the searchers found a motorcycle which was reported stolen from Albert Purser, of New Madrid several seeks ago.

Meet the candidates

Five candidates in Scott County Assessor race

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series of interviews with candidates for Scott County offices in the Aug. 3, primary election. These interviews deal with the office of Scott County Assessor, and those who are candidates for the office are Gerald Inman, 415 Wallace; John Dale Heeb of Chaffee; Bill Pinnell, 712 Sikes St.; Donald E. Vance of Chaffee; and John Houchin, 1019 Davis Blvd. There is no incumbent running in this race.

QUESTION: Why do you consider yourself a better candidate for the office than your opponent?

INMAN: I have served Scott County and the citizens of Scott County as deputy sheriff for almost eight years. In this time, I have learned to know the citizens of the county and their needs. I have been a business man and have dealt in real estate rentals and have just completed a course in real estate appraisal. I need the job as assessor, and I will be there when the citizens need me and availability is one of the most important things in holding public office.

HEEB: Having served as deputy assessor of Scott County for the past two years, I would have the experience and knowledge needed to perform the duties of assessor.

PINNELL: I feel that a combination of several qualifications would place me ahead of my opponents for assessor of Scott County. I have had almost 30 years of experience as a school teacher, administrator, office manager and insurance salesman, and feel that I am extremely well qualified in communicating with the public and being a good listener. I am a licensed real estate broker, and have completed one academic course in property appraisal and evaluation. I have a moral, civic, religious and family background which I feel is characteristic of that expected of a candidate by the voters of Scott County. The foregoing are the principal reasons I feel that I am best qualified to be Scott County Assessor.

VANCE: With respect to the other candidates, for the most part they are friends of mine and I have the highest regard for them. However, I feel that I have a great deal to offer the people of Scott County. I am a property owner, an experienced school board member with experience working in the areas of property assessments and financing as it relates to schools, and have years of successful experience in organization, budgeting and personnel and administrative management. I believe Scott County needs new leadership in this area, leadership that can develop a workable program and carry it out. The key phrase is "harmonious equitability." I don't believe people object to paying their fair share and I would strive to maintain and-or develop a program that would be fair and equitable to all citizens of the county.

HOUCHIN: I feel that I am well qualified to hold the office of Assessor of Scott County, Missouri. I have a great deal of experience inthe business world. I have bought and sold real estate and personal property and I am fully informed as to property values throughout Scott County. My business experience best fits me for this office.

QUESTION: What qualifications do you bring to the office?

INMAN: Answered in previous question.

HEEB: A vast knowledge of the real estate business, having been licensed by the state of Missouri as a real estate broker. Experienced in office procedures having served as city clerk for the city of Chaffee. A former Chaffee retail business man for 12 years.

PINNELL: The following are some of the qualifications which I bring to the office of assessor: 20 years experience in the insurance industry - much of this time being spent in supervision if general agency and district offices; six years as office manager Buckeye Cotton Oil, Co., New Madrid; licensed real estate broker and experienced in property evaluation.

VANCE: If I understand the question correctly, you are requesting some specific or formal type training that I might have that would help me in the operation of the assessor's office. If this is the question, then I would have to say "none." However, I would like to emphasis that I do not believe this is a valid prerequisite for fulfilling the office of county assessor. I believe the real qualifications lie within the ability and character of the man. As I have previously stated a good working knowledge of property values, a sense of fairplay, industriousness, and potent leadership are critical factors in the development of and maintaining an effective assessors office and responsibilities therein.

HOUCHIN: My qualifications are that I am first a qualified salesman under the realtor's law of the state of Missouri and have worked in this profession for some years. In addition I operate a business in Sikeston and have for some 22 years and I am fully informed regarding all typesof business practices. I presently serve as amember of the city council for the city of Sikeston and by virtue there of I am fully informed of the duties and obligations of the assessor and board of equalization.

QUESTION: Do you feel there is an inequity between assessments in the north or south ends of the county? If so, what would you do to correct this?

INMAN: The county was reevaluated in 1970 and if so, it has happened since then.

HEEB: Yes, but to me the greatest inequity we have is residential and commercial property that have never b een placed on the tax books. One of my assignments as deputy assessor of Scott County was to locate and assess these properties, which brought in a large amount of revenue for our county court and school districts.

PINNELL: Since Scott County was completely reevaluated in 1970, I do not currently know of any existing inequities in assessment. If, after taking office, inequities become known to me, and no-doubt they would, I would approach and solve the problems in a completely fair and unprejudiced manner, whether they originated in the north, south, east or west ends of the county.

VANCE: Let me say this. There could be inequities in the north end, the middle and the south end of the county. However, I do not believe we can compare one end of the county wit the other anymore than we can compare neighbor against neighbor in the same area. The county tax books public records, as you know, and any citizen has the right to look at these records at any time they wish. To say that one area received preferential treatment would be nebulous. In response to the second part of the question, if inequities are found, I would certainly work within the framework of the law to make correction. Let me say right here, that when I entered the race I did it of my own free accord and I started by pledging honest, loyal and dedicated service to the taxpayers of Scott County and I haven't changed my basic philosophy one bit. Also let me add that I was the first candidate to actively campaign for the office. I have conducted my campaign fairly and without promise to special interest groups or individuals expecting favors.

HOUCHIN: It is my feelings that the assessments should be on a fair and just basis rather than on a geographical basis. As I understand the law, there is no justification to assessing property in one geographical location than in another. The assessments should be made on the true value of the property - not the location.

QUESTION: Do you feel that other counties, owning land in Scott County, should pay taxes, as would be the case if an individual owned the property. Should companies on the Cape Girardeau Municipal Airport be required to pay taxes to Scott County?

INMAN: (a) It is illegal for another governmental body to pay taxes. (b) At this time they do pay personal taxes.

HEEB: Yes, we tax buildings on railroad property in Sikeston that are leased to private companies or individuals. Therefore, the leased business

Meet the candidates

Five candidates in Scott County Assessor race

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the second in a series of interviews with candidates for Scott County offices in the Aug. 3, primary election. These interviews deal with the office of Scott County Assessor, and those who are candidates for the office are Gerald Inman, 415 Wallace; John Dale Heeb of Chaffee; Bill Pinnell, 712 Sikes St.; Donald E. Vance of Chaffee; and John Houchin, 1019 Davis Blvd. There is no incumbent running in this race.

QUESTION: Why do you consider yourself a better candidate for the office than your opponent?

INMAN: I have served Scott County and the citizens of Scott County as deputy sheriff for almost eight years. In this time, I have learned to know the citizens of the county and their needs. I have been a business man and have dealt in real estate rentals and have just completed a course in real estate appraisal. I need the job as assessor, and I will be there when the citizens need me and availability is one of the most important things in holding public office.

HEEB: Having served as deputy assessor of Scott County for the past two years, I would have the experience and knowledge needed to perform the duties of assessor.

PINNELL: I feel that a combination of several qualifications would place me ahead of my opponents for assessor of Scott County. I have had almost 30 years of experience as a school teacher, administrator, office manager and insurance salesman, and feel that I am extremely well qualified in communicating with the public and being a good listener. I am a licensed real estate broker, and have completed one academic course in property appraisal and evaluation. I have a moral, civic, religious and family background which I feel is characteristic of that expected of a candidate by the voters of Scott County. The foregoing are the principal reasons I feel that I am best qualified to be Scott County Assessor.

VANCE: With respect to the other candidates, for the most part they are friends of mine and I have the highest regard for them. However, I feel that I have a great deal to offer the people of Scott County. I am a property owner, an experienced school board member with experience working in the areas of property assessments and financing as it relates to schools, and have years of successful experience in organization, budgeting and personnel and administrative management. I believe Scott County needs new leadership in this area, leadership that can develop a workable program and carry it out. The key phrase is "harmonious equitability." I don't believe people object to paying their fair share and I would strive to maintain and-or develop a program that would be fair and equitable to all citizens of the county.

HOUCHIN: I feel that I am well qualified to hold the office of Assessor of Scott County, Missouri. I have a great deal of experience inthe business world. I have bought and sold real estate and personal property and I am fully informed as to property values throughout Scott County. My business experience best fits me for this office.

QUESTION: What qualifications do you bring to the office?

INMAN: Answered in previous question.

HEEB: A vast knowledge of the real estate business, having been licensed by the state of Missouri as a real estate broker. Experienced in office procedures having served as city clerk for the city of Chaffee. A former Chaffee retail business man for 12 years.

PINNELL: The following are some of the qualifications which I bring to the office of assessor: 20 years experience in the insurance industry - much of this time being spent in supervision if general agency and district offices; six years as office manager Buckeye Cotton Oil, Co., New Madrid; licensed real estate broker and experienced in property evaluation.

VANCE: If I understand the question correctly, you are requesting some specific or formal type training that I might have that would help me in the operation of the assessor's office. If this is the question, then I would have to say "none." However, I would like to emphasis that I do not believe this is a valid prerequisite for fulfilling the office of county assessor. I believe the real qualifications lie within the ability and character of the man. As I have previously stated a good working knowledge of property values, a sense of fairplay, industriousness, and potent leadership are critical factors in the development of and maintaining an effective assessors office and responsibilities therein.

HOUCHIN: My qualifications are that I am first a qualified salesman under the realtor's law of the state of Missouri and have worked in this profession for some years. In addition I operate a business in Sikeston and have for some 22 years and I am fully informed regarding all typesof business practices. I presently serve as amember of the city council for the city of Sikeston and by virtue there of I am fully informed of the duties and obligations of the assessor and board of equalization.

QUESTION: Do you feel there is an inequity between assessments in the north or south ends of the county? If so, what would you do to correct this?

INMAN: The county was reevaluated in 1970 and if so, it has happened since then.

HEEB: Yes, but to me the greatest inequity we have is residential and commercial property that have never b een placed on the tax books. One of my assignments as deputy assessor of Scott County was to locate and assess these properties, which brought in a large amount of revenue for our county court and school districts.

PINNELL: Since Scott County was completely reevaluated in 1970, I do not currently know of any existing inequities in assessment. If, after taking office, inequities become known to me, and no-doubt they would, I would approach and solve the problems in a completely fair and unprejudiced manner, whether they originated in the north, south, east or west ends of the county.

VANCE: Let me say this. There could be inequities in the north end, the middle and the south end of the county. However, I do not believe we can compare one end of the county wit the other anymore than we can compare neighbor against neighbor in the same area. The county tax books public records, as you know, and any citizen has the right to look at these records at any time they wish. To say that one area received preferential treatment would be nebulous. In response to the second part of the question, if inequities are found, I would certainly work within the framework of the law to make correction. Let me say right here, that when I entered the race I did it of my own free accord and I started by pledging honest, loyal and dedicated service to the taxpayers of Scott County and I haven't changed my basic philosophy one bit. Also let me add that I was the first candidate to actively campaign for the office. I have conducted my campaign fairly and without promise to special interest groups or individuals expecting favors.

HOUCHIN: It is my feelings that the assessments should be on a fair and just basis rather than on a geographical basis. As I understand the law, there is no justification to assessing property in one geographical location than in another. The assessments should be made on the true value of the property - not the location.

QUESTION: Do you feel that other counties, owning land in Scott County, should pay taxes, as would be the case if an individual owned the property. Should companies on the Cape Girardeau Municipal Airport be required to pay taxes to Scott County?

INMAN: (a) It is illegal for another governmental body to pay taxes. (b) At this time they do pay personal taxes.

HEEB: Yes, we tax buildings on railroad property in Sikeston that are leased to private companies or individuals. Therefore, the leased business

One in custody, two more sought in Californi's abduction

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (AP) — With one man in custody, the FBI launched a nationwide dragnet Saturday for two other men sought in the mass abduction near here of 26 schoolchildren and their bus driver.

Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the San Francisco FBI office, said arrest warrants had been filed for Frederick N. Woods IV and James L. Schoenfeld, both 24. Schoenfeld's brother, Richard, 22, surrendered Friday.

"Investigations conducted by the local authorities indicate that Woods and Schoenfeld had fled the state," said Bates as the FBI re-entered the case.

The younger Schoenfeld was accompanied by his father, a San Francisco Peninsula podiatrist, and lawyer Edward Merrill when he walked into the Alameda County district attorney's office in Oakland to give himself up.

"I just thought it would be better for everybody if I surrendered him now," said Merrill, who defended Symbionese Liberation Army member Joseph Remiro in a 1975 murder trial. "They were saying he was armed and dangerous, and I didn't want anything to happen."

Schoenfeld, clad in a blue T-shirt and khaki trousers, did not comment, nor did his father, Dr. John Schoenfeld.

Dist. Atty. Lowell Jensen said Richard would be charged under a section of the state penal code covering kidnap for ransom or robbery. His bail was set at $1 million, and he was tentatively scheduled for arraignment Thursday before a Justice Court judge in Chowchilla, 100 miles south of Oakland.

In Chowchilla, Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates said Schoenfeld would be held in the Oakland jail until midweek "for security reasons" and so he would have easier access to his Oakland-based attorney.

The children and their driver, Edward Ray, 55, were kidnaped at gunpoint July 15 as they were en route home from summer school classes. They were imprisoned in a moving van buried in an Alameda County quarry for 18 hours before crawling to freedom.

James Schoenfeld and Woods, both described as "armed and dangerous," were being sought on federal warrants charging them with 27 counts of kidnaping and 16 of armed robbery. The robbery charges, authorities said, involved trinkets and clothing taken from the children.

Five killed in mid-air collision

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — Five persons were killed Saturday when two light planes smashed into each other over a wooded rural area about 10 miles northwest of this north-central Missouri community.

Two of the victims were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Mayshark of Urbana, Ill., the Missouri Highway Patrol said. They were in a Piper Cherokee 182 enroute from Urbana to Emporia, Kan.

The remaining victims were from the other craft, a Cessna reportedly chartered from Chillicothe, Mo., to Davenport, Iowa, via Columbia, Mo.

The mid-air crash and an explosion that followed were reported about 9:30 a.m. by rural residents along the Macon-Randolph county line.

State troopers and sheriff's deputies arriving on the scene found wreckage scattered over nearly a square mile of rugged mining and farming country, but it was some time before they esablished that two planes were involved.

The first bodies were found about two hours after the crash was reported but the last was not discovered until 1:30 p.m.

Investigators from the Federal Aviation Authority in Kirksville were called in shortly after the crash was reported.

A highway patrol spokesman said burned fragments indicated there was some sort of mid-air explosion, but there was little evidence of fire on the ground. The spokesman said he did not know how high the planes were when they collided.

Carter says Mondale could hurt him

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter said Saturday that his choice of Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., as a running mate probably will hurt his campaign in some conservative areas.

But he said voters recognize that he heads the ticket and that he expects Mondale will be able to accommodate his liberalism to Carter's more centrist political position.

However, he said Mondale, who is joining him here for a week of briefing and planning sessions, is not expected to mimic every Carter position or to become "a carbon copy" of the presidential nominee.

Carter commented after meeting at his home for nearly two hours with Sen. Herman Talmadge, Georgia's senior Democratic senator.

Talmadge also commented on arriving that he expects the choice of Mondale to hurt the ticket in conservative areas, help it in liberal areas but have no effect in the long run on a "convincing" Carter-Mondale election victory.

In response to a question, Carter said he is getting more letters on his stand on abortion than any other issue.

He said the volume of mail appears to be the result of an organized letter writing campaign by the "right to life" groups that seek a constitutional amendment to ban abortions.

Carter has said that the government should not encourage abortions. He said he personally opposes them, but does not think a constitutional amendment is required.

There have been reports that efforts are being made to arrange for discussions between Carter and Catholic groups concerned about his abortion stand.

Talmadge said the Carter nomination marks the first time since the Whigs nominated Zachary Taylor in 1848 that a politician "born and reared in the South" has been nominated for the presidency.

He said the nomination means the final end of the Reconstruction era that began with the end of the Civil War.

The "new South" politics practiced by Carter are, in fact, "politics of the nation," Talmadge said.

The Carter nomination "means the South is being readmitted to the Union as a full partner," he added.

Talmadge also said Carter is acting correctly in not making Watergate a campaign issue. "It would be like campaigning on the weather," he said. "People don't need to be told the sun is shining. They can look up and see it."

Carter said he and Talmadge discussed the relationship between the president and Congress and that Talmadge promised to make himself available for advice and counsel if Carter wins the election.

Talmadge is chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee and a senior member of the Finance Committee. Carter said they discussed next year's omnibus farm bill and the complicated tax reform bill now pending in the Senate.

Viking explorer still has problems

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Scientists guiding the Viking 1 robot explorer on the surface of Mars scored one success Saturday in efforts to make it fully functional, but still had two problems to work out.

A spokesman at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here said scientists were elated when a power problem which had affected transmission of pictures from the surface of Mars cleared up by itself.

"This is really great news," said Ken Senstadt, a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

But he added that scientists would be apprehensive as long as troubles continue with the seismometer intended to detect potential Marsquakes and the scooping arm which is to pick up Martian soil for biological tests in the quest for life.

Senstadt said researchers turned on the lander's picture transmission device Saturday morning and discovered it was operating in the 30-watt power mode, permitting them to receive clear photos for the full two-hour transmission time.

The device had switched into a weaker one-watt power mode Thursday and Friday, reducing the amount of picture information that could be transmitted before the Viking orbiter swung around to the far side of the planet. Information from the lander is transmitted first to the orbiter, and then relayed to earth.

"It appears to have been a random failure," he said.

Scientists made another attempt Friday night at freeing the seismometer from the stubborn locking device designed to protect it by holding itin place until a safe landing. JPL spokesman Bob Wilkins said researchers would know Saturday night if the attempt had worked.

"If that fails, we'll try again early next week."

Researchers also planned to make another try early Sunday morning to free the scooping arm, believed to be jammed by another balky protective device, a pin that has not fallen out as intended.

"I think they're optimistic," said Senstadt, noting that scientists successfully tested their latest maneuver to free the jammed arm on an earthbound duplicate of the lander.

Scientists also planned to photograph the area to double-check their work. If the plan succeeds, they should be able to see the pin lying on the ground beside the lander, Senstadt said.

Extension of the scooping arm is necessary to gather soil samples from undisturbed ground at a distance from the lander.

Once the samples are collected they will be dropped into tiny, automated biological labs and tested for signs of life.

Project leaders announced at a Friday night briefing a plan to adhere to their schedule for Viking 2, the companion craft now heading toward Mars.

Spokesman said a midcourse maneuver is set for Tuesday for Viking 2. The command for Viking 2 to go into orbit around Mars will be at 4:30 a.m. PDT, Aug. 8, they added.

Area Boy Scouts attend Camp Lewellan

Log rollers!!!

David Hay, Sam Camp, Scott Nickolson, Kevin Boyer and Marty McReynolds, members of Boy Scout troop 43, sponsored by the Sikeston Lion's Club, participate in a log rolling contest as part of Friday's campwide events at Camp Lewellan.

Heave-Ho!

Area scouts attend camp

Scouts from Troop 43, Sikeston, Troop 49, Morehouse, and Troop 33, Charleston attended the sixth week of camp at Boy Scout Camp Lewallen near Greenville, Mo. July 18th to 24th.

These scouts were among 600 scouts from southeast Missouri to attend scout camp in 1976.

Scouts worked to complete various outdoor skill awards and outdoor merit badges during the week as well as participate in many fun and competitive events, which included a water circus and an events trail which tested various scout skills in competition.

Instructor

Archery instructor Mark Peel, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Peel, 1909 Kentucky, Sikeston demonstrates archery techniques.

Petition drive. . .

when asked, he replied, "I haven't analyzed it, but it would be a lot less."

He said the city could hire a city administrator to run the city for $20,000. City Manager Charles Church is paid $25,000.

When asked if there was a guarantee the city would get a city administrator, he said there was not.

He said the mayor-council form of government made the city grow and prosper before the city manager form was adopted. He said there were "top-flight" people on the council at that time.

"I regard them as great, able leaders in the community."

He made no mention of the severe financial troubles the city had when voters decided to change to the city manager form of government.

He called Dexter one oof the most progressive communities in the Bootheel and said they have more industry per capita than Sikeston.

He was asked what the cost would be to realign the city into wards for the election of aldermen, he said the city was already aligned in wards.

"It's apparent you're not familiar with the city," he said.

When reminded of the comment made Thursday by another attorney that city wards would have to be realigned to fit the one-man one-vote rule, he said he disagreed with that lawyer's opinion.

The group learns to take care of their possessions, teamwork and as Steve added, "to learn to live on a budget."

The budgets consist of $4.25 per day on meals. For the trip they budgeted themselves to $15 bike repair, $20, souvenir $20, personal personal items (shampoo soap etc), $25 on entertainment (movies, swimming, etc.

Gear taken on the trip is all they can carry on their bikes — sleeping bags, tent, clothes, eating utensils, spare innertube, and some spare parts.

Certain members of the group are designated to carry other items as larger parts, tire pump etc.

An average day for these teenagers and their sponsors starts between 5 and 5:30 a.m., they then travel for about an hour before stopping for breakfast in a cafe. The group likes to travel mostly in the morning to beat the toll of the afternoon heat.

Lunch is generally found in a grocery store consisting of peanut butter and jelly or for whatever they have a hunger. Dinner is usually the same.

Nighttime falls for the group whenever they reach their destination and unless they are able to stay in a facility such as St. Francis Xavier they spend the nights in tents at campgrounds.

Cyclemates IV have broken the Cyclemates III record set in 1972 of 189.4 miles traveled in one day.

On July 18, Cyclemates IV left Wichita, Kansas at 5 a.m. and traveled to Pittsburg, Kansas arriving at 11:45 p.m. a distance of 194.7 miles.

The longest trek has been 14 days going across the state of Idaho.

To keep in touch with news from home the group has arranged five mail stops, Sun Valley, Idaho, Aspen, Colo., Wichita, Kansas, Ft. Campbell, Ky., Lanton, North Carolina and Yorktown, Va.

When asked if they had the opportunity to take the venture again both Steve and Lucia replied very enthusiastically "Yea, I would," Steve added again "Yes, I know I would."

The group will reach their 3000 mile mark at approximately 70 miles from Sikeston.

Next stop: Mayfield, Ky.

Women Profs 'Inch' Upward

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A national survey, by Profs. Everett C. Ladd Jr. of the University of Connecticut-Storrs and Seymour Martin Lipset of Stanford University, shows the proportion of women among American college and university professors has inched upward to 21 per cent.

The survey disclosed women composed 19 per cent of the professoriate in 1969 and 20 per cent in 1973.

Nearly one-third of all full-time faculty under age 30 are women, but as a group women occupy very much the same status as they did in 1969.

They spend more time teaching than men; they earn less than men; they publish less; exhibit less interest in research; receive less support for research, and they show a "striking pattern of segregation" in terms of their rank, where they teach and what they teach.

Kewanee Gold!

New Madrid County Sheriff W. L. "Cowboy" Ramsey, at left, and Chief Deputy Willis "Bo" Wingo flank stalks of eight- foot tall marijuana plants that were found Friday afternoon growing in a cultivated plot on a ditch dump four miles west of Kewanee. The marijuana crop was discovered by a farmer when he noticed that what appeared to be a weed patch had been recently tended. Described as a prime variety and the tallest they had seen, the officers estimated the crop to have a street sale value of several thousand dollars. The crop has been destroyed. CITY OF EAST PRAIRIE, MISSOURI COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM

ENVIRONMENTAL REVIEW RECORD
NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT

1. Project No. OA76040122

Storm drainage improvements in the City of East Prairie, Missouri, and Housing Rehabilitation in the City of East Prairie, Missouri.

2. The City of East Prairie has found that these projects will have no significant effect on the environment.

3. The storm drainage program will enhance the overall environment of the City. The program will provide access and use of land not now available or acceptable for development. The program will help beautify the local scene and eliminate havens for insects and rodents.

The housing rehabilitation program will help low income, especially the elderly to renovate and otherwise improve residences which are presently graded as substandard.

The total effect of these programs is one of improvement without loss or disturbance of existing ecological systems.

4. The Applicant has made an Environmental Review Record concerning these programs which is on file in the City Hall where it may be examined and copied by interested parties.

5. No further environmental review is proposed to be conducted. The Applicant therefore intends to request release of funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for these projects.

6. Interested parties may submit comments concerning environmental aspects of these programs until Aug. 13, 1976 (not less than 15 days subsequent to publication date, excluding Saturdays, Sundays and legal Holidays) after which time the environmental review period will be concluded unless adverse comments are received by the Applicant prior to the date appearing above.

Ancient Art Taught Just in Time

BINGEN, Wash. (AP) — The ancient and refined Indian art of basket weaving is being taught at the Adult Learning Center here — but only to Indians.

Some 28 students are also learning to string beads and make moccasins at college classes aimed at recapturing the nearly lost skills developed by their ancestors over thousands of years.

Most of the 28 students are from the Klickitat tribe, part of the Yakima nation. They meet three evenings each week at the center, just opened by Clark College in the old Bingen Elementary School building.

Teaching basket weaving is Elsie Thomas, 65, who learned the ancient art as a child from her parents. Ross Brewer, director of evening instruction at Clark College, says she is one of the last persons in the world with this knowledge.

She started her instruction in November by taking her pupils far into the mountains to dig cedar roots. They also gathered bear grass from an area in which their ancestors gleaned basket materials in the misty past.

Baskets woven by Indians from the Pacific Northwest employ a technique known as coiled basketry. One feature is an overlay decoration, applied as the basket is sewn.

Each basket is built up with coils of the cedar roots, while grasses and thin bark that is dyed various colors are used for the designs.

The baskets woven by Mrs. Thomas could sell for $85 to $185, says Nettie Kuneki, coordinator of the evening program.

"I doubt if we — the students — could ever get that good," she said.

It takes Mrs. Thomas about one week to complete each basket.

Her students say they are learning the old skills not only to perpetuate a tradition but "because we want Indian baskets and can't afford to buy them."

Kewanee Gold!

New Madrid County Sheriff W. L. "Cowboy" Ramsey, at left, and Chief Deputy Willis "Bo" Wingo flank stalks of eight- foot tall marijuana plants that were found Friday afternoon growing in a cultivated plot on a ditch dump four miles west of Kewanee. The marijuana crop was discovered by a farmer when he noticed that what appeared to be a weed patch had been recently tended. Described as a prime variety and the tallest they had seen, the officers estimated the crop to have a street sale value of several thousand dollars. The crop has been destroyed. U.S. sprinters, shot putters fail

MONTREAL (AP) — In a Black Saturday at the Summer Olympics, American track and field athletes failed to win an Olympic medal in the 100-meter dash for the first time since 1928 and in the shot put for the first time since 1936.

It appeared for a moment that the American disaster extended to Rick Wohlhuter in the semifinals of the 800 meters when he was disqualified. But he was reinstated after a review of the film.

Hasely Crawford became Trinidad's first gold medalist in Olympic history when he took the 100 meters in 10.06 seconds. Don Quarrie of Jamaica was second and Valery Borzov, winner of the 100 and 200 in 1972, was third.

The best the Americans could do was fourth, by Harvey Glance, a 19-year-old Auburn University freshman from Phenix City, Ala. Johnny Jones, a recent high school graduate from Lampases, Tex., was sixth. The American sprint team was decimated by injuries with top medal contenders Steve Williams pulling out in the Olympic trials in Eugene, Ore., and Houston McTear worsening an injury during training in Plattsburgh, N.Y.,and having to step aside.

Udo Beyer of East Germany won the men's shot put with a heave of 69 feet, three-quarters inch. Russians Yevginey Mironov and Aleksandr Barishnikov were second and third, respectively. Al Feuerbach of the Pacific Coast Club finished fourth at 67-5 and George Woods, also of the PCC, was a disappointing seventh at 66-5¾. No one in the field came close to equalling Barishnokov's recently set world mark of 72-2¼.

Wohlhuter won his semifinal heat in the 800 but, a few minutes later, was listed on the scoreboard as disqualified. American Coach Dr. Leroy Walker appealed the disqualification, in which Wohlhuter was charged with bumping other runners, and judges quickly reversed it, ruling the bumping wasn't flagrant enough to oust him.

Wohlhuter leaped with joy, said, "I'm in, I'm in!" and led the way into Sunday's finals.

It was a happy and long-sought victory in the 100 for Crawford. He was a finalist in the 1972 Games at Munich but pulled up lame after 30 meters with a hamstring injury. This time, the rugged islander who has attended Eastern Michigan University, went the distance without problems.

The United States appeared to have clinched the team gold medal for the three-day Olympic equestrian event Saturday with a strong performance in the cross-country phase of the competition, in which Princess Anne of Britain was slightly injured when her horse fell.

Ruth Fuchs of East Germany won the women's javelin gold for the second straight time with a throw of 216 feet, 4 inches. Marion Becker of West Germany was second and Kate Schmidt of Pacific Palisades, Calif., was third.

Saturday's shot put debacle for the United States was only the second time in Olympic history that the Americans had not captured a medal.

"I was very much surprised that the Americans had so little to offer," said Beyer. "The three Americans were a disappointment. I really thought that from the form they had shown earlier they would be competitors for second and third place. They did not measure up to form."

The Wohlhuter story was one of dejection and then elation. Wohlhuter had returned to the edge of the track when he saw his disqualification flashed on the board.

He slumped into a chair, pale and glum, and said to Walker: "I didn't foul anybody. I didn't commit a foul."

Walker replied: "Sit here. Leave it to me." He rushed into the jury room and made his protest. Minutes later, another team member came running out and told Wohlhuter, "You're in! You're in!"

Jamaica's Herb McKinley, former Olympic gold medalist, said he was not surprised at Crawford's victory in the 100.

"He's such a big man. I felt that he had the power to hold out in a tight race," McKinley said. He added that Crawford had let himself blow up to 230 pounds before the Pan American Games last year in Mexico and did not challenge there for a crown.

"He got himself into good shape," McKinley said. "He's down to 200 pounds and that is not bad for a man who is 6-foot-2."

Anton Tkac of Czechosolovakia upset two-time Olympic champion Daniel Morelon of France and won the cycling sprint gold medal two races to one. East Germany and West Germany picked up the silver and bronze. West Germany won the gold medal in the pursuit cycling event with Russia taking the silver medal and Great Britain the bronze.

At Bromont, Que., 70 miles frm Montreal, the American equestrian team was celebrating after an outstanding performance in the cross-country run that virtually nailed down the gold medal.

Great Britain was second in the unofficial standings but two of its horses may be out for the final phase of the three-day event—stadium jumping. Germany was in third place. Each team, which enters four horses, must tally the results of the top three for the team score.

Karl Schultz of West Germany went into the final round with the top individual standing followed by Ted Coffin of Strafford, Vt., and Mike Plumb of Chesapeake, Md., in second and third places, respectively. Nearly half the 49 contestants took at least one fall on muddy ground Saturday.

Mac Wilkins, a bearded discus thrower who believes in psyching out his opponents, hoped to revive American track and field hopes after setting an Olympic record in Saturday's qualifying.

East German women dominated the rowing finals as awesomely as they had ruled the swimming events.

Wilkins tossed the discus 224 feet in qualifying to beat the Olympic standard of 212-6. He owns the world record of 232-6 and appeared to have a shot at breaking it in Sunday's finals.

"I just wanted to do a nice throw, assert my dominanace and let the other throwers think about it overnight," said the 6-foot-4, 260-pounder. "Friday I had a very good workout and decided, I guess, I'm as good as everyone expected me to be." His qualifying throw was 15 feet longer than the second best by Bulgaria's Velko Velev.

The East German women won four of the six rowing gold medals as that competition made its Olympic debut. The American team got a surprise silver medal when Joan Lind of Long Beach, Calif., finished a close second to East German Christine Scheibich.

The U.S. team also claimed a bronze medal in the women's eight competition, won by the East Germans. Russia was second. East Germany scored an easy victory over Russia and Romania in the quadruple sculls race and beat Bulgaria and Russia in the four oar with coxswain competition.

Bulgaria won the other two gold medals, in the double sculls and the pairs.

The U.S. basketball team used a balanced attack to beat Czechoslovakia 81-76 for its fifth straight victory. Mitch Kupchak led the Americans with 14 points, Scott May got 12 and Adrian Dantley, 11.

The Russians and Americans appeared headed for a showdown in the final and Czech Coach Vladimir Heger, whose team has played both, predicted a tossup. "Coming into this game I thought the American team might win the gold medal, but now I'm not sure," he said, citing Russia's excellent defense balanced against the Americans' driving attack.

The United States plays Canada Monday night in the semifinals and Coach Dean Smith refused to talk about a match against the Russians. In the 1972 Olympics finale, Russia won by a point after officials allowed the last three seconds to be played three times.

The Russians beat the American women's team Friday 112-77 but the Americans still have a chance for a silver medal.

Super heavyweight Alexandr Kolchinski and three of his Russian teammates clinched gold medals Saturday morning in Olympic Greco-Roman wrestling.

American women swimmers haven't been shut out of gold medals since 1952, but they faced that prospect unless Shirley Babashoff of Mission Viejo, Calif., can win the 800-meter freestyle race Sunday night. Miss Babshoff qualified third Saturday in 8 minutes, 47.74 seconds, well off her world record of 8:39.63 and behind Petra Thumer of East Germany and Nicole Kramer of Mission Viejo, Calif. Miss Babashoff has two individual silver medals in these Games.

East Germany is favored to win the other two women's finals Sunday in the 200-meter backstroke and the 400-meter freestyle.

Joe Bottom of Santa Clara, Calif., and West German Klaus Steinbach shared the No. 1 qualifying time of 51.47 seconds in the 100 freestyle swim trials Saturday. The time was more than two-tenths of a second off Mark Spitz' Olympic record.

Britain's Princess Anne was thrown from her horse, Goodwill, when the animal fell on the 19th jump of the cross-country equestrian competition. She suffered a mild concussion, a bruised right arm and right cheek. But she got up, remounted and finished the competition. She just recovered from an injured neck vertebra suffered in a training spill in Britain.

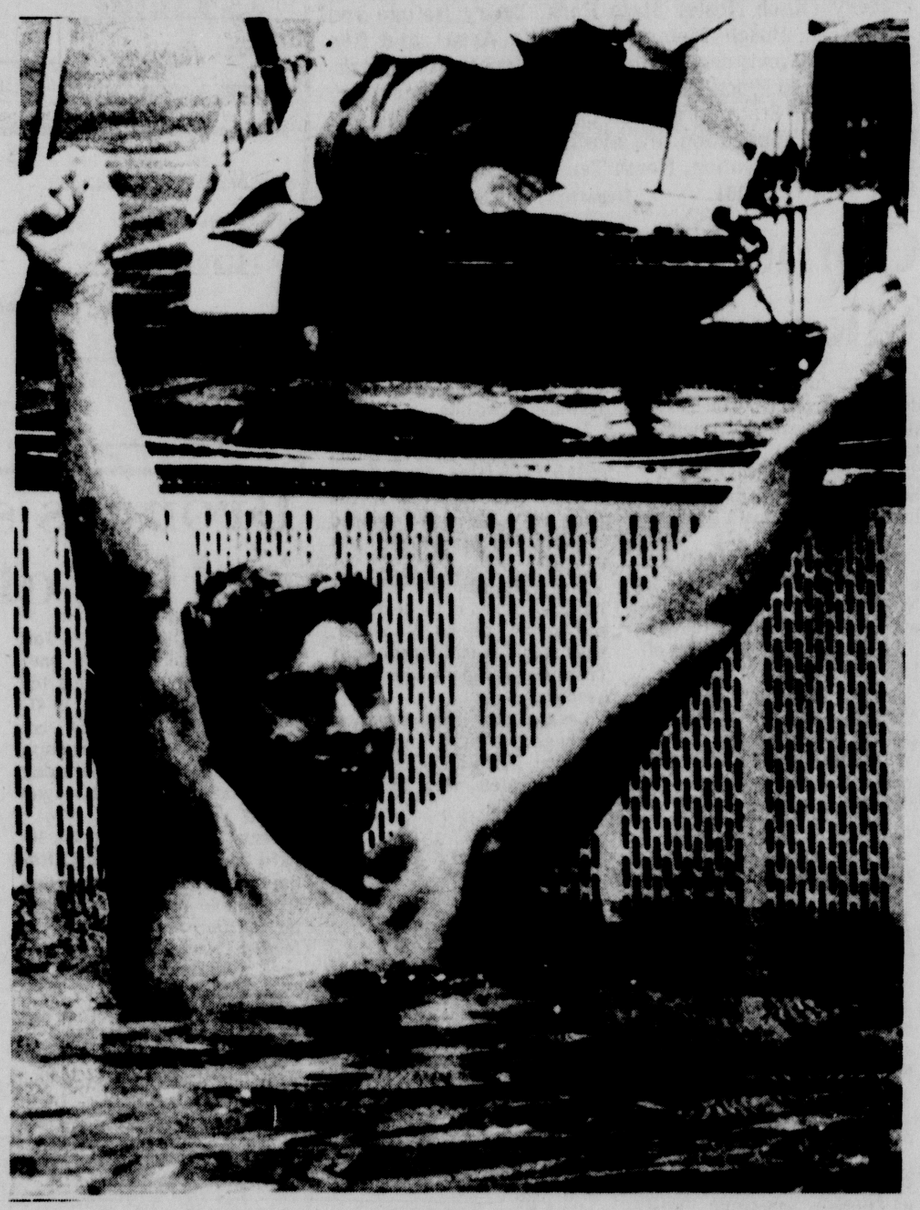
She had blood on the right leg of her khaki jodphurs and, spectators said, on her right arm. The horse caught his front hooves, then his back hooves on the jump and fell on his right side. The princess was thrown to the right of the horse, landing on her right side. It took the horse some time to get up and Anne lost four minutes in the timed event. She was docked 60 points.

More than a dozen horses took spills on muddy ground. The event was run off in light rain. Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip watched from the back of a pickup truck and the queen held an umbrella. The prince saw the fall through binoculars and ran toward his daughter. But she had remounted and ridden off before he got there. The princess met with the queen after the competition.

The horse was to be examined to see if the princess can ride him in Sunday's showjumping section of the three-day event.

American track and field athletes did well in qualifying Saturday. Three women sprinters advanced to the second round in the 100-meter qualifying heats — Brenda Morehead of Tennessee State, Chandra Cheeseborough of Jacksonville, Fla., and Evelyn Ashford of UCLA.

Jay Silvester of Orem, Utah, and John Powell of Cupertino, Calif., qualified with Wilkins in the discus. All three American pole vaulters qualified. They are world record holder Dave Roberts of Gainesville, Fla.; Earl Bell of Jonesboro, Ark., and Terry Porter of Fort Worth, Tex. All cleared the qualifying height of 16-8¾ on their first attempts.



Brian Goodell,17,of Mission Viejo, California, raises both arms in victory Tuesday after setting a world's record and securing Gold in the men's 1,500 meter freestyle at the Olympic Games in Montreal. (AP Wirephoto)

Cruz drives home four as Redbirds blast Cubs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hector Cruz drove in four runs with a homer and a single and starting pitcher Bob Forsch weathered an early-inning beanball battle Saturday night, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 12-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Cruz unloaded his eighth homer off right-hander Bill Bonham, 6-9, after the Cubs took a 1-0 lead. Willie Crawford singled in a run in the second, then Cruz capped a three-run St. Louis surge with a two-run single.

A beanball battle started in the first inning when Forsch, 5-5, hit Bill Madlock with a pitch. Chicago's Bill Bonham later drew an automatic $50 fine when a pitch sailed close to Forsch.

Then St. Louis Manager Schoendienst was automatically banished under National League rules when Forsch again struck Madlock with a pitch beginning the Chicago fourth.

Chicago scored its second run in the fifth inning on three straight hits off Forsch and added its third run in the seventh before Forsch gave way to reliever Bill Grief.

The Cards' Lou Brock singled twice, doubled, scored two runs and stole three bases for the 18th time in his career as a cog in a 13-hit attack.

Jerry Morales' two-out single scored Madlock before Cruz slammed his home run to overcome the Cubs' lead.

St. Louis built a 5-1 lead when Schoendienst departed and the Cards added four more in the bottom of the fourth on runscoring hits by Bake McBride, Crawford Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez off Bonham and reliever Oscar Zamora.

Rain puts end to All-Stars misery

CHICAGO (AP) — The bizarre circumstances which cut short Friday night's College All-Star game might very well have saved the embarrassment of creating a false hero.

For the first time since the "Most Valuable Player" trophy was initiated in 1938, a most valuable player from the College All Stars was not named. Pittsburgh beat the collegians 24-0 after the game was halted with 1:22 left in the third quarter because of a violent rainstorm and fan reaction.

The Chicago Tribune, which sponsors the game, said in its Sunday editions, "Because of the circumstances surrounding the event, it was decided that a most valuable player would not be named this year."

It could be the sudden and unexpected end to the game did not give writers and broadcasters a chance to cast their ballots. And then it could be the All Stars, outplayed even worse than expected, didn't have a player who could rightfully qualify for MVP.

"These All Stars didn't have the gung-ho spirit of last year's All Stars. They weren't fired up," said Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who hit 11 of 26 passes for 174 yards.

Roy Gerela booted three field goals in the first half to give the Steelers a 9-0 lead. The two-time Super Bowl champions boosted their edge to 11-0 when center Ray Pinney snapped the ball out of the end zone on an attempted punt for an automatic safety.

Franco Harris ran 21 yards for a touchdown and Tommy Reamon gained 25 yards on a pass from Bradshaw and then went two yards for a score on the next play.

Shortly after that a hurricane-like storm struck the lakefront stadium, obliterating the players and quickly flooding the artificial turf. Then came the fans streaming out of the stands, wading and belly flopping on the field. It appeared to be all in good fun until the metal goal posts were torn down.

Officials of the Tribune and National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle needed only 12 minutes to decide to call a conclusion to the contest "because of the weather, dangerous field conditions and risk of injury to both players and fans."

At the point the game ended, the All Stars had been limited to a total of 58 yards offense. They had been able to get into Steeler territory only three times, twice on interceptions including one by Shafer Suggs which put the ball on the Steeler 34 when the storm hit.

A year ago the Steelers were hard pressed and had to come from behind in the fourth quarter to post a 21-14 victory over the All Stars.

OFF TO BIG START

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Lou Piniella of the New York Yankees got off to a great hitting start this season. In his first five games he had nine hits in 16 trips to the plate.

Williams sold by Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves announced Saturday that catcher-first baseman Earl Williams has been sent to the Montreal Expos for cash or a player to be named later.

Williams, who was hitting .212 in 60 games this year, was sent to the Expos in a waiver transaction, General Manager John Alevizos said.

Williams was in his second stint with the Braves, which included the 1971 season when he was named the National League Rookie of the Year.

"I was very much surprised that the Americans had so little to offer," said Beyer. "The three Americans were a disappointment. I really thought that from the form they had shown earlier they would be competitors for second and third place. They did not measure up to form."

The Wohlhuter story was one of dejection and then elation. Wohlhuter had returned to the edge of the track when he saw his disqualification flashed on the board.

He slumped into a chair, pale and glum, and said to Walker: "I didn't foul anybody. I didn't commit a foul."

Walker replied: "Sit here. Leave it to me." He rushed into the jury room and made his protest. Minutes later, another team member came running out and told Wohlhuter, "You're in! You're in!"

Jamaica's Herb McKinley, former Olympic gold medalist, said he was not surprised at Crawford's victory in the 100.

"He's such a big man. I felt that he had the power to hold out in a tight race," McKinley said. He added that Crawford had let himself blow up to 230 pounds before the Pan American Games last year in Mexico and did not challenge there for a crown.

"He got himself into good shape," McKinley said. "He's down to 200 pounds and that is not bad for a man who is 6-foot-2."

Anton Tkac of Czechosolovakia upset two-time Olympic champion Daniel Morelon of France and won the cycling sprint gold medal two races to one. East Germany and West Germany picked up the silver and bronze. West Germany won the gold medal in the pursuit cycling event with Russia taking the silver medal and Great Britain the bronze.

At Bromont, Que., 70 miles frm Montreal, the American equestrian team was celebrating after an outstanding performance in the cross-country run that virtually nailed down the gold medal.

Great Britain was second in the unofficial standings but two of its horses may be out for the final phase of the three-day event—stadium jumping. Germany was in third place. Each team, which enters four horses, must tally the results of the top three for the team score.

Karl Schultz of West Germany went into the final round with the top individual standing followed by Ted Coffin of Strafford, Vt., and Mike Plumb of Chesapeake, Md., in second and third places, respectively. Nearly half the 49 contestants took at least one fall on muddy ground Saturday.

Mac Wilkins, a bearded discus thrower who believes in psyching out his opponents, hoped to revive American track and field hopes after setting an Olympic record in Saturday's qualifying.

East German women dominated the rowing finals as awesomely as they had ruled the swimming events.

Wilkins tossed the discus 224 feet in qualifying to beat the Olympic standard of 212-6. He owns the world record of 232-6 and appeared to have a shot at breaking it in Sunday's finals.

"I just wanted to do a nice throw, assert my dominanace and let the other throwers think about it overnight," said the 6-foot-4, 260-pounder. "Friday I had a very good workout and decided, I guess, I'm as good as everyone expected me to be." His qualifying throw was 15 feet longer than the second best by Bulgaria's Velko Velev.

The East German women won four of the six rowing gold medals as that competition made its Olympic de'ut. The American team got a surprise silver medal when Joan Lind of Long Beach, Calif., finished a close second to East German Christine Scheibich.

The U.S. team also claimed a bronze medal in the women's eight competition, won by the East Germans. Russia was second. East Germany scored an easy victory over Russia and Romania in the quadruple sculls race and beat Bulgaria and Russia in the four oar with coxswain competition.

Bulgaria won the other two gold medals, in the double sculls and the pairs.

The U.S. basketball team used a balanced attack to beat Czechoslovakia 81-76 for its fifth straight victory. Mitch Kupchak led the Americans with 14 points, Scott May got 12 and Adrian Dantley, 11.

The Russians and Americans appeared headed for a showdown in the final and Czech Coach Vladimir Heger, whose team has played both, predicted a tossup. "Coming into this game I thought the American team might win the gold medal, but now I'm not sure," he said, citing Russia's excellent defense balanced against the Americans' driving attack.

The United States plays Canada Monday night in the semifinals and Coach Dean Smith refused to talk about a match against the Russians. In the 1972 Olympics finale, Russia won by a point after officials allowed the last three seconds to be played three times.

The Russians beat the American women's team Friday 112-77 but the Americans still have a chance for a silver medal.

Super heavyweight Alexandr Kolchinski and three of his Russian teammates clinched gold medals Saturday morning in Olympic Greco-Roman wrestling.

American women swimmers haven't been shut out of gold medals since 1952, but they faced that prospect unless Shirley Babashoff of Mission Viejo, Calif., can win the 800-meter freestyle race Sunday night. Miss Babshoff qualified third Saturday in 8 minutes, 47.74 seconds, well off her world record of 8:39.63 and behind Petra Thumer of East Germany and Nicole Kramer of Mission Viejo, Calif. Miss Babashoff has two individual silver medals in these Games.

East Germany is favored to win the other two women's finals Sunday in the 200-meter backstroke and the 400-meter freestyle.

Joe Bottom of Santa Clara, Calif., and West German Klaus Steinbach shared the No. 1 qualifying time of 51.47 seconds in the 100 freestyle swim trials Saturday. The time was more than two-tenths of a second off Mark Spitz' Olympic record.

Britain's Princess Anne was thrown from her horse, Goodwill, when the animal fell on the 19th jump of the cross-country equestrian competition. She suffered a mild concussion, a bruised right arm and right cheek. But she got up, remounted and finished the competition. She just recovered from an injured neck vertebra suffered in a training spill in Britain.

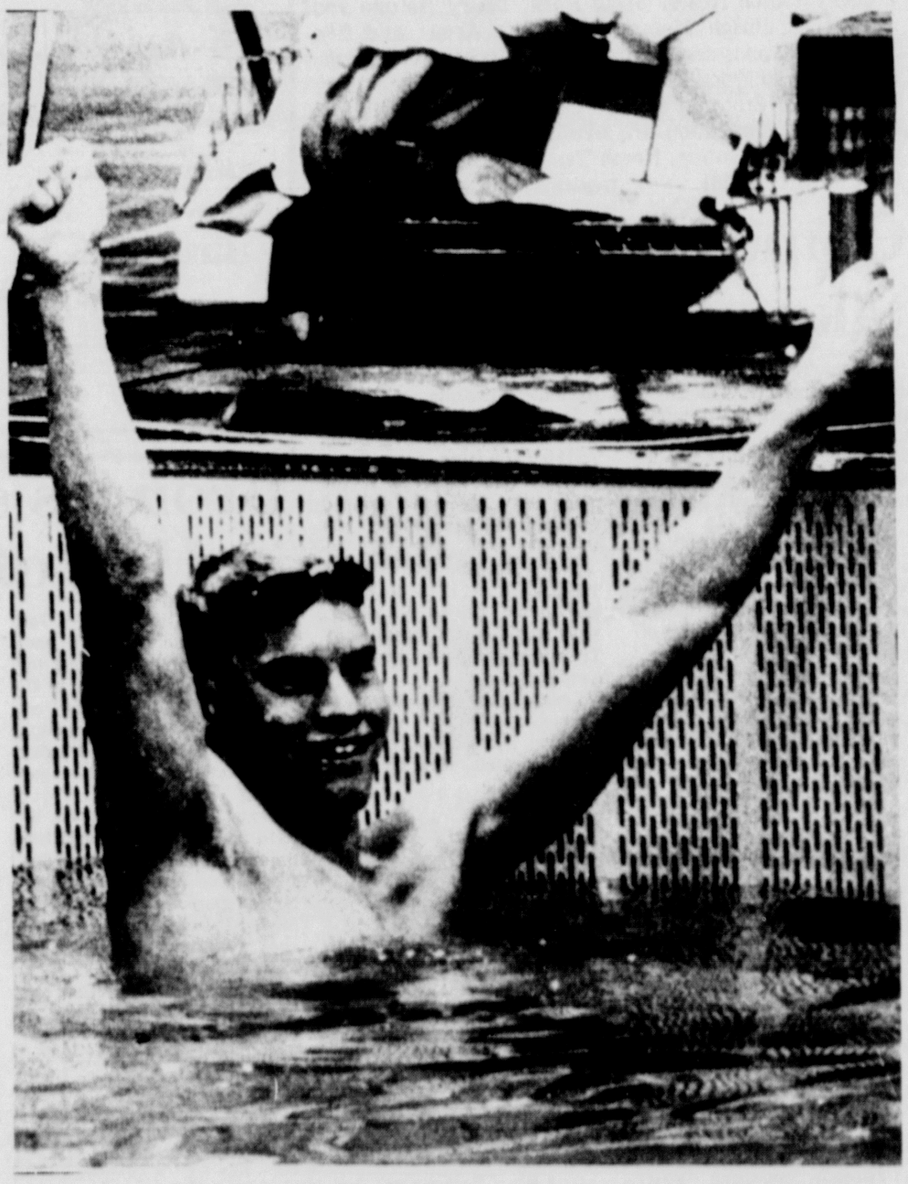
She had blood on the right leg of her khaki jodphurs and, spectators said, on her right arm. The horse caught his front hooves, then his back hooves on the jump and fell on his right side. The princess was thrown to the right of the horse, landing on her right side. It took the horse some time to get up and Anne lost four minutes in the timed event. She was docked 60 points.

More than a dozen horses took spills on muddy ground. The event was run off in light rain. Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip watched from the back of a pickup truck and the queen held an umbrella. The prince saw the fall through binoculars and ran toward his daughter. But she had remounted and ridden off before he got there. The princess met with the queen after the competition.

The horse was to be examined to see if the princess can ride him in Sunday's show-jumping section of the three-day event.

American track and field athletes did well in qualifying Saturday. Three women sprinters advanced to the second round in the 100-meter qualifying heats — Brenda Morehead of Tennessee State, Chandra Cheeseborough of Jacksonville, Fla., and Evelyn Ashford of UCLA.

Jay Silvester of Orem, Utah, and John Powell of Cupertino, Calif., qualified with Wilkins in the discus. All three American pole vaulters qualified. They are world record holder Dave Roberts of Gainesville, Fla.; Earl Bell of Jonesboro, Ark., and Terry Porter of Fort Worth, Tex. All cleared the qualifying height of 16-8¾ on their first attempts.



Brian Goodell,17,of Mission Viejo, California, raises both arms in victory Tuesday after setting a world's record and securing Gold in the men's 1,500 meter freestyle at the Olympic Games in Montreal. (AP Wirephoto)

Cruz drives home four as Redbirds blast Cubs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hector Cruz drove in four runs with a homer and a single and starting pitcher Bob Forsch weathered an early-inning beanball battle Saturday night, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 12-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Cruz unloaded his eighth homer off right-hander Bill Bonham, 6-9, after the Cubs took a 1-0 lead. Willie Crawford singled in a run in the second, then Cruz capped a three-run St. Louis surge with a two-run single.

A beanball battle started in the first inning when Forsch, 5-5, hit Bill Madlock with a pitch. Chicago's Bill Bonham later drew an automatic $50 fine when a pitch sailed close to Forsch.

Then St. Louis Manager Schoendienst was automatically banished under National League rules when Forsch again struck Madlock with a pitch beginning the Chicago fourth.

Chicago scored its second run in the fifth inning on three straight hits off Forsch and added its third run in the seventh before Forsch gave way to reliever Bill Grief.

The Cards' Lou Brock singled twice, doubled, scored two runs and stole three bases for the 18th time in his career as a cog in a 13-hit attack.

Jerry Morales' two-out single scored Madlock before Cruz slammed his home run to overcome the Cubs' lead.

St. Louis built a 5-1 lead when Schoendienst departed and the Cards added four more in the bottom of the fourth on runscoring hits by Bake McBride, Crawford Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez off Bonham and reliever Oscar Zamora.

Rain puts end to All-Stars misery

CHICAGO (AP) — The bizarre circumstances which cut short Friday night's College All-Star game might very well have saved the embarrassment of creating a false hero.

For the first time since the "Most Valuable Player" trophy was initiated in 1938, a most valuable player from the College All Stars was not named. Pittsburgh beat the collegians 24-0 after the game was halted with 1:22 left in the third quarter because of a violent rainstorm and fan reaction.

The Chicago Tribune, which sponsors the game, said in its Sunday editions, "Because of the circumstances surrounding the event, it was decided that a most valuable player would not be named this year."

It could be the sudden and unexpected end to the game did not give writers and broadcasters a chance to cast their ballots. And then it could be the All Stars, outplayed even worse than expected, didn't have a player who could rightfully qualify for MVP.

"These All Stars didn't have the gung-ho spirit of last year's All Stars. They weren't fired up," said Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw, who hit 11 of 26 passes for 174 yards.

Roy Gerela booted three field goals in the first half to give the Steelers a 9-0 lead. The two-time Super Bowl champions boosted their edge to 11-0 when center Ray Pinney snapped the ball out of the end zone on an attempted punt for an automatic safety.

Franco Harris ran 21 yards for a touchdown and Tommy Reamon gained 25 yards on a pass from Bradshaw and then went two yards for a score on the next play.

Shortly after that a hurricane-like storm struck the lakefront stadium, obliterating the players and quickly flooding the artificial turf. Then came the fans streaming out of the stands, wading and belly flopping on the field. It appeared to be all in good fun until the metal goal posts were torn down.

Officials of the Tribune and National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle needed only 12 minutes to decide to call a conclusion to the contest "because of the weather, dangerous field conditions and risk of injury to both players and fans."

At the point the game ended, the All Stars had been limited to a total of 58 yards offense. They had been able to get into Steeler territory only three times, twice on interceptions including one by Shafer Suggs which put the ball on the Steeler 34 when the storm hit.

A year ago the Steelers were hard pressed and had to come from behind in the fourth quarter to post a 21-14 victory over the All Stars.

OFF TO BIG START

NEW YORK (AP) — Outfielder Lou Piniella of the New York Yankees got off to a great hitting start this season. In his first five games he had nine hits in 16 trips to the plate.

Mets Ed Kranepool, Joe Torre and pitcher Hank Webb are native New Yorkers.

Williams sold by Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Braves announced Saturday that catcher-first baseman Earl Williams has been sent to the Montreal Expos for cash or a player to be named later.

Williams, who was hitting .212 in 60 games this year, was sent to the Expos in a waiver transaction, General Manager John Alevizos said.

Williams was in his second stint with the Braves, which included the 1971 season when he was named the National League Rookie of the Year.

State tourney at Dexter highlights schedule

Tournaments take over spotlight as baseball & softball seasons wind down

Tournaments will dominate the Sikeston and Southeast Missouri sports scene this week as summer action begins to reach a climax for local baseball and softball teams.

The big event in the area will be the State 13-Year-Old Junior Babe Ruth League Tournament at Dexter. The Dexter team will host district champions from Sikeston, Lebanon, Carthage, Kirksville and Jefferson City as they vie for the state championship and a birth in the Midwest Plains Regional Tournament at Chaffee.

Action in the event will get underway Monday night as Sikeston takes on Carthage at 6:00 at Dexter's East City Park on Highway 114. Dexter meets Kirksville at 8:00. Play will continue with games at 6:00 and 8:00 each evening through Friday. The champion will be decided either Friday evening or Saturday afternoon at 2:00 p.m.

Teams from New Madrid County and Chaffee will also be involved in state tournaments this week. New Madrid County, which beat Sikeston to win the 13-15-Year-Old District Tournament in the Junior Babe Ruth League at Bertrand last week, meets Kirksville Tuesday night in the state tournament at Kirksville. Chaffee, 2-1 winners over Sikeston in the Senior Babe Ruth League district event at Jackson Thursday evening, will compete in the state tournament at Boonville beginning Monday night.

The annual Sikeston Little League tournaments will be held Monday through Thursday nights at the complex. Opening round play in all three leagues will be Monday and Tuesday evenings, with semifinals following on Wednesday night. The consolation games are set for Thursday evening at 6:30, with the championship contest in each circuit following at 8:15.

District tournaments in American Legion baseball and the Amateur Softball Association also begin this week. American Legion play starts Thursday night when Scott County plays Poplar Bluff in an elimination game at Scott City. The winner will meet Cape Girardeau the following night and must take a pair from the league leaders to win the district. New Hamburg will host the ASA tournament, which will find all nine SeMo Fastpitch Softball League teams competing.

In addition to the tournaments getting underway, the Morehouse Invitational Softball Tournament will conclude Tuesday night. Eight teams have battled it out for the top spot in both the mens and womens divisions during the eleven-day, double-elimination event.

Chaffee net meet set

CHAFFEE — The deadline for entry in the Chaffee Jaycee Tennis Tournament will be July 31, according to chairman Dan Bollinger.

The tournament will run from August through August 6. There will be three classes of competition -- Open, 18- under and 14 - under. Although there will be no womens classifications, women are eligible to enter any of the three categories. There will be singles and doubles events in all three classes.

Entry fees will be $3.50 for singles and $5.50 for doubles. Fees can be sent to Dan Bollinger, P. O. Box 146, Chaffee, Mo. 63740.

Comets win pair; take over first

The Vanduser Comets swept a doublehader from the New Hamburg Blues Friday night to take over first place in the Southeast Missouri Fastpitch Softball League. Oran, which had been in first, lost 1-0 to Scott City.

Gary Owens scattered three hits and Charlie Dye drove in both runs as the Comets won the opener 2-1. Dye had RBI- singles in the third and fifth innings off loser Rick Duncan.

Les Schatzley drilled a pair of homers as Vanduser won the nightcap 7-0. Schatzley's first roundtripper came as he led off the game in the first, while the other came in the third with two men on base. Bill Gilliland held the Blues to two hits.

A. J. Schott pitched Scott City to their upset win over John Watkins and Oran. Schott gave up only three basehits in the game as Oran's record dropped to 13-4, a full game behind 15-4 Vanduser.

New Hamburg Righter Trucking is 14-4 in the league, a half game behind Vanduser. They won a twinbill from Kelly Transport of Cape by identical 3-0 scores.

League play concludes next Wednesday night. Vanduser plays at Kelso and Oran hosts the Cape Mets. New Hamburg Righter is idle.

Rose eyes fourth NL batting crown

ATLANTA (AP) — At age 35, two years after a sub-.300 season led to talk he might be washed up, Pete Rose is chasing a batting title once again.

"Might say I'm the favorite," he said. "I can hit .340."

After a torrid early season followed by a slump that led to an uneasy one-game "rest" from the starting lineup, the Cincinnati third baseman is back over .330, about 15 points behind Pittsburgh's Al Oliver.

Oliver's lead is substantial but a check with the calendar explains Rose's confidence. The dog days of summer are here, the season in which Rose traditionally plays his best.

Unlike his first three titles, Rose said his latest quest has an added incentive: "It would get people off your back who think you're getting old."

A .284 mark in 1974, Rose's first under-.300 season in 10 years, led to talk the Cincinnati star was past his prime. He answered that with a .317 average last year, amassing 210 hits and leading the league in runs and doubles.

Ted Williams made believers of skeptics who said he was getting up in years in 1958, when he won the American League batting championship at age 40. Five years younger than that, Rose would like to do the same.

"I tend to forget about those first two," he said. "We weren't winning as a team then. They didn't mean as much."

Broncos stop Detroit 10-7 in Hall of Fame game

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Jon Keyworth's scored on a one-yard plunge in the first quarter and Jim Turner added a 47-yard field goal to give the Denver Broncos a 10-7 triumph over the Detroit Lions Saturday in the National Football League Hall of Fame Game.

Dennis Franklin caught a 10-yard pass from Joe Reed after the Lions had recovered a Denver fumble in the fourth quarter for Detroit's score and the former Michigan star recovered a fumble on the Denver 12-yard line.

Detroit's comeback bid before a crowd of 17,639 fans, including some who came to see Franklin, a former high school star at nearby Massillon, Ohio, was stopped when a penalty nullified a seemingly successful field goal attempt by Rich Sorenson and his next attempt also failed.

Prior to the exhibition opener for both teams, Jim Taylor became the first of the players who served under the late Vince Lombardi during the Green Bay Packers dynasty of the 1960s to be inducted into the Hall of Fame. Also inducted were Ray Flaherty, who coached the Washington Redskins during the 1930s and 1940s, and the late Len Ford who starred at defensive end for the Cleveland Browns.

Detroit's comeback bid before a crowd of 17,639 fans, including some who came to see Franklin, a former high school star at nearby Massillon, Ohio, was stopped when a penalty nullified a seemingly successful field goal attempt by Rich Sorenson and his next attempt also failed.

Prior to the exhibition opener for both teams, Jim Taylor became the first of the players who served under the late Vince Lombardi during the Green Bay Packers dynasty of the 1960s to be inducted into the Hall of Fame. Also inducted were Ray Flaherty, who coached the Washington Redskins during the 1930s and 1940s, and the late Len Ford who starred at defensive end for the Cleveland Browns.

Rose eyes fourth NL batting crown

ATLANTA (AP) — At age 35, two years after a sub-.300 season led to talk he might be washed up, Pete Rose is chasing a batting title once again.

"Might say I'm the favorite," he said. "I can hit .340."

After a torrid early season followed by a slump that led to an uneasy one-game "rest" from the starting lineup, the Cincinnati third baseman is back over .330, about 15 points behind Pittsburgh's Al Oliver.

Oliver's lead is substantial but a check with the calendar explains Rose's confidence. The dog days of summer are here, the season in which Rose traditionally plays his best.

Unlike his first three titles, Rose said his latest quest has an added incentive: "It would get people off your back who think you're getting old."

A .284 mark in 1974, Rose's first under-.300 season in 10 years, led to talk the Cincinnati star was past his prime. He answered that with a .317 average last year, amassing 210 hits and leading the league in runs and doubles.

Ted Williams made believers of skeptics who said he was getting up in years in 1958, when he won the American League batting championship at age 40. Five years younger than that, Rose would like to do the same.

"I tend to forget about those first two," he said. "We weren't winning as a team then. They didn't mean as much."

Physicals needed

Boys going out for eighth grade football this season must have their insurance and physical examinations before they can begin practice, eighth grade coach Mike Foster announced.

Practice is scheduled to begin August 30, Foster said. Athletes can pick up a form for the physical from the Junior High School principal's office. A physician's letter showing proof of the examination will also be accepted.

OAKLAND (AP) — The Kansas City Royals scored six runs in the sixth inning, with Dave Nelson's two-run single breaking a 4-4 tie, and beat the Oakland A's 6-5 Saturday.

The A's had their worst fielding day of he season with seven errors and dropped nine games behind first-place Kansas City in the American League West. The costliest error was by second baseman Phil Garner, who booted an apparent double play ball in the sixth inning and opened the door for the Royals' big rally.

Tom Poquette, who had four hits to raise his batting average to .333, went to second base when center fielder Bill North let his single get through him opening the Kansas City sixth. George Brett singled up the middle with Poquette stopping at third.

Hal McRae and Bob Stinson singled and Fred Patek chipped in with a sacrifice fly before Nelson got the game-winning hit.

Gene Tenace of the A's made it a one-run game with his 10th homer of the season in the bottom of the sixth.

The A's scored twice in the first, with both runs coming in on Brett's throwing error, and got two more runs in the fourth on singles by Tenace, Claudell Washington and Billy Williams and a sacrifice fly by Garner.

The loss came before the A's' biggest home crowd of the season, 42,592, on Jacket Day.

Poquette combines desire, talent

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Few accomplishments in baseball generate more fan interest and enthusiasm than the emergence of new talent -- the sudden rise of a young player whose skills, character and style blend to command attention. It's a contagious phenomenon that sets fans in major league ballparks applauding, idolizing and dreaming of things to come.

Royals' rookie Tom Poquette has that dynamic appeal. The popular outfielder has won over Royals' fans with his determination, aggressiveness and all-around talents. In the process, the handsome 24-year-old has ignited a romance that is gratifying proof that hard work pays off.

"I guess I've kind of surprised a lot of people," beams Poquette, who entered the All-Star break sporting a sizzling .347 batting average that has Kansas City followers booming him for Rookie-of- the - Year consideration. "You just don't know what will happen the rest of the season, but so far this has been a very satisfying and important season for me."

Ironically, Tom's road to the big leagues has not always been so rosy. Oh, not that he hadn't flashed outstanding minor league credentials. Two years ago he seemed destined to a bright future in the majors. After finishing the final month of the 1973 season with the Royals, Tom was enjoying his finest season ever the following year at Omaha. Things couldn't have been going any smoother.

But torn cartilage in his knee prematurely halted the '74 campaign and resulted in a series of events that almost dashed the fiery outfielder's big league dreams. Poquette underwent surgery to repair his torn right knee on September 4, 1974. He reinjured the knee shortly before he was scheduled to join the royals 1975 spring camp and underwent surgery again in January. A late start and a season of hard work, determination and rehabilitation at Jacksonville followed instead of a jump to the American League. Even so, the Eau Claire, Wisconsin, native was confident that he would open the 1976 season with Kansas City.

"I went to spring training this year knowing that I would make the club as an extra outfielder," relates Poquette. "Whitey (Herzog) had never seen me play and didn't know my ability so I was determined to have a good spring. Since then everything has kind of fallen in place. I got an opportunity to play early and was fortunate enough to come in and do the job."

"Tom has really been a pleasant surprise," says Herzog. "We knew he was a fine defensive player, but his bat has been a big bonus. The thing that really makes Tom valuable is his attitude and hustle. He's one of those players who seems to spark the whole team."

Poquette received the opportunity to play on a daily basis on May 5 and promptly responded by molding an 11-game hitting streak. During the span he went 18-for-47 for a .383 mark that included five doubles, three triples and 11 runs batted in.

Poquette doesn't hesitate to pinpoint improvement at the plate as the key to his sudden big league success. Although a .300 hitter at Omaha in '74, he had never attracted as much attention with his bat as with his glove.

"I got tagged as a strong defensive player when I first started and it's always kind of overshadowed anything else I've done," Poquette says. "This is the first year that my offense has kind of caught up with my defense."

Charley Lau, the Royals' hitting coach, draws praise from Poquette for his role in the young outfielder's improved offensive play.

"Charley deserves most of the credit," says Poquette, who banged out five hits and tied a club record by scoring five runs June 15 at Detroit. "Charley has a theory that a good hitter has to be a tough out. You have to go with the pitch-- perform accordingto the situation.

"I was a pull hitter in the minor leagues and his theory didn't start to sink in until during the 1974 season at Omaha," he continues. "Now I've become a thinking hitter. I have a plan in my mind every time I go up to the plate. I'm ready to make adjustments according to the pitcher and I'm not just up there swinging."

Magnifying Poquette's offensive contributions has been his steady and sometimes eye-catching defensive work in the Royals' outfield. Despite his rising hitting fortunes, defense still remains the backbone of his rounded talents.

"I've always taken a lot of pride in my defensive ability," says Poquette. "Offense can be streaky, but defense is always there. That's what makes our club so strong. When the offense isn't there we're still winning because of sound defense and pitching."

Primarily a rightfielder throughout his career, this year tom has made the adjustment to leftfield where he combines talents with righthanded- hitting Jim Wohlford to give the Royals an exciting and productive duo. Although a relatively minor switch, Poquette says the move has dictated certain adjustments in his play.

"In rightfield you have to be continuously aggressive since runners are trying to go from first to third. You have the long throw so you really have to charge everything. The biggest thing I've had to learn in playing leftfield is not to be so aggressive."

Aggressiveness has always been a Poquette asset. So much a part of his game, in fact, that on June 22 his all-out effort sent chills through a Royals Stadium crowd. Racing into the corner trying to spear a drive off the bat of Chicago third baseman Kevin Bell, the Royals' outfielder crashed full-force into the leftfield wall. The impact knocked Poquette unconscious and resulted in a fractured left cheekbone, abrasions over the left eye and a serious concussion.

Even though forced out of the lineup once again due to injury, Poquette remains undaunted. He's faced too many roadblocks in the past to be derailed by a temporary setback.

"It's just one of those things that happens," he says. "I thought I was going to make the catch and really never thought about the wall.

Taylor, 2 more enter grid Hall

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Jim Taylor became the first player from the Green Bay Packer dynasty of the 1960s to join his coach, the late Vince Lombardi, in pro football's Hall of Fame Saturday.

To present him at the official ceremonies, the husky running back chose Marie Lombardi, widow of the coach, who was inducted into the Hall in 1971.

Also inducted Saturday during cermonies at the center were Ray Flaherty who coached the Washington Redskins during their most successful era of the 1930s and early 1940s and the late Len Ford, an outstanding offensive player in the All-America Football Conference before becoming a defensive star with the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

"I'm kind of pinch-hitting for the Italian with the big voice who can't be here," said Mrs. Lombardi whose voice sometimes wavered with emotion during her introduction.

"My husband didn't care about gimmicks. He said: 'Play with power and do what you do best again and again and again.' That was what Jim did. They say the Packers in those days had 'thunder and lightning.' Well, Jim provided the thunder," Mrs. Lombardi said.

Taylor who played for the Packers from 1958 to 1966 before ending his career in 1967, gained 8,597 yards rushing and compiled more than 1,000 yards on the ground for five straight seasons.

Dring his acceptance speech, Taylor paid tribute to his former coach. "He instilled in me an admiration for discipline," Taylor told the crowd, which included many previous inductees and NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"He (Lombardi) gave me a leadership type of philosophy both in my personal life and as a football player," he said. "It wasn't until after I was away from him that I really appreciated it."

Flaherty in his speech called for compromise between today's owners and players in order to preserve the game.

"There is too much time and too much money being spent on lawyers and in the court," he said. "There is plenty for everyone if it is properly distributed.

"There must be a compromise so players can continue to come here to Canton."

Ford, who died of a heart attack in 1972, was described by Theordore McIntyre, his coach at Armstrong High School in Washington D.C., as "a boy who dreamed of football instead of cowboys and Indians."

His award was accepted by his daughter, Deborah Ford, who concluded her acceptance for her father by saying: "Daddy, you've made it."

Area motorists injured in accidents

One person received moderate injuries and three others received minor injuries in three seperate accidents Saturday.

Jack Edward Ross, 35, of Manila, Ark. received moderate injuries in a one vehicle accident at 12:05 a.m. Saturday on highway 108 three miles south of Arbyrd.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred when the Ross pickup truck south bound ran off the east side of the road and struck a tree.

Ross was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

In a one car accident at 5:45 p.m. Saturday on route T 15 miles northeast of Poplar Bluff Guy R. Trimble, 25, of Poplar Bluff driver of the car and a passenger Shelia Trimble, 24, of Poplar Bluff, received minor injuries and were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when the axle of the northbound Trimble car broke causing the car to leave the road and go down an embankment and strike a tree.

A two car accident at 6:30 p.m. on highway 61, 1 and two-tenths of a mile north of route HH resulted in minor injuries to Georganna Rose Bennett, 41, of Benton route one, a passenger in a car driven south by Floyd Jerome Klipfel, 29, of Oran, route one.

The patrol reported the accident occurred when a car driven south by James Edward Glastetter, 26, of Benton route one slowed for a car making a left turn and the Klipfel car struck him in the rear.

buildings and farmland located on Cape Airport on ground owned by the city of Cape Girardeau, should also be taxes. The basis for taxes should be the same.

PINNELL: To the best of my knowledge, the laws of our country and our state specifically state that one governing body cannot tax another governing body. This, of course, would preclude the possibility of Scott County taxing another county. (b) Such companies, to my knowledge, currently pay personal property taxes to Scott County. They pay no real estate taxes because they are not owners of real estate in Scott County.

VANCE: I would be agreeable to what laws on this subject say. As I understand it, currently political subdivisions are not charged property tax as such. As you know, Scott County is presently involved in a rather complicated and entangled legal battle that indirectly and directly relates to the above question. Let me say that I think Scott County will attain second class status in the near future and this will do much to relieve the situation. I am, of course, for the improvement and development of Scott County. Naturally, I think we should require all those who engage in free enterprise and profiteering from the system to pay their fair share.

HOUCHIN: As I understand the law, there is a constitutional prohibition against one government taxing the property of another. It is not necessarily how I feel but I think that as assessor I will have to follow the mandate of the law. I feel that all individually owned property should be subject to assessment regardless of where it is located. This would include property owned by individuals on the Cape Airport, or any state owned real estate.

QUESTION: Do you feel that Scott County residents are being taxed according to the law in Missouri? Are they paying lower taxes, or are they paying higher taxes than they should be? What is the basis for assessing property value and taxes, and how would you go about making these evaluations?

INMAN (a) yes; (b) Our tax rates are set by the voters; (c) 33 and one - third per cent of its true value; (d) square footage basis.

HEEB: Yes, the county court sets the budget to determine the sum needed. There are several different methods for appraisal of property. The most common method used is square footage and condition of property.

PINNELL: I most certainly do feel that Scott County residents are being taxed cording to Missouri law. The basis for property evaluation for assessment purposes is provided by the Missouri State Tax Commission, and the tax rates themselves are established by a vote of the people. To the best of my knowledge, the law states that real estate assessments will be one-third of true value. As is currently practiced, I would evaluate real estate on a square footage basis, and, of course, use the published manual provided by the Missouri Tax Commission for the evaluation of personal property.

VANCE: (a) Yes, I feel the citizens are being lawfully taxes. In answering the second part of the question, I would say there is a general disagreement in some quarters. For the past few years, the county has been certified as having an assessment ratio of 30 per cent of real value, however, in a report released by Missouri Auditor George Lehr, earlier this year, Scott County was listed as having an assessment ratio of 15.8 per cent of real value. However, this does not mean that Scott County is paying less taxes than other counties because most other counties were re evaluated in the same manner. I think there will have to be a better system of updating available data to make assessments more realistic and prevent sudden fluctuations in values that cause hardships on people. (b) As I understand it, currently buildings are given a value per square foot seperated by the type (commercial or residential) and land by appraised sale value. As to my procedure for making these evaluations, I would study the current method and make acceptably changes which would improve equitability.

HOUCHIN: I feel that assessments in Scott County are fair and just. I have no knowledge that we are paying more than our share of taxes. I have not had the opportunity to examine other tax rolls. If elected I will look into the matter.

QUESTION: In the event a taxpayer thinks taxes are being wrongfully assessed, what would be your procedure for appeal?

INMAN: Set out by law. Board of Equalization and Board of Appeal.

HEEB: I am willing to listen and earnestly solicit any suggestions or ideas in applying the Missouri property tax laws equally to all tax payers.

PINNELL: In the event of a grievance, the taxpayers is provided with a board of equalization, and subsequent to this avenue, a Board of Appeals. These boards are made up of all three members of the county court, the county assessor, and the county surveyor. Should a tax payer still feel that he has been wrongfully treated, he may appeal his case to the Missouri Tax Commission.

VANCE: I will be a full time servant of the county. I would encourage any and all of the patrons of the county to visit my office (or I should say, their office) in the event a misunderstanding arises. I would ask the party or parties to come in and talk with me, if it were a misunderstanding. I think we could probably solve the problem through intelligent discourse. This is certainly not to be construed to mean that I would make capricious or arbitrary settlements with any irate or disident person. Of course every citizen has the right to appeal to the board of equalization and I would be the first to advise them of this right.

HOUCHIN: I will advise the taxpayer that he has a right to appear before the board of equalization. This board meets annually at the court house in Benton to hear the taxpayer. I will personally examine carefully any and all complaints and try to correct any inequities.

QUESTION: Do you have any statement you would like to make.

INMAN: I ask for the votes and support of the voters of Scott County in the upcoming primary election on Aug. 3. I am a lifetime resident of Scott County and have served the citizens of Scott County in the capacity of deputy sheriff for over seven years and am presently a deputy sheriff. I have been a business man and have dealt in real estate and have just completed a course in real estate appraisal. I know the needs of the citizens of Scott County and will devote my full time to the assessor's office if elected. I will continue to fight against the increase in valuation being placed against property in Scott County by the Missouri State Tax Commission by methods that are applied in metropolitan areas, but do not apply in our county. I want the job, I need the job, I have time for the job, I will have no other business interest, and I will have no other source of income.

HEEB: I will devote my entire time and knowledge to the office of Scott County Assessor. With my two years experience as deputy assessor of Scott County, residents will be well represented in all meetings and correspondence with the state tax commission.

PINNELL: If elected to the office of assessor of Scott County, I would certainly not use it as a stepping stone, but would want to keep this office, if possible, until my retirement. And, I need the job, and I feel I would be qualified to handle the job, I would certainly give it my attention and my time and try to do a good job for the tax payers of Scott County.

VANCE: I want to serve as assessor because I am interested in people and Scott County affairs and am willing to get involved. I believe that control of our taxes should be kept local and that our assessments should be maintained on a low scale, always adjusting the tax rate downward to compensate for enforced higher rate of evaluations. Congenial communications and mutual understanding is the key to every undertaking, and is especially true when you affect a person financially. I pledge to be open minded and to apply my managerial resources toward sound policies and satisfactory acceptance of the assessors business by the people of Scott County.

HOUCHIN: I pledge to give the office all the attention and the hours needed to run a good office efficiently. I will be on hand to talk to anyone who has problems with assessments, or I will go by and see them. I don't foresee any radical changes from the way the office is being run by the current assessor I've had a few people tell me they were concerned about mailing out tax statements, and if more people are against it, I will be willing to look into having the man go around and call on everyone, if there is not too much difference in the cost. I think I am qualified and will make a good assessor.

'NO WAY' will he accept the vice-presidential spot on the Republican ticket. "Basic differences" bar his running with President Ford, says Ronald Reagan, who believes that if he doesn't take the presidential nomination, "I could accomplish far more on the outside."

Area motorists injured in accidents

One person received moderate injuries and three others received minor injuries in three seperate accidents Saturday.

Jack Edward Ross, 35, of Manila, Ark. received moderate injuries in a one vehicle accident at 12:05 a.m. Saturday on highway 108 three miles south of Arbyrd.

The highway patrol said the accident occurred when the Ross pickup truck south bound ran off the east side of the road and struck a tree.

Ross was taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

In a one car accident at 5:45 p.m. Saturday on route T 15 miles northeast of Poplar Bluff Guy R. Trimble, 25, of Poplar Bluff driver of the car and a passenger Shelia Trimble, 24, of Poplar Bluff, received minor injuries and were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when the axle of the northbound Trimble car broke causing the car to leave the road and go down an embankment and strike a tree.

A two car accident at 6:30 p.m. on highway 61, 1 and two-tenths of a mile north of route HH resulted in minor injuries to Georganna Rose Bennett, 41, of Benton route one, a passenger in a car driven south by Floyd Jerome Klipfel, 29, of Oran, route one.

The patrol reported the accident occurred when a car driven south by James Edward Glastetter, 26, of Benton route one slowed for a car making a left turn and the Klipfel car struck him in the rear.

buildings and farmland located on Cape Airport on ground owned by the city of Cape Girardeau, should also be taxes. The basis for taxes should be the same.

PINNELL: To the best of my knowledge, the laws of our country and our state specifically state that one governing body cannot tax another governing body. This, of course, would preclude the possibility of Scott County taxing another county. (b) Such companies, to my knowledge, currently pay personal property taxes to Scott County. They pay no real estate taxes because they are not owners of real estate in Scott County.

VANCE: I would be agreeable to what laws on this subject say. As I understand it, currently political subdivisions are not charged property tax as such. As you know, Scott County is presently involved in a rather complicated and entangled legal battle that indirectly and directly relates to the above question. Let me say that I think Scott County will attain second class status in the near future and this will do much to relieve the situation. I am, of course, for the improvement and development of Scott County. Naturally, I think we should require all those who engage in free enterprise and profiteering from the system to pay their fair share.

HOUCHIN: As I understand the law, there is a constitutional prohibition against one government taxing the property of another. It is not necessarily how I feel but I think that as assessor I will have to follow the mandate of the law. I feel that all individually owned property should be subject to assessment regardless of where it is located. This would include property owned by individuals on the Cape Airport, or any state owned real estate.

QUESTION: Do you feel that Scott County residents are being taxed according to the law in Missouri? Are they paying lower taxes, or are they paying higher taxes than they should be? What is the basis for assessing property value and taxes, and how would you go about making these evaluations?

INMAN (a) yes; (b) Our tax rates are set by the voters; (c) 33 and one - third per cent of its true value; (d) square footage basis.

HEEB: Yes, the county court sets the budget to determine the sum needed. There are several different methods for appraisal of property. The most common method used is square footage and condition of property.

PINNELL: I most certainly do feel that Scott County residents are being taxed cording to Missouri law. The basis for property evaluation for assessment purposes is provided by the Missouri State Tax Commission, and the tax rates themselves are established by a vote of the people. To the best of my knowledge, the law states that real estate assessments will be one-third of true value. As is currently practiced, I would evaluate real estate on a square footage basis, and, of course, use the published manual provided by the Missouri Tax Commission for the evaluation of personal property.

VANCE: (a) Yes, I feel the citizens are being lawfully taxes. In answering the second part of the question, I would say there is a general disagreement in some quarters. For the past few years, the county has been certified as having an assessment ratio of 30 per cent of real value, however, in a report released by Missouri Auditor George Lehr, earlier this year, Scott County was listed as having an assessment ratio of 15.8 per cent of real value. However, this does not mean that Scott County is paying less taxes than other counties because most other counties were re evaluated in the same manner. I think there will have to be a better system of updating available data to make assessments more realistic and prevent sudden fluctuations in values that cause hardships on people. (b) As I understand it, currently buildings are given a value per square foot seperated by the type (commercial or residential) and land by appraised sale value. As to my procedure for making these evaluations, I would study the current method and make acceptably changes which would improve equitability.

HOUCHIN: I feel that assessments in Scott County are fair and just. I have no knowledge that we are paying more than our share of taxes. I have not had the opportunity to examine other tax rolls. If elected I will look into the matter.

QUESTION: In the event a taxpayer thinks taxes are being wrongfully assessed, what would be your procedure for appeal?

INMAN: Set out by law. Board of Equalization and Board of Appeal.

HEEB: I am willing to listen and earnestly solicit any suggestions or ideas in applying the Missouri property tax laws equally to all tax payers.

PINNELL: In the event of a grievance, the taxpayers is provided with a board of equalization, and subsequent to this avenue, a Board of Appeals. These boards are made up of all three members of the county court, the county assessor, and the county surveyor. Should a tax payer still feel that he has been wrongfully treated, he may appeal his case to the Missouri Tax Commission.

VANCE: I will be a full time servant of the county. I would encourage any and all of the patrons of the county to visit my office (or I should say, their office) in the event a misunderstanding arises. I would ask the party or parties to come in and talk with me, if it were a misunderstanding. I think we could probably solve the problem through intelligent discourse. This is certainly not to be construed to mean that I would make capricious or arbitrary settlements with any irate or disident person. Of course every citizen has the right to appeal to the board of equalization and I would be the first to advise them of this right.

HOUCHIN: I will advise the taxpayer that he has a right to appear before the board of equalization. This board meets annually at the court house in Benton to hear the taxpayer. I will personally examine carefully any and all complaints and try to correct any inequities.

QUESTION: Do you have any statement you would like to make.

INMAN: I ask for the votes and support of the voters of Scott County in the upcoming primary election on Aug. 3. I am a lifetime resident of Scott County and have served the citizens of Scott County in the capacity of deputy sheriff for over seven years and am presently a deputy sheriff. I have been a business man and have dealt in real estate and have just completed a course in real estate appraisal. I know the needs of the citizens of Scott County and will devote my full time to the assessor's office if elected. I will continue to fight against the increase in valuation being placed against property in Scott County by the Missouri State Tax Commission by methods that are applied in metropolitan areas, but do not apply in our county. I want the job, I need the job, I have time for the job, I will have no other business interest, and I will have no other source of income.

HEEB: I will devote my entire time and knowledge to the office of Scott County Assessor. With my two years experience as deputy assessor of Scott County, residents will be well represented in all meetings and correspondence with the state tax commission.

PINNELL: If elected to the office of assessor of Scott County, I would certainly not use it as a stepping stone, but would want to keep this office, if possible, until my retirement. And, I need the job, and I feel I would be qualified to handle the job, I would certainly give it my attention and my time and try to do a good job for the tax payers of Scott County.

VANCE: I want to serve as assessor because I am interested in people and Scott County affairs and am willing to get involved. I believe that control of our taxes should be kept local and that our assessments should be maintained on a low scale, always adjusting the tax rate downward to compensate for enforced higher rate of evaluations. Congenial communications and mutual understanding is the key to every undertaking, and is especially true when you affect a person financially. I pledge to be open minded and to apply my managerial resources toward sound policies and satisfactory acceptance of the assessors business by the people of Scott County.

HOUCHIN: I pledge to give the office all the attention and the hours needed to run a good office efficiently. I will be on hand to talk to anyone who has problems with assessments, or I will go by and see them. I don't foresee any radical changes from the way the office is being run by the current assessor I've had a few people tell me they were concerned about mailing out tax statements, and if more people are against it, I will be willing to look into having the man go around and call on everyone, if there is not too much difference in the cost. I think I am qualified and will make a good assessor.

'NO WAY' will he accept the vice-presidential spot on the Republican ticket. "Basic differences" bar his running with President Ford, says Ronald Reagan, who believes that if he doesn't take the presidential nomination, "I could accomplish far more on the outside."

GM among the illustrated

By CROCKETT SCOTT

An Indianapolis stockbroker recently pointed to such blue chip issues as Squibb, Standard Brands and General Motors in illustrating the long- term fears of the investor.

Squibb, rated A plus by Standard & Poor's, dipped to 8⅛ a few years ago and rose to a high of 57 or 58. During 1975 and 1976 the stock has traded from a high of 41½ to a low of 24⅜ and has a current price of 31-32.

Earnings have moved up from $1.44 during 19751 to $1.60 in 1972, $1.80 for 1973, $1.98 in 1974 and then apparently flattened out at $2.18 per share for 1975 and 1976 (latter year estimated).

Diversified in drugs, cosmetics, candy and food, with $137 million in cash, Squibb has been a top name in the nation for decades. And, according to the Indianapolis customers man, should be a "safe" investment.

Yet, he noted, "look at the range from 8 to 57. You could have lost your shirt unless you knew when to get in and when to get out. Capital gain may be in the offing; but when; and how long will you have to wait?"

"Actually, the stock could go down before it starts back up."

Standard Brands, also rated A plus, dipped to 8 or 9 a few years ago. Currently, the stock trades around 35 or 36. Its recent year high was 40 a few months ago.

Bellweather General Motors, trading around 69-70, has a recent year range of 28 to 113-114.

Buying land or rental real estate, suggested the man from Indianapolis, would provide more sure capital gain, probably no fluctuation except to the upside and very likely a higher percentage yield than any of these blue chip stocks.

But, if the market is your forte, he concluded, search for the issue selling below market, which has a chance for an upward move.

The equity of Colwell Co., a firm engaged in mortgage loans and construction loans, could in the opinion of some Nashville Securities and Exchange Commission registered equity analysts, have long- term capital gains possibilities.

They caution, however, that this American exchange listed stock has moved up from about 2 to 3 in 1975 and that it might ease from the current 5-6 before starting again to the upside (which, of course, it might not do).

A significant factor about the stock, which intrigues some analysts, is that it sold up into the low 30's a few years ago. Another is that the construction industry has been in the doldrums for some time and in the normal course of events, "things should get better."

Colwell's earnings for the past 12 months are estimated by Standard & Poor's at 37 cents a share, as of last March (your stockbroker could obtain and update, of course).

The firm was in deficit during 1974, losing 86 cents per share; yet it earned $1.81 for 1971 and $2.01 in 1972, dropping to 22 cents during 1973.

Equity per share is estimated by standard & Poor's as of 9-30-75 at $14.86.

In Chicago, some SEC-registered equity analysts look with favor upon American Sterilizer, trading on the big board around 7-8.

Rated A-minus by Standard & Poor's, the stock has been paying a dividend since 1914.

American Sterilizer makes sterilization equipment and other hospital equipment and is one of the best- known producerers in its field.

Various Chicago analysts suggest that the nature of the firm's business makes its dollar volume virtually recession proof. American Sterilizer's common, of course, rises and falls as do most all equity shares.

The recent year range is 3½ to 21¾, and earnings have been rather flat, from 65 cents a share to 79 cents back in 1973. Yield is around four per cent. For the long term, however, there could be prospects for capital gain, believe some Chicago analysts.

Unit to locate in New Madrid

Lease is completed for nursing home

NEW MADRID — James R. "Bob" Blades, president of Missouri Housing Associates Inc., has announced that details have been completed on a lease for a 60-bed nursing home to be located in New Madrid.

The lease has been entered with Health Projects Inc. of Poplar Bluff.

Blades said the project has been actively pursued, but because of numerous bureaucratic requirements it has taken more time than originally thought.

Technicalities have prevented the start of construction but these have been resolved and the project should be under way shortly, Blades said.

The nursing home will be of brick construction and will comply with the life safety code requirement for participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

The facility is badly needed and many elderly New Madrid County residents must leave the county to find nursing home facilities, Blades said.

A meeting was held this week by Blades, Sam Hunter, Bob Hedgepath and Bill French of New Madrid and representatives of Health Projects, Inc. to discuss the current status of the project.

Don Bedell, president of Health Projects, Inc., said approximately 45 persons would be employed at the home. He said he is anxious to begin construction.

Health Projects vice president Richard Montgomery said he and the architect will be reviewing site conditions in the near future.

Manditory retirement discussed

Employers may be billed

ST. LOUIS — Missouri employers could be faced with a bill for $62,308,400 in the next two years because of a recent decision by the Missouri Labor and Industrial Relations Commission, according to a study made by the Associated Industries of Missouri.

AIM prepared the study after the industrial commission reversed itself in late 1975 by ruling that individuals retiring under a mandatory retirement system would be eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits in addition to their regular retirement benefits.

The case involved an employe who retired at the age of 65 under a mandatory retirement plan. The retirement age of 65 was negotiated with a labor union.

According to the Commission, any individual retiring under a mandatory retirement plan does not necessarily leave his job voluntarily.

The commission stated at the time of the ruling that "the claimant had no choice in the matter of his retirement, since all employes were forced to retire when they reached the mandatory age."

The association believes that because the claimant was a member of a union which acted on his behalf when it signed a contract with the employer specifying that retirement was mandatory at age 65, the claimant, in effect, signed the same contract. He therefore left voluntarily.

The study of the association's membership showed that the average unemployment compensation benefits for retired individuals would be $1,925 over a 52- week period with an estimated 32,368 individuals eligible for the benefits through 1977 and part of 1978. This represents approximately 1.7 per cent of Missouri's total current employment.

The taxes paid into the Employment Security Trust fund are paid entirely by employers on the first $4,5000 of each employe's wages.

Missouri law requires that any pension benefits be deducted from unemployment benefits which are not to exceed $85 a week. The Employment Security Law also requires individuals to actively seek and be available for work.

Chester P. Hoevel, executive vice president of Associated Industries said, "This decision was wrong and it is an abuse of Missouri's Employment Security Law. It will cost Missouri employers millions of dollars."

Hoevel added that the association is strongly opposed to the ruling and will join in an attempt to have the decision overturned. He indicated that if this attempt fails, the association will try to have legislation passed during the next Missouri General Assembly.

He said, "Missouri law was not intended to support individuals on retirement but was meant as a means to help those individuals laid off their jobs temporarily until they could become re-employed."

Associated Industries of Missouri is an organization of approximately 950 employers throughout the state, committed to the growth and development of Missouri's business community.

Efficient way to move grain

The modern, efficient way to move grain: a PTO tractor and the new "Tractor-Vac" pneumatic conveyor. The portable PTO Tractor-vac moves grain from farm truck to dryer ... to bin ... to silo ... to truck ... to railcar ... to anywhere. Without shoveling. Without dust. Takes its power from any 1,000 revolutions per minute PTO tractor with 75 horsepower at the shaft. Rated capacity for wheat is 1,000 to 1,200 bushels per hour; for U.S. grade No. 2 corn, the capacity is 1,000 to 1,300 bushels per hour. A new product from Dunbark Kapple of Batavia, Ill., the world's leading manufacturer of portable pneumatic conveyors.

Tractor-Vac aids in moving grain

BATAVIA, Ill. — A power take-off tractor and the new "Tractor-Vac" pneumatic conveyor are now the efficient, modern way to move grain on any farm. Without shoveling. Without dust.

The new, portable PTO Tractor- Vac moves grain from farm truck to dryer to bin, to silo, to truck, to railcar, to anywhere. It takes its power from any 1,000 revolutions per minute PTO tractor with 75 horsepower at the shaft. It is the most powerful VAC ever specifically designed and built for farm use. And, it is portable so it can be pulled wherever there's work to be done.

This new workhorse performs a wide variety of grain pickup and transfer operatioons quickly and easily. The original cost is low, so it pays for itself quickly. Then, a Tractor-Vac continues to make more and more profits by moving more and more grain.

Capacity rating of the Tractor- Vac varies with specific conditions, conveying distances and type of grains or pellets handled. Under normmal circumstances, rated capacity for wheat is 1,000 to 1,200 bushels per hour. For U.S. grade No. 2 corn, rated capacity is 1,100 to 1,300 bushels per hour.

Operating principle of the Tractor-Vac has been proven in both farm and non-farm applications throughout the world. Grain or pelleted feed is moved from intake to discharge entirely by air flow. Material completely bypasses the blower and gently drops by gravity through a separator into an air lock, where air flow again picks up the grain and conveys it to the discharge point.

Highly maneuverable, the Tractor- Vac can be pulled wherever there's work to be done, and it permits hauling in bulk and loading into storage binds or hopper-feeders, eliminates the need for brooms and shovels and handles grain without creating dust in bin while emptying.

A Tractor-Vac can also be pressed into service in many areas around country elevators. It cleans elevator pits, boots and head-houses. It moves grains to pit or transfers without cracking grain and picks up grain stored in piles in the field.

Tractor-Vac is the latest product of Dunbar Kapple of Batavia, the world's leading manufacturer of portable pneumatic conveyors. Through more than 25 years of experience, Dunbar Kapple has earned an enviable, worldwide reputation for dependability in handling millions of tons of grains, chemicals and food in more than 70 countries.

Lorenz honored for sales

Dwayne C. Lorenz, chartered life underwriter, agent for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Sikeston, was honored July 12 as winner of the "Bull o' The Woods" trophy of the T. Ronald Hahs, CLU, District Agency. Hahs presented the award to Lorenz at an agency outing at Barkley Lodge in Lake Barkley State Resort Park near Canton, Ky.

The "Bull o' The Woods' award is presented semi-annually to the agent in the district who increases his sales by the largest percentage over the previous six months. Lorenz's sales were 178.23 per cent of his previous total.

He was also honored as one of the company's pacemakers for the month of June and will be recognized for his achievement at the Northwestern annual meeting in Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 1-4.

Malone, Hyde moves to Florida

MEMPHIS — Malone & Hyde's request to purchase certain assets of the wholesale grocery division of Hill Bros, Inc., Miami, Fl. has been approved by the Federal Trade Commission. J.R. Hyde III, president of Malone & Hyde, Inc., has approved.

Hyde said Malone & Hyde will immediately institute procedures for the closing in order to begin operations as soon as possible in the Florida area paresently served by Hill Bros. Inc.

Will entertain at annual mee ng

The LeFevres, a well-known gospel singing group from Atlanta, Ga, will provide entertain at the 39th annual meeting of scott- New Madrid- Mississippi Electric Cooperative, which will be held Aug. 3, 1976 at 7:30 p.m. at Sikeston High School. The LeFevres have appeared in the southeast Missouri are area several times. The main purpose of the annual meeting is to elect four directors to serve three- year terms on the board of directors and give the membership a financial report of the operations of the cooperative for the past year.

Manditory retirement discussed

Employers may be billed

ST. LOUIS — Missouri employers could be faced with a bill for $62,308,400 in the next two years because of a recent decision by the Missouri Labor and Industrial Relations Commission, according to a study made by the Associated Industries of Missouri.

AIM prepared the study after the industrial commission reversed itself in late 1975 by ruling that individuals retiring under a mandatory retirement system would be eligible to receive unemployment insurance benefits in addition to their regular retirement benefits.

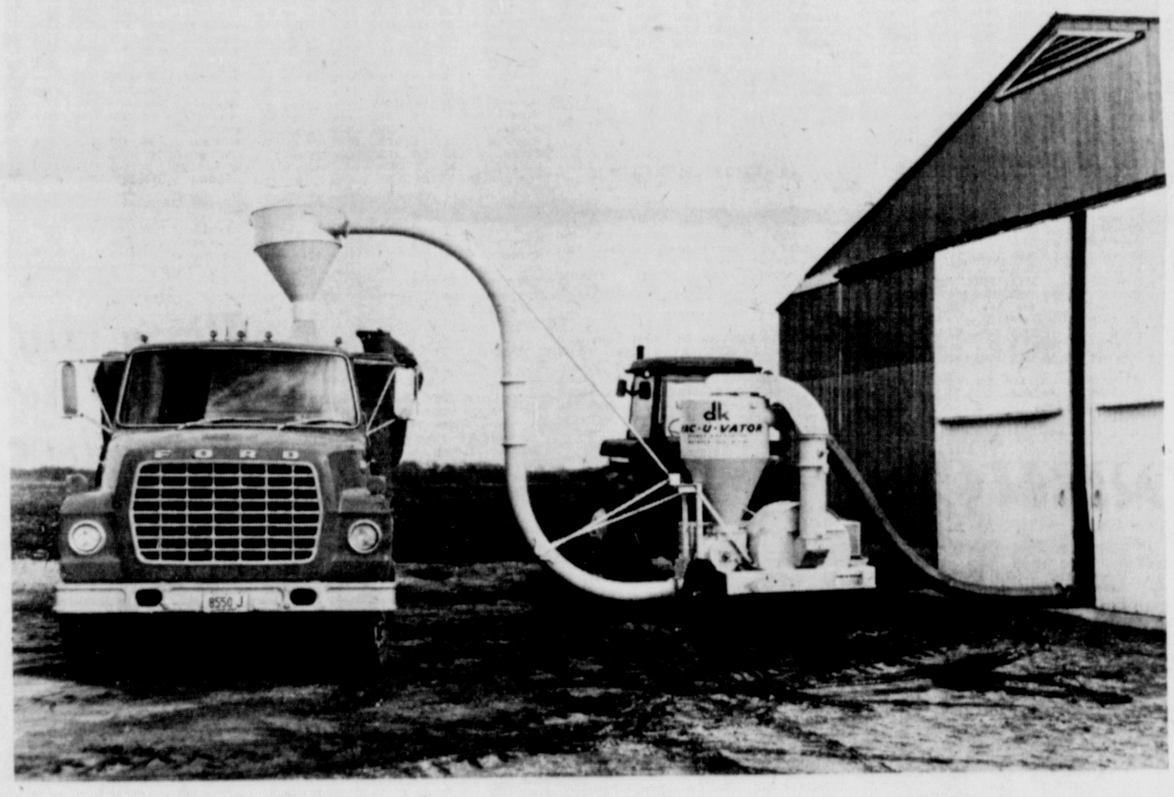
Missouri law requires that any pension benefits be deducted from unemployment benefits which are not to exceed $85 a week. The Employment Security Law also requires individuals to actively seek and be available for work.

Chester P. Hoevel, executive vice president of Associated Industries said, "This decision was wrong and it is an abuse of Missouri's Employment Security Law. It will cost Missouri employers millions of dollars."

Hoevel added that the association is strongly opposed to the ruling and will join in an attempt to have the decision overturned. He indicated that if this attempt fails, the association will try to have legislation passed during the next Missouri General Assembly.

He said, "Missouri law was not intended to support individuals on retirement but was meant as a means to help those individuals laid off their jobs temporarily until they could become re-employed."

Associated Industries of Missouri is an organization of approximately 950 employers throughout the state, committed to the growth and development of Missouri's business community.



Efficient way to move grain

The modern, efficient way to move grain: a PTO tractor and the new "Tractor-Vac" pneumatic conveyor. The portable PTO Tractor-vac moves grain from farm truck to dryer ... to bin ... to silo ... to truck ... to railcar ... to anywhere. Without shoveling. Without dust. Takes its power from any 1,000 revolutions per minute PTO tractor with 75 horsepower at the shaft. Rated capacity for wheat is 1,000 to 1,200 bushels per hour; for U.S. grade No. 2 corn, the capacity is 1,000 to 1,300 bushels per hour. A new product from Dunbark Kapple of Batavia, Ill., the world's leading manufacturer of portable pneumatic conveyors.

Tractor-Vac aids in moving grain

BATAVIA, Ill. — A power take-off tractor and the new "Tractor-Vac" pneumatic conveyor are now the efficient, modern way to move grain on any farm. Without shoveling. Without dust.

The new, portable PTO Tractor- Vac moves grain from farm truck to dryer to bin, to silo, to truck, to railcar, to anywhere. It takes its power from any 1,000 revolutions per minute PTO tractor with 75 horsepower at the shaft. It is the most powerful VAC ever specifically designed and built for farm use. And, it is portable so it can be pulled wherever there's work to be done.

This new workhorse performs a wide variety of grain pickup and transfer operatioons quickly and easily. The original cost is low, so it pays for itself quickly. Then, a Tractor-Vac continues to make more and more profits by moving more and more grain.

Capacity rating of the Tractor- Vac varies with specific conditions, conveying distances and type of grains or pellets handled. Under normmal circumstances, rated capacity for wheat is 1,000 to 1,200 bushels per hour. For U.S. grade No. 2 corn, rated capacity is 1,100 to 1,300 bushels per hour.

Operating principle of the Tractor-Vac has been proven in both farm and non-farm applications throughout the world. Grain or pelleted feed is moved from intake to discharge entirely by air flow. Material completely bypasses the blower and gently drops by gravity through a separator into an air lock, where air flow again picks up the grain and conveys it to the discharge point.

Highly maneuverable, the Tractor- Vac can be pulled wherever there's work to be done, and it permits hauling in bulk and loading into storage binds or hopper-feeders, eliminates the need for brooms and shovels and handles grain without creating dust in bin while emptying.

A Tractor-Vac can also be pressed into service in many areas around country elevators. It cleans elevator pits, boots and head-houses. It moves grains to pit or transfers without cracking grain and picks up grain stored in piles in the field.

Tractor-Vac is the latest product of Dunbar Kapple of Batavia, the world's leading manufacturer of portable pneumatic conveyors. Through more than 25 years of experience, Dunbar Kapple has earned an enviable, worldwide reputation for dependability in handling millions of tons of grains, chemicals and food in more than 70 countries.

Lorenz honored for sales

Dwayne C. Lorenz, chartered life underwriter, agent for Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Sikeston, was honored July 12 as winner of the "Bull o' The Woods" trophy of the T. Ronald Hahs, CLU, District Agency. Hahs presented the award to Lorenz at an agency outing at Barkley Lodge in Lake Barkley State Resort Park near Canton, Ky.

The "Bull o' The Woods' award is presented semi-annually to the agent in the district who increases his sales by the largest percentage over the previous six months. Lorenz's sales were 178.23 per cent of his previous total.

He was also honored as one of the company's pacemakers for the month of June and will be recognized for his achievement at the Northwestern annual meeting in Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 1-4.

A PROTEST OF DIPLOMATS

It is not easy , sometimes, to be a United States Foreign Service Officer. It can even be fatal, especially in these days when political terrorists are looked upon by some governments almost as heroes.

Earlier this month, the American Foreign Service Association (AFSA) protested to President Ford because of his meeting on June 10 with Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiri. The protest occurred because two years ago Numeiri ordered the release of eight Palestinian terrorists who killed American Ambassador Cleo Noel and his deputy mission chief George C. Moore in March 1973, after holding them prisoner in the Saudi Arabian Embassy for 60 hours. Although the killers were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment, Numeiri bowed to heavy pressure to treat them as Arab heroes. They claimed their acts were political and not criminal.

AFSA said President Ford's reception of Numeiri represented "the failure by the U.S. government to act strongly enough against those governments which support, tolerate, or harbor terrorists who attack diplomatic or other American citizens engaged in peaceful pursuits." AFSA opposes resumption of normal diplomatic relations and economic assistance to the Sudan unless the Sudanese apoligize for releasing the terrorists and give assurance that they will serve their full sentences.

It seems to us that this protest is well grounded. Even when allowing for the argument that incidents should not be allowed to disrupt permanently necessary diplomatic relations, the principle that political terrorism must not be rewarded should take precedence. If the U.S. is going to stand by its policy of non-negotiation with terrorists — which is what led to the deaths of the foreign service officers in the Sudan — then proper punishment should be insisted upon.

If international terrorism is ever to be brought under control, then those governments which sanction or appease it must be forced to face the consequences.

There is no place in today's world for weakness. But there is also no place in today's world for recklessness. We cannot act rashly with the nuclear weapons that could destroy us all. The only course is to press with all our mind and all our will to make sure, doubly sure, that these weapons are never used.

GENERATING A PROBLEM?

While nobody is counting on windmills ever to become a major generator of electricity for the United States, the vast, untapped potential of wind power is one of the "alternate" energy sources seriously being investigated.

A 100-kilowatt windmill — technically, a wind turbine generator — has been built by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration near Sandusky, Ohio, using two blades resembling airplane wings mounted atop a 100-foot tower. The blades have a total diameter of 125 feet. This prototype is expected to lead to even larger generators in the 1980s.

If it does, and if the countryside becomes dotted with giant windmills, the result could be a multitude of latter-day Don Quixotes attacking them figuratively, if not actually. A large number of windmills could cause significant interference with television signals, says Thomas B. A. Senior, professor of electrical engineering at the University of Michigan and director of a research project looking into the possibility.

If a windmill is to be effective, he points out, it must be elevated, and to minimize transmission losses, it should be located close to the community receiving its power. Covered with metallic skin on a framework of girders, the blades could produce the same type of interference as a low-flying aircraft.

In fact, it might be worse, says Senior. Aircraft interference is a transient phenomenon; a windmill would be in a fixed location with its blades operating vertically, thus reflecting all forms of radio and TV transmission in the area.

The federal Energy Research and Development Administration thinks the problem is potentially real enough that it has furnished $112,000 to the University of Michigan project. One solution might be to develop composite or nonmetallic blades for the windmills in our future.

THONG ON THE OTHER FOOT

It has been a long time since the Japanese were considered to be mere copycats of Western technology. Now the shoe is on the other foot.

According to the country's Ministry of International Trade and Industry, there were 91 instances last year of foreigners deliberately copying Japanese designs, trademarks and other features, including radio receivers, automobile parts and cassette tape recorders. In some extreme cases, foreign products were patterned exactly after Japanese originals, even up to the name of manufacturer and production number.

Japan's own developing Asian neighbors were the worst offenders. Taiwan accounted for 37 cases, followed by Hong Kong and Korea.

THE WORLD'S BEST

In the last few years, major progress has been made toward achieving the highest quality medical care, with a minimal financial load on the individual. Through a unique blending of efforts by the private health insurance industry, the medical profession and government, the United States offers its citizens an efficient, comprehensive health care system.

"It is now recognized," reports Blue Shield, the largest U.S. private medical care organization, "that over 160 million Americans have some type of health care protection, the great majority of which adequately meets the needs of those who are covered. Nevertheless, there still are unmet needs which remain to be filled....At this particular time in our history, it is important that both the private sector and the government work responsibly to...(see that) those who need assistance be assured of the medical care they require....In achieving this goal of quality care for all Americans at a reasonable cost, the nearly half century of experience accumulated by Blue Shield and other carriers must be utilized."

Under any list of private health insurance industry accomplishments must come coverage for the potentially-catastrophic expense of major illness; establishment of peer review and care evaluation programs in certain areas and a prepaid group practice or health maintenance organization (HMO) system which, in some circumstances, has a beneficial influence on the cost and quality of health care. The average American is further insulated from high costs through private health insurance coverage paid in whole or part by employers.

Clearly, the U.S. health care system, featuring private carriers, provides the most effective method of low-cost, high-grade health service possible in a time of inflation and economic uncertainty. The alternative is a system of government-controlled, monopolistic health care that would be unacceptable to the American people.

DRUG ADS DON'T MAKE DRUG ADDICTS

Does exposure to proprietary drug advertising on television—headache nostrums, cold cures, etc.—encourage youths to experiment with illegal drugs?

The charge received widespread publicity a few years ago, as well as legislative concern in the form of Senate hearings. About that time, NBC undertook a study of the subject.

Over a three-year period, information was obtained five different times from the same lower and middle-income teenage boys, white and black, in two medium-sized cities. Additional information was obtained from their parents, friends and schools. The sample of boys was mostly 13 to 15 years of age when the study began—the years in which experimentation with drugs begins—and 16 to 18 when the last data were collected.

The results of the study have been reported in The Public Opinion Quarterly, published by Columbia University Press, and its overall conclusion is that exposure to TV drug advertising "neither directly nor indirectly leads young people to use illicit drugs."

In fact, the key finding of the study is that the greater the exposure to TV drug advertising, the less the use of illicit drugs. Independent research by others shows the same result, says NBC.

In addition to examining the direct connection between TV drug adveritsing and illicit drug use, the possibility that such advertising fosters an attitude of "readiness" to take drugs and an acceptance of "pill popping" and thus indirectly leads to illicit drugs was also investigated.

While there was a slight tendency for those boys who saw more TV drug advertising to use more proprietary drugs, the suspected second link in the chain was found not to exist. That is, the use of proprietary drugs does not lead to illicit drugs.

DISCUSSING MALPRACTICE

IT WAS ENCOURAGING to see the leaders of the medical and legal professions getting together in Memphis last weekend to discuss what they can do to gether to deal with the growing problems of medical malpractice and liability.

These are not just local problems. But if solutions to them are to be found, there needs to be more discussion of the sort the doctors and lawyers had here in all communities and all states. As the participants agreed, it is not just a matter of concern to the two professions which in the past have found themselves on opposite sides, but also to the patients who in the end must pay the cost of the ever-rising malpractice insurance, the costly court settlements and defensive medicine.

It is not an easy area in which to find solutions. There are rights on both sides which need to be protected. But the basic question is how those rights will be protected.

This seems to be largely an American phenomenon. Both the number of malpractice suits being brought and the size of the settlements apparently have grown tremendously in the U.S. in recent years, but not nearly so dramatically in other countries.

Canada, for example, is concerned about the problem. But the problem there is but a small fraction of what it is in the U.S. In the first six months of 1975, for example, the number of malpractice suits filed there was 126, compared with 100 in the same period a year before.

THE CANADIAN Medical Protective Association, which defends doctors when they are sued, has doubled its fees charged the 30,000 doctors it represents. But the increase was from only $100 a year to $200. In the U.S., doctors now pay as much as $30,000 a year for such insurance.

The Canadians get such bargain rates because settlements in malpractice suits there have been much smaller than they are in the United States. In 1974, the average was $13,386. The year before they averaged $9,561. Compare that with the increasing demand for settlements of $1 million in the United States.

How does Canada manage such spare settlements?

Canadians say a major reason is that malpractice cases in that country are almost always heard by a judge, rather than a judge and jury, and damages are always set by a judge. The Canadian courts usually hold that the evidence in malpractice cases is too complex for laymen to understand. Also, it is believed a judge will not be swayed by emotional arguments or acquiesce to demands for huge awards in the belief that "nobody really has to pay" for them because they are covered by insurance.

ANOTHER REASON given by the Canadians is the fact that lawyers there do not operate under the contingency fee arrangement which is common in the United States. Under that arrangement, the lawyer accepts a client with the understanding he will get a chunk—perhaps 25 to 40 per cent—of whatever award he is able to win for his client.

Justice Edson L. Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court, after speaking to a meeting of the American Trial Lawyers Association in Canada, said he believes removal of the contingency fee and trial by judges without juries would end the U.S. malpractice problem overnight.

He also warned the U.S. lawyers that unless they resolve their malpractice crisis jury awards will become so enormous that the cases will be taken away from the courts and settled by means of no-fault arbitration.

It was a warning that should be taken seriously.

Peace comes not from the absence of conflict in life but from the ability to cope with with it.–Anonymous

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter Justice

By Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter will advocate a new form of law and order, with more emphasis on prosecuting crooked business executives and corrupt government officials.

The Democratic presidential candidate has asked a task force to prepare a position paper incorporating his views on criminal justice. It is now in draft form, labeled "Not for Dissemination," with a final version weeks away.

Eight years ago, Richard Nixon made law and order the main theme of his campaign. He subsequently put John Mitchell and Richard Kleindienst in charge of law and order at the Justice Dept. Both have now been convicted of violating the laws they had sworn to uphold.

From the first, they were more enthusiastic about enforcing the laws against malefaction than malfeasance. They were quick, for example, to prosecute overzealous protesters who, in the name of peace, violated the peace.

But the Nixon prosecutors were slower to enforce the laws against white collar crimes. They ignored the laws against perjury, for example, when their own people found it expedient to fib.

This left the impression that there was a different justice for the rich and the poor, for the powerful and the weak. Carter will offer to put criminal justice back in balance by prosecuting businessmen and bureaucrats, congressmen and judges who violate the laws.

He would divert millions of dollars to cracking down on crimes "which cause great harm and property loss but which are pursued inadequately." The confidential draft adds pointedly: "These crimes would include business crimes and government corruption."

The draft, prepared by Washington atttorney Arnold Sagalyn, accuses both the Johnson and Nixon administrations of wasting much of the money the federal government spent to right crime.

"Anyone who promises to banish crime with a few federal dollars dooms such a program to failure," the paper declares. "The goal is misleading, naive and unrealistic."

A staggering $4.4 billion has been spent by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) to help local police forces. We have shown in a series of columns how most of this money has gone for such wasteful items as Dick Tracy weapons that don't work and luxury limousines for deputy sheriffs.

Carter would divert at least half of the LEAA funds to coping with crime in "our most dense living areas and ... other areas where violent crimes and burglary present the most danger to citizens."

Some anticrime funds should go into welfare, jobs, schooling, mental health and other programs that can prevent crime, the study urges. It adds: "Both the revenue-sharing funds and the federally controlled funds should be devoted primarily to underfunded portions of criminal justice, for example, prosecution, defense and court systems."

The study cautions, "The finest research products of recent years tell us much more about what does not work than what does work." To study the crime problem, the Carter task force recommends establishing novel semi-public, semi-private "corporations for crime and criminal research."

Footnote: Similar task forces are studying everything from agriculture to zoology for the Democratic candidate. Aides say they will be used in his campaign and, as they become more refined, as guidelines in his Administration if he should be elected President.

Washington Whirl: President Ford must take Ronald Reagan more seriously and treat him with more dignity if the White House wants Reagan's support in the future. Sources close to Reagan say he is bitter because the President "has treated him like a second-class citizen, like a second cousin." Reagan feels Ford has talked down to him in the campaign, regarding him with scorn and contempt. Nevertheless, Reagan could actively support Ford if the President wins the GOP nomination, provided Ford changes his tone and his tune.

— Ronald Reagan, the hero of the Republican right, is regarded as a left-winger in some quarters. A radical outfit known as the "Washington Observer," located oddly enough in Torrence, Calif., thinks Reagan is a Communist dupe. It is peddling a book called "The Counterfeit Candidate," which portrays the conservative Reagan as a dangerous leftist.

— Jimmy Carter isn't the only candidate to inject that old-time religion into the presidential campaign. At President Ford's campaign headquarters in Washington hangs a photo of the President, with the caption: "There is a higher power, by whatever means we honor him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy."

— Rep. Shirley Chisolm, D.-N.Y., was extolling the Democratic convention the other day on an elevator crowded with her colleagues. "There was such an atmosphere of love there," she enthused. "Everybody loved one another. It was wonderful." Came a voice from the rear: "Yeah, Shirley. All that love may have been wonderful in New York, but a lot of people have been getting in trouble for it here."

— Rep. Bella Abzug, D.-N.Y., has given up hope of winning the Democratic nomination to run for the Senate in New York. She has told friends privately that "the game is up," that ex-United Nations Ambassador Pat Moynihan appears to have the nomination sewn up.

WE BLEW IT

WASHINGTON — No matter what the Viking pictures show us concerning the planet Mars, there are still a number of people who believe that there are life-size Martians living there.

One of them is my friend Kampelman who reads every science fiction book he can get his hands on.

We were watching television together as Viking was transmitting the photos on the screen.

"They landed in the wrong place!" Kampelman shouted.

"What do you mean the wrong place?"

"They landed on the Chryse Plantia. No one goes there in the summertime."

"Why not?" I asked.

"Why didn't someone tell them?"

"Who knows what those crazy scientists are thinking. All they were interested in was finding a smooth place to set down the camera. They didn't care what kind of pictures they would get out of it."

"Where should they have landed if they wanted to see Martians?"

"Coney Chryse. That's where everyone goes on vacation. They not only have a nice beach but a fantastic amusement park."

"But there is no large body of water on Mars. Why would they go to the beach?"

"There used to be water there, billions of years ago, and when it dried up they decided to keep the beach up. They had a roller coaster there, and they didn't want to move it."

"I think you're putting me on."

"I am not," Kampelman said indignantly. "Look, suppose the Martians sent a camera to earth. They would look down and find the smoothest area to land it on. That would be the Sahara Desert. Do you think they'd learn anything about us by taking pictures of the Sahara?"

"But we surveyed the planet and we didn't see any buildings."

"They live in rocks," Kampelman said. "Everyone knows that."

"I didn't know it."

"Sure, they have the equivalent of a Housing and Urban Development Department there, just like we have in the states. But like HUD, they're so snarled up in red tape they've never gotten anything built."

"If they don't have any rain, maybe they don't need houses," I suggested.

"Actually, their rocks are very nice. They're warm at night and cool in the daytime. They also make great tax shelters."

"Kampelman, you seem to know more about Mars than anybody."

"It's common sense. If you lived on Mars you certainly wouldn't pitch a tent on some barren spot where nothing was happening. Viking isn't going to tell us anything about the planet that we don't know already."

"But suppose they find microorganisms or germs where Viking landed?" I said.

"It will prove my point. Martians aren't going to live where all the germs are. They're not dummies."

"So you feel if the Viking scientists had gambled and landed the TV cameras amongst the large rocks instead of on the desert, they would have gotten pictures of life-size Martians?"

"I know it. Some of them have been waiting to get on TV for a million years. They're really hams at heart. If Viking had landed next to one of their canals, the Martians would have sailed their tall ships up it and given us the greatest show ever seen on television."

"I guess we blew it," I said.

"We sure did. Turn to ABC. We might as well watch a ball game."

A PROTEST OF DIPLOMATS

It is not easy , sometimes, to be a United States Foreign Service Officer. It can even be fatal, especially in these days when political terrorists are looked upon by some governments almost as heroes.

Earlier this month, the American Foreign Service Association (AFSA) protested to President Ford because of his meeting on June 10 with Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiri. The protest occurred because two years ago Numeiri ordered the release of eight Palestinian terrorists who killed American Ambassador Cleo Noel and his deputy mission chief George C. Moore in March 1973, after holding them prisoner in the Saudi Arabian Embassy for 60 hours. Although the killers were convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment, Numeiri bowed to heavy pressure to treat them as Arab heroes. They claimed their acts were political and not criminal.

AFSA said President Ford's reception of Numeiri represented "the failure by the U.S. government to act strongly enough against those governments which support, tolerate, or harbor terrorists who attack diplomatic or other American citizens engaged in peaceful pursuits." AFSA opposes resumption of normal diplomatic relations and economic assistance to the Sudan unless the Sudanese apoligize for releasing the terrorists and give assurance that they will serve their full sentences.

It seems to us that this protest is well grounded. Even when allowing for the argument that incidents should not be allowed to disrupt permanently necessary diplomatic relations, the principle that political terrorism must not be rewarded should take precedence. If the U.S. is going to stand by its policy of non-negotiation with terrorists — which is what led to the deaths of the foreign service officers in the Sudan — then proper punishment should be insisted upon.

If international terrorism is ever to be brought under control, then those governments which sanction or appease it must be forced to face the consequences.

GENERATING A PROBLEM?

While nobody is counting on windmills ever to become a major generator of electricity for the United States, the vast, untapped potential of wind power is one of the "alternate" energy sources seriously being investigated.

A 100-kilowatt windmill — technically, a wind turbine generator — has been built by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration near Sandusky, Ohio, using two blades resembling airplane wings mounted atop a 100-foot tower. The blades have a total diameter of 125 feet. This prototype is expected to lead to even larger generators in the 1980s.

If it does, and if the countryside becomes dotted with giant windmills, the result could be a multitude of latter-day Don Quixotes attacking them figuratively, if not actually. A large number of windmills could cause significant interference with television signals, says Thomas B. A. Senior, professor of electrical engineering at the University of Michigan and director of a research project looking into the possibility.

If a windmill is to be effective, he points out, it must be elevated, and to minimize transmission losses, it should be located close to the community receiving its power. Covered with metallic skin on a framework of girders, the blades could produce the same type of interference as a low-flying aircraft.

In fact, it might be worse, says Senior. Aircraft interference is a transient phenomenon; a windmill would be in a fixed location with its blades operating vertically, thus reflecting all forms of radio and TV transmission in the area.

The federal Energy Research and Development Administration thinks the problem is potentially real enough that it has furnished $112,000 to the University of Michigan project. One solution might be to develop composite or nonmetallic blades for the windmills in our future.

THONG ON THE OTHER FOOT

It has been a long time since the Japanese were considered to be mere copycats of Western technology. Now the shoe is on the other foot.

According to the country's Ministry of International Trade and Industry, there were 91 instances last year of foreigners deliberately copying Japanese designs, trademarks and other features, including radio receivers, automobile parts and cassette tape recorders. In some extreme cases, foreign products were patterned exactly after Japanese originals, even up to the name of manufacturer and production number.

Japan's own developing Asian neighbors were the worst offenders. Taiwan accounted for 37 cases, followed by Hong Kong and Korea.

Canada, for example, is concerned about the problem. But the problem there is but a small fraction of what it is in the U.S. In the first six months of 1975, for example, the number of malpractice suits filed there was 126, compared with 100 in the same period a year before.

THE CANADIAN Medical Protective Association, which defends doctors when they are sued, has doubled its fees charged the 30,000 doctors it represents. But the increase was from only $100 a year to $200. In the U.S., doctors now pay as much as $30,000 a year for such insurance.

The Canadians get such bargain rates because settlements in malpractice suits there have been much smaller than they are in the United States. In 1974, the average was $13,386. The year before they averaged $9,561. Compare that with the increasing demand for settlements of $1 million in the United States.

How does Canada manage such spare settlements?

Canadians say a major reason is that malpractice cases in that country are almost always heard by a judge, rather than a judge and jury, and damages are always set by a judge. The Canadian courts usually hold that the evidence in malpractice cases is too complex for laymen to understand. Also, it is believed a judge will not be swayed by emotional arguments or acquiesce to demands for huge awards in the belief that "nobody really has to pay" for them because they are covered by insurance.

ANOTHER REASON given by the Canadians is the fact that lawyers there do not operate under the contingency fee arrangement which is common in the United States. Under that arrangement, the lawyer accepts a client with the understanding he will get a chunk—perhaps 25 to 40 per cent—of whatever award he is able to win for his client.

Justice Edson L. Haines of the Ontario Supreme Court, after speaking to a meeting of the American Trial Lawyers Association in Canada, said he believes removal of the contingency fee and trial by judges without juries would end the U.S. malpractice problem overnight.

He also warned the U.S. lawyers that unless they resolve their malpractice crisis jury awards will become so enormous that the cases will be taken away from the courts and settled by means of no-fault arbitration.

It was a warning that should be taken seriously.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Carter Justice

By Jack Anderson
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Carter will advocate a new form of law and order, with more emphasis on prosecuting crooked business executives and corrupt government officials.

The Democratic presidential candidate has asked a task force to prepare a position paper incorporating his views on criminal justice. It is now in draft form, labeled "Not for Dissemination," with a final version weeks away.

Eight years ago, Richard Nixon made law and order the main theme of his campaign. He subsequently put John Mitchell and Richard Kleindienst in charge of law and order at the Justice Dept. Both have now been convicted of violating the laws they had sworn to uphold.

From the first, they were more enthusiastic about enforcing the laws against malefaction than malfeasance. They were quick, for example, to prosecute overzealous protesters who, in the name of peace, violated the peace.

But the Nixon prosecutors were slower to enforce the laws against white collar crimes. They ignored the laws against perjury, for example, when their own people found it expedient to fib.

This left the impression that there was a different justice for the rich and the poor, for the powerful and the weak. Carter will offer to put criminal justice back in balance by prosecuting businessmen and bureaucrats, congressmen and judges who violate the laws.

He would divert millions of dollars to cracking down on crimes "which cause great harm and property loss but which are pursued inadequately." The confidential draft adds pointedly: "These crimes would include business crimes and government corruption."

The draft, prepared by Washington atttorney Arnold Sagalyn, accuses both the Johnson and Nixon administrations of wasting much of the money the federal government spent to right crime.

"Anyone who promises to banish crime with a few federal dollars dooms such a program to failure," the paper declares. "The goal is misleading, naive and unrealistic."

A staggering $4.4 billion has been spent by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) to help local police forces. We have shown in a series of columns how most of this money has gone for such wasteful items as Dick Tracy weapons that don't work and luxury limousines for deputy sheriffs.

Carter would divert at least half of the LEAA funds to coping with crime in "our most dense living areas and ... other areas where violent crimes and burglary present the most danger to citizens."

Some anticrime funds should go into welfare, jobs, schooling, mental health and other programs that can prevent crime, the study urges. It adds: "Both the revenue-sharing funds and the federally controlled funds should be devoted primarily to underfunded portions of criminal justice, for example, prosecution, defense and court systems."

The study cautions, "The finest research products of recent years tell us much more about what does not work than what does work." To study the crime problem, the Carter task force recommends establishing novel semi-public, semi-private "corporations for crime and criminal research."

Footnote: Similar task forces are studying everything from agriculture to zoology for the Democratic candidate. Aides say they will be used in his campaign and, as they become more refined, as guidelines in his Administration if he should be elected President.

Washington Whirl: President Ford must take Ronald Reagan more seriously and treat him with more dignity if the White House wants Reagan's support in the future. Sources close to Reagan say he is bitter because the President "has treated him like a second-class citizen, like a second cousin." Reagan feels Ford has talked down to him in the campaign, regarding him with scorn and contempt. Nevertheless, Reagan could actively support Ford if the President wins the GOP nomination, provided Ford changes his tone and his tune.

— Ronald Reagan, the hero of the Republican right, is regarded as a left-winger in some quarters. A radical outfit known as the "Washington Observer," located oddly enough in Torrence, Calif., thinks Reagan is a Communist dupe. It is peddling a book called "The Counterfeit Candidate," which portrays the conservative Reagan as a dangerous leftist.

— Jimmy Carter isn't the only candidate to inject that old-time religion into the presidential campaign. At President Ford's campaign headquarters in Washington hangs a photo of the President, with the caption: "There is a higher power, by whatever means we honor him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy."

— Rep. Shirley Chisolm, D.-N.Y., was extolling the Democratic convention the other day on an elevator crowded with her colleagues. "There was such an atmosphere of love there," she enthused. "Everybody loved one another. It was wonderful." Came a voice from the rear: "Yeah, Shirley. All that love may have been wonderful in New York, but a lot of people have been getting in trouble for it here."

— Rep. Bella Abzug, D.-N.Y., has given up hope of winning the Democratic nomination to run for the Senate in New York. She has told friends privately that "the game is up," that ex-United Nations Ambassador Pat Moynihan appears to have the nomination sewn up.

WE BLEW IT

WASHINGTON — No matter what the Viking pictures show us concerning the planet Mars, there are still a number of people who believe that there are life-size Martians living there.

We were watching television together as Viking was transmitting the photos on the screen.

"They landed in the wrong place!" Kampelman shouted.

"What do you mean the wrong place?"

"They landed on the Chryse Plantia. No one goes there in the summertime."

"Why not?" I asked.

"Why didn't someone tell them?"

"Who knows what those crazy scientists are thinking. All they were interested in was finding a smooth place to set down the camera. They didn't care what kind of pictures they would get out of it."

"Where should they have landed if they wanted to see Martians?"

"Coney Chryse. That's where everyone goes on vacation. They not only have a nice beach but a fantastic amusement park."

"But there is no large body of water on Mars. Why would they go to the beach?"

"There used to be water there, billions of years ago, and when it dried up they decided to keep the beach up. They had a roller coaster there, and they didn't want to move it."

"I think you're putting me on."

"I am not," Kampelman said indignantly. "Look, suppose the Martians sent a camera to earth. They would look down and find the smoothest area to land it on. That would be the Sahara Desert. Do you think they'd learn anything about us by taking pictures of the Sahara?"

"But we surveyed the planet and we didn't see any buildings."

"They live in rocks," Kampelman said. "Everyone knows that."

"I didn't know it."

"Sure, they have the equivalent of a Housing and Urban Development Department there, just like we have in the states. But like HUD, they're so snarled up in red tape they've never gotten anything built."

"If they don't have any rain, maybe they don't need houses," I suggested.

"Actually, their rocks are very nice. They're warm at night and cool in the daytime. They also make great tax shelters."

"Kampelman, you seem to know more about Mars than anybody."

"It's common sense. If you lived on Mars you certainly wouldn't pitch a tent on some barren spot where nothing was happening. Viking isn't going to tell us anything about the planet that we don't know already."

"But suppose they find microorganisms or germs where Viking landed?" I said.

"It will prove my point. Martians aren't going to live where all the germs are. They're not dummies."

"So you feel if the Viking scientists had gambled and landed the TV cameras amongst the large rocks instead of on the desert, they would have gotten pictures of life-size Martians?"

"I know it. Some of them have been waiting to get on TV for a million years. They're really hams at heart. If Viking had landed next to one of their canals, the Martians would have sailed their tall ships up it and given us the greatest show ever seen on television."

"I guess we blew it," I said.

"We sure did. Turn to ABC. We might as well watch a ball game."

Organism causing corn crop damage

KANSAS CITY — An organism causing only minor damage to corn crops in this country since 1895 may have the potential of becoming a serious disease, according to a plant pathologist of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service (ARS).

Dr. Frances Latterell reported that the fungus, diplodia macrospora, causes a severe leaf spot on corn in Costa Rica. In the past, she said, some major plant diseases have spread north from the southern United States, Mexico and probably South America.

Southern corn blight, a devastating epidemic which caused an estimated $1.2 billion in damage in 1970-71, probably migrated from southern regions as a mutant of a relatively minor corn disease, according to Dr. Latterell.

In greenhouse tests at ARS's Plant Disease Research Laboratory in Frederick, Md., Dr. Latterell found that the Costa Rican strain of D. macrospora caused severe leaf spot symptoms under conditions simulating the more humid areas of the U.S. corn belt.

Dr. Latterell notes a "striking relationship between 'no-till' culture of corn in recent years and the upgrading of other minor diseases into major problems, including 'anthracnose' and 'gray leaf spot'." These observations were made in cooperation with pathologists of state experiment stations and commercial corn companies.

No-till or minimum-till culture allows plant debris from the previous season's crop to remain on the field instead of being plowed under as in conventional culture. "Disease organisms living in the debris may thus get a head start in spring, and can increase more rapidly, causing much more serious damage to the corn crop," said Dr. Latterell.

The ARS plant pathologist makes survey trips to corn-growing areas in the semi-tropical Americas to collect specimens of disease fungi for study under the strict quarantine measures of her laboratory. Materials going in and out of the lab are sterilized, and other security measures are enforced to prevent disease organisms from escaping.

Dr. Latterell's talk was among some 400 presentations of scientific papers by plant pathologists attending the 68th annual meetings of the American Phytopathological Society at the Radisson-Muehlebach Hotel. Scientists discussed many aspects of plant disease caused by fungi, bacteria, viruses, mycoplasmas and pollution.

Peach month is proclaimed

Bracey critical of Litton distortions

PORTAGEVILLE— Charges by 6th District Rep. Jerry Litton, D-Chillicothe, against his opponent in the Senate race 2nd District Rep. Jim Symington, D-St. Louis, are gross distortions," and Litton should apologize, says Hilton Bracey of Portageville, a long-time cotton and farm leader who issued a statement in response to charges by Litton in a Kennett campaign speech recently. In the Kennett speech, Litton was reported to have said that Symington voted against the best interests of cotton farmers.

"Apparently, Jerry Litton hasn't bothered to learn enough about cotton and other farm issues in southeast Missouri to properly interpret the positions taken by Symington on various legislative matters to this area," Bracey said.

Bracey said the reported charges by Litton were gross distortions and not related to the actual circumstances involved.

Bracey went on to say he believes Litton should know better, but if he didn't, it demonstrates his ignorance of cotton and other southeast Missouri farm matters. In either case, Bracey said, the least Litton could do is apologize to Symington and farmers for having made such irresponsible charges.

Bracey said Litton's charge that Symington voted to reduce target and loan prices on cotton was actually a vote for a compromise measure with a chance of passage that had been worked out between congressional and farm leaders.

"The compromise was a part of the Emergency Farm Bill of 1975 that was finally passed by the Congress and later vetoed by President Gerald Ford. Unfortunately, Litton didn't bother to relate that legislation is a series of compromises and that responsible members of Congress usually take the position that a part of something is usually better than a part of nothing," he said.

Other charges that Litton made against Smymington's farm record were equally baseless and amounted to outright distortions, Bracey concluded.

Weather outlook indicates shift

Rainfall up, temperatures down

By LEONARD F. HAND
Agricultural meteorologist

PORTAGEVILLE — The average monthly weather outlook indicates a shift in circulation patterns that places the Bootheel within the below normal temperature category and above median rainfall category for the period ending in mid- August 1976.

A partial cause of lower temperatures than normal for this time of year may be linked to increased wetting prospects. The pattern also suggests that we may see a more northerly component to the air flow over the eastern half of the nation. That would bring cooler and drier air into the picture more frequently thanduring the first half of July.

Cold fronts could be triggers for showers and thunderstorms, accounting for occasional general coverage of rain in contrast to the scattered activity often found with air mass thunderstorms. These are some of the clues for which the daily extended outlooks may be searched as the month unfolds.

The change from wet to dry, indicated early in July, came about with abrupt suddenness over much of the Bootheel. The combined total rainfall measured at Portageville the mornings of the July 3 and 4 amounted to nearly three inches. The total July 1-6 was 3.21 inches. Only a trace, a single day with sprinkles, had been recorded since then through July 15.

Totals at other Agricultural Stations, July 1-6, were: Poplar Bluff, 2.11 inches, Sikeston, 2.44; Charleston, 2.91; Kennett, 5.24, East Prairie, 7.50, and Caruthersville, 7.94.

Spotty showers have been seen at a number of spots since then, but general rains temporarily subsided.

By mid-month, conditions are far from homogeneous across the region. Water was still standing in some middles on the 14th, and some corn on sandy ridges was ready for rain or irrigation.

Evapotranspiration calculations are confused by the erratic planting schedules this season. Few crops, with possible exception of corn, show uniform development, and most cotton and soybeans are behind normal development stage for this point in the season. That means crops are demanding less moisture than usual, in spite of hot weather the second week of July.

The evaporation index calculated from Portageville data shows only three days since July 8 with evaporation 80 per cent or more of the daily optimum. The highest was 93 per cent. Had winds been stronger, we could have looked for greater volumes of water to have been extracted.

Statistically, Portageville data show excess of rainfall of 2.62 inches since March 1, 3.18 inches since March 29 and 5.91 inches since May 2. Those values apply through July 11. In spite of these apparent surpluses of moisture and the fact that some sections have had considerably greater excesses, crops on lighter land were being irrigated on July 15.

Soybeans after wheat could use moisture for germination, and cotton with damaged root systems was approaching stress in some fields at mid-month.

Field activity, such as peach harvest, sorghum midge control, melon harvest and spray programs for orchards and field crops, have similar vulnerability to wetting during the coming weeks. Trends depicted in the daily extended outlooks are best guides to timing arrival of wetting.

The circulation indicated through this period could result in cold fronts lagging within range of the Bootheel, capable of producing cloudy and - or rainy spells of several days duration. More frequent penetration of fronts usually means stronger winds, prior to and after wetting. Evaporation potential would be higherunder those conditions, increasing moisture demand by crops entering fruiting phase.

Normal rainfall for the Bootheel as a whole during the period from July through mid-august is 3.11 inches. Normals for individual cities are: Advance, 3.21; Caruthersville, 3.02; Dexter, 3.22; Morehouse, 2.92; Parma, 3.01; Sikeston, 2.96; Cape Girardeau, 3.40; Clearwater Dam, 3.18; Doniphan, 3.48; New madrid, 3.12; Poplar Bluff, 3.04; and Wappapello Dam, 3.39.

COLUMBIA — Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market July 1 in the 23 major feeding states totaled 10.04 million head, 17 per cent more than the low number a year ago, and slightly less than July 1, 1974. Placements of cattle and calves in the 23 states during the April-June quarter this year totaled 5.6 million, up one per cent from 1975 and 18 per cent above 1974.

Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during the quarter totaled 5.94 million, up 18 per cent from the same quarter in 1975 but 5 per cent below 1974. Other disappearance totaled 518,000, compared with 453,000 in 1975 and 738,000 in 1974.

In Missouri, 155,000 cattle and calves were on feed for slaughter market July 1, 9 per cent below a year earlier and July 1, 1974. State producers marketed 91,000 head for slaughter during April-June one per cent more than in the comparable 1975 quarter.

During the upcoming July-September quarter, cattle feeders in the 23 states intend to market 5.98 million head, 19 per cent more than the third quarter marketings in 1975 and 8 per cent more than the same quarter of 1974.

In Missouri, expected marketings from July to September are placed at 80,000, equaling the number slaughtered in the same period last year.

Evaporation potential would be higherunder those conditions, increasing moisture demand by crops entering fruiting phase.

COLUMBIA — Cattle and calves on feed for slaughter market July 1 in the 23 major feeding states totaled 10.04 million head, 17 per cent more than the low number a year ago, and slightly less than July 1, 1974. Placements of cattle and calves in the 23 states during the April-June quarter this year totaled 5.6 million, up one per cent from 1975 and 18 per cent above 1974.

Marketings of fed cattle for slaughter during the quarter totaled 5.94 million, up 18 per cent from the same quarter in 1975 but 5 per cent below 1974. Other disappearance totaled 518,000, compared with 453,000 in 1975 and 738,000 in 1974.

In Missouri, 155,000 cattle and calves were on feed for slaughter market July 1, 9 per cent below a year earlier and July 1, 1974. State producers marketed 91,000 head for slaughter during April-June one per cent more than in the comparable 1975 quarter.

During the upcoming July-September quarter, cattle feeders in the 23 states intend to market 5.98 million head, 19 per cent more than the third quarter marketings in 1975 and 8 per cent more than the same quarter of 1974.

In Missouri, expected marketings from July to September are placed at 80,000, equaling the number slaughtered in the same period last year.

Attends homemakers meeting

COLUMBIA — Margie Scheeter of Oran attended the Missouri Extension Homemaker state meeting as the voting delegate for Scott County and attended a series of workshops designed to increase the awareness and knowledge of county extension homemakers presidents.

Joint anniversary observances in honor of the Bicentennial of the United States and the 40th anniversary of Extension Homemaker Clubs in Missouri were held. These included a visit to the capitol in Jefferson City and a birthday party with over 20 different kinds of cake.

The state meeting stressed the importance of family life. The homemaker can and does contribute to building stronger families, communities and a better world.

Mrs. Scheeter said she particularly enjoyed meeting homemakers from other parts of the state.

Next year, Missouri will host the national extension meeting at Columbia, and Mrs. Scheeter suggested that meeting women from nearly every state in the union could be even more exciting.

Holstein breeders meeting set

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri Holstein breeders will conduct their 1976 black and white show Wednesday at Ristig Farms near Cape Girardeau. The cattle judging will begin at approximately 10:30 a.m., according to district president Harvey Lee Brase of Gordonville.

The show will be held at the same location as last year, west of Interstate 55 near McKendree Chapel. A tent has been rented for the comfort of the spectators and for the food booth. Food for the event will be sold by Cape Girardeau County 4-H'ers. Profits will be used to support 4-H programs.

All breeders of registered Holsteins in the Southeast Missouri area are encouraged to enter cattle in the show and any interested persons are welcome to attend, Brase stated. He pointed out that the date of the show had been set earlier for Tuesday but was recently changed to Wednesday.

New emblem

The certified slow moving vehicle emblem shown here carries manufacturer's statement that it meets the tough new standard, S276.3, of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Slow moving vehicle emblems aid in safety

HASTINGS, Neb. — Slow moving vehicle emblems have been an important factor in highway safety for the past 10 years. The SMV emblem is an orange and red triangle which you see on the back of slow moving farm or construction machinery on roads and highways.

These emblems are required by law on vehicles moving at less than 25 miles per hour on roads and highways in all states in the United States and most Canadian provinces. In the first two years after Nebraska adopted a law requiring use of the emblem on farm equipment, deaths resulting from rear-end collisions decreased 40 per cent. Michigan experienced a 47 per cent reduction in rear-end collisions following adoption of an SMV emblem law.

Now, due to the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE), which sets performance requirements for the emblems, an improved new emblem is available.

The ASAE standard (S276.3) says "the manufacturer shall place his name and address on the emblem and may state that the emblem meets the requirements of this standard." Buyers should be aware of this certification and insist on certified slow moving vehicle emblems.

The National Safety Council strongly recommends the use of emblems which meet the new ASAE standard. These emblems are visible day or night. They are a vivid reminder to drivers to "slow down." When you see one it means there is a piece of equipment traveling at less than 25 m.p.h. ahead of you.

To be sure of getting the longest-lasting, safest emblem ever, buyers are urged to insist on "certified" emblems. Absence of an emblem on a slow moving vehicle, use of a worn out emblem or a non-certified emblem could create a liability question.

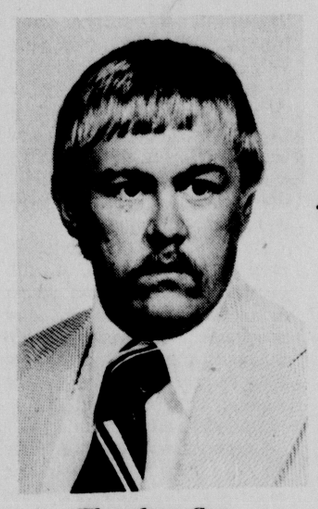
Cox to work with youth

Named to extension area

NEW MADRID — Theodore Cox, formerly a teacher at Wellsville High School in Montgomery County, has been appointed a University of Missouri youth specialist for the six-county Bootheel Extension Area.

Glenn Patton of Portageville, area director, said Cox replaces Robert Taylor who transferred earlier this year. He will be headquartered at the University of Missouri Extension Center at New Madrid, and is responsible for youth programs in New Madrid and Mississippi counties.

Cox is a 1970 graduate of Northeast Missouri State University at Kirksville with a bachelor of science degree in education and a major in zoology. He received a master of arts degree in biology education there in 1972 and has done graduate work the past two summers at University of Missouri-Columbia.



Theodore Cox

The new youth specialist worked as a research technician in plant science for University of Florida at Gainsville, Fla., in 1972, and has taught at Wellsville since 1973.

Cox will be working with youth and adult volunteer leaders in 4-H and other youth programs in the two counties.

The University of Missouri Extension Service offers programs in youth development, community development, agriculture, home economics and continuing education.

U.S. sells grain to USSR

BENTON — The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced recent sales of grain to the Soviet Union, according to Kenneth Vowells, executive director of the Scott County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office.

The sales were completed by two private U.S. export firms and reported under the department's export sales program that requires sales of 100,000 tons or more to a single destination be reported to the department within 24 hours.

Seeks out-of state livestock grazing area

BENTON — The South Dakota State Department of Agriculture is trying to locate out-of- state livestock grazing areas and winter feeding facilities, Kenneth Vowels, executive director of the Scott County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office, has announced.

A large portion of the state continues to suffer from severe drought conditions. It has become evident, that livestock producers cannot buy hay for an extended period and remain in business. therefore, the fact that it is often more economical to transport livestock to feed rather than feed to livestock, has prompted a search for available grazing areas in other states.

Anyone having information on available grazing areas in other states or wintering facilities may contact the Scott County ASCS office.

Cotton crop is in bad condition

By JOHN D. GARRETT
Area agronomy specialist

BENTON — The cotton crop in Scott County has been and still is in bad condition. Several thousand acres of the approximately 12,000 planted have been destroyed and planted to soybeans. The remaining 8,000 acres or so started growing again around July 4. However, no cotton was blooming at that time and very little was squaring.

The squaring rate has risen pretty rapidly the past two weeks. The hot days, warm nights and adequate moisture have helped. Cotton is still going to need a lot of time to make a crop.

It takes 20 to 25 days from first square set to white bloom. Most fields should be blooming well by the last week in July or early August. It takes another 20 to 25 days from first boll to full grown boll or from bloom to open boll requires about 50 to 65 days. This means that cotton blooms about Aug. 1 should be ready to pick about Oct. 1.

More days are required from bloom to open boll in Scott County because of cooler temperatures. The most effective fruiting time is from June 20 to Aug. 1. Blooms after Aug. 25 will generally not make cotton in Scott County. This means our cotton crop must be set on the plant by Aug. 1, or shortly after. Some fields were not fruiting as of July 16. This means late, late cotton and maybe no yield.

This means everything possible should be done to help the cotton. Use no herbicides over-the-top whatever you do. If layby herbicides are needed, direct them as recommended. Cultivate shallow and lay the crop by soon as possible. Feeder roots are cross the middles by now, and deep cultivation prunes roots and allows disease organisms an entrance into the plant.

I have noticed a few fields with yellow, stunted cotton. After closer observation, these were found to be deficient in nitrogen. A low pH was also found in most cases. Bacterial activity was reduced and organic nitrogen release was very slow.

The question being asked by farmers is, "Should they apply nitrogen now?" Due to the lateness of the season, my answer is "no." Several years of research work show that nitrogen applied after July 1 decreases yield more often than increasing it. Nitrogen applied now would no doubt help the cotton grow faster, green it up and make it look better.

However, it would probably decrease maturity, increase boll rot and decrease yield. Due to these reasons, we recommend that no more nitrogen be applied on cotton this year.

Scout fields for bollworms, bollweevils and spider mites. These are your three biggest potential insect problems in Scott County. Controls should be applied when needed, but not until. Contact the county extension office if assistance is needed.

USDA winter wheat team visits in Soviet Union

The U. S. Department of Agriculture winter wheat team reports that 1976 winter wheat yields in the seven districts visited in the Soviet Union should top last year's crop. However, a smaller area will be harvested than in 1975.

The three men team was in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republic from June 14 to July 3, touring winter wheat regions under terms of the U.S. -- US.S.S.R. agreement on cooperation in agriculture. The seven areas, which normally account for 25 to 30 per cent of the Soviet winter wheat crop, should produce 20 per cent more wheat than last year.

The seven districts included the oblasts of Kiev and Cherkassy (North Central Ukraine), Zaporozhe and Donetsk (Eastern Ukraine); Volgograd (lower Volga) and Rostov and Stavropol Kray (Northeastern Caucasus). Cherkassy, Volgograd, Rostov and Stavropol were visited by last year's winter wheat team. One member of last year's team was in the 1976 group.

The U.S.S.R. 1976 winter grain crop got a poor start last fall because of dry weather which affected germination and development. However, spring moisture improved prospects. Wheat acres harvested will be smaller than expected due to heavier than normal winterkill.

Harvest should begin in early July in Rostov Oblast and Stavropol Kray; about July 10 in Azparozhe, Donetsk and Volgograd; and mid-July in Kiev and Cherkassy. Delayed by cool, wet weather this spring, the 1976 harvest will be two to three weeks later than last year's early harvest.

The team reported favorable reception in all areas. A more detailed account of crop conditions in each of the seven districts will be published in a foreign agriculture circular.

Evans announces earnings

PORTLAND, Ore. — Second-quarter and first-half earnings per share were the second highest in history for Evans Products Co. Net earnings for the quarter were $9.8 million, or 59 cents per primary common share on revenues of $222 million. In the second quarter of 1975, the company reported net earnings of $5 million, or 29 cents per primary common share, on revenues of $219 million, including revenues of $31 million from severed activities.

First-half 1976 net earnings were $12.9 million, or 77 cents per primary common share, on revenues of $388 million. This compares with first-half 1975 results of $3.5 million in net earnings, or 20 cents per primary common share, on revenues of $400 million, including revenues of $68 million from severed activities.

First-half figures include a gain before taxes on the sale of assets of half a million dollars in the first quarter and $3 million in the second quarter of 1976 and $7.2 million in the first quarter of 1975. In addition, an extraordinary gain of $561,000, net of taxes, was realized on the purchase of the company's debentures in the second quarter of 1976.

Offsetting the 1976 gains, there was a pretax charge of $3.75 million in the second quarter of 1976 to provide for costs estimated to be incurred in the permanent closure of the Plymouth, Mich., plant, transfer of its operations to other company facilities, and the permanent closing of the Tifton, Ga., plant.

Evans' building products business achieved significant gains over 1975, with all groups improving, despite a slow housing recovery during the second quarter. The largest segment of this business, the retailing of building materials, is focused on the do-it-yourself market. Consequently, as consumer spending for home repairs and remodeling continued to rise, the retail group's operating results improved dramatically, achieving record sales during the latter weeks of the quarter.

The transportation systems and industrial group continued to report impressive earnings gains. Higher earnings from the manufacture of steel castings and truck trailers more than offset the second quarter decline in earnings from the manufacture of railcars and components.

The decline in the market for railcars appears to have bottomed out, and the company's backlog of orders for new railcars will now sustain profitable operation at all of its railcar facilities throughout the balance of the year. A strong pickup in new orders has resulted in a substantial increase in Evans' truck trailer backlog.

Major debt reduction, which commenced in the first quarter of 1975, continued during the second quarter with a decrease in parent company and home financing subsidiary debt totaling $44 million. Since Jan. 1, 1975, total parent company and home financing subsidiary debt paydown has exceeded $230 million. This debt reduction has strengthened the company's financial position, while also contributing to improved operating results through reduced interest costs.

New federal law will aid with credit contracts

By ALFRED C. SIKES
Director of consumer affairs

JEFFERSON CITY — A Missouri law, coupled with a new federal law, will help assure the rights of consumers' who make purchases with credit contracts. But the laws also increase the importance for consumers to read contracts carefully.

The holder-in-due-course doctrine was repealed by these laws. That means consumers who buy on credit may withhold payment regardless of who owns the contract if a seller fails to uphold his obligations.

Consider, for example, that you buy a television for $300 on credit, agreeing to make monthly payments of $50. The dealer sells the credit contract for $275 to a bank so he can receive the money immediately rather than in installemnts.

After two months and $100, the television breaks down by no fault of the owner and the seller refuses to repair it. Your threat to stop payment on the credit contract holds no force since the dealer already has received full payment for the television. Can you withhold payment to the bank who now holds the contract?

Before passage of these two laws, the answer was "no." The "innocent holder," as he was called, was not obligated to insure the lasting quality of a product purchased, but he could insist upon payment. Thus, the customer had no leverage to demand proper service.

Now, however, a consumer can assert all claims and defenses against the holder that he could against the seller. He has a right to expect services to continue as promised or goods to hold up as promised while he is paying, regardless of who demands payment.

In addition, the federal law states that all consumer credit contracts must contain the statement that the holder is subject to all claims and defenses that the debtor could assert against the seller of goods and services. The law does not apply to credit card companies.

As a result of this law, consumers will find that reading contracts carefully is even more important. Sellers might include in the contracts certain provisions or limitations to serve as protection against customer claims. This would help the dealer sell credit contracts since these protections would be passed on to the buyer of the contract.

If you are entering into a major credit contract, an attorney might help you avoid some of the pitfalls. If you have any questions about this law or other aspects of credit purchases, contact the Department of Consumer Affairs in Jefferson City.

USDA winter wheat team visits in Soviet Union

The U. S. Department of Agriculture winter wheat team reports that 1976 winter wheat yields in the seven districts visited in the Soviet Union should top last year's crop. However, a smaller area will be harvested than in 1975.

The three men team was in the Union of Soviet Socialist Republic from June 14 to July 3, touring winter wheat regions under terms of the U.S. -- US.S.S.R. agreement on cooperation in agriculture. The seven areas, which normally account for 25 to 30 per cent of the Soviet winter wheat crop, should produce 20 per cent more wheat than last year.

The seven districts included the oblasts of Kiev and Cherkassy (North Central Ukraine), Zaporozhe and Donetsk (Eastern Ukraine); Volgograd (lower Volga) and Rostov and Stavropol Kray (Northeastern Caucasus). Cherkassy, Volgograd, Rostov and Stavropol were visited by last year's winter wheat team. One member of last year's team was in the 1976 group.

The U.S.S.R. 1976 winter grain crop got a poor start last fall because of dry weather which affected germination and development. However, spring moisture improved prospects. Wheat acres harvested will be smaller than expected due to heavier than normal winterkill.

Harvest should begin in early July in Rostov Oblast and Stavropol Kray; about July 10 in Azparozhe, Donetsk and Volgograd; and mid-July in Kiev and Cherkassy. Delayed by cool, wet weather this spring, the 1976 harvest will be two to three weeks later than last year's early harvest.

The team reported favorable reception in all areas. A more detailed account of crop conditions in each of the seven districts will be published in a foreign agriculture circular.

Evans announces earnings

PORTLAND, Ore. — Second-quarter and first-half earnings per share were the second highest in history for Evans Products Co. Net earnings for the quarter were $9.8 million, or 59 cents per primary common share on revenues of $222 million. In the second quarter of 1975, the company reported net earnings of $5 million, or 29 cents per primary common share, on revenues of $219 million, including revenues of $31 million from severed activities.

First-half 1976 net earnings were $12.9 million, or 77 cents per primary common share, on revenues of $388 million. This compares with first-half 1975 results of $3.5 million in net earnings, or 20 cents per primary common share, on revenues of $400 million, including revenues of $68 million from severed activities.

First-half figures include a gain before taxes on the sale of assets of half a million dollars in the first quarter and $3 million in the second quarter of 1976 and $7.2 million in the first quarter of 1975. In addition, an extraordinary gain of $561,000, net of taxes, was realized on the purchase of the company's debentures in the second quarter of 1976.

Offsetting the 1976 gains, there was a pretax charge of $3.75 million in the second quarter of 1976 to provide for costs estimated to be incurred in the permanent closure of the Plymouth, Mich., plant, transfer of its operations to other company facilities, and the permanent closing of the Tifton, Ga., plant.

Evans' building products business achieved significant gains over 1975, with all groups improving, despite a slow housing recovery during the second quarter. The largest segment of this business, the retailing of building materials, is focused on the do-it-yourself market. Consequently, as consumer spending for home repairs and remodeling continued to rise, the retail group's operating results improved dramatically, achieving record sales during the latter weeks of the quarter.

The transportation systems and industrial group continued to report impressive earnings gains. Higher earnings from the manufacture of steel castings and truck trailers more than offset the second quarter decline in earnings from the manufacture of railcars and components.

The decline in the market for railcars appears to have bottomed out, and the company's backlog of orders for new railcars will now sustain profitable operation at all of its railcar facilities throughout the balance of the year. A strong pickup in new orders has resulted in a substantial increase in Evans' truck trailer backlog.

Major debt reduction, which commenced in the first quarter of 1975, continued during the second quarter with a decrease in parent company and home financing subsidiary debt totaling $44 million. Since Jan. 1, 1975, total parent company and home financing subsidiary debt paydown has exceeded $230 million. This debt reduction has strengthened the company's financial position, while also contributing to improved operating results through reduced interest costs.

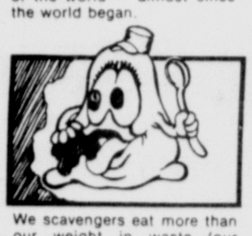
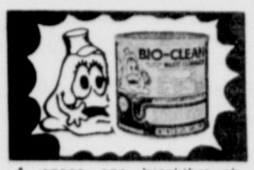
I'm your Friendly Bacterium. By countless billions, my family has lived in every part of the world — almost since the world began.

In natures way, Friendly Bacteria eat up all the organic waste left around. Without them, the world would be one huge garbage heap. All life would cease.

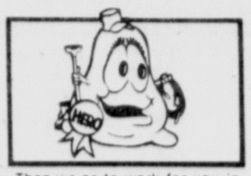


We scavengers eat more than our weight in waste (our natural food) in a minute. We reproduce and multiply at a fantastic rate. We are not used up as chemicals are.

We return waste solids back to good clean basic parts of soil, air and water they were formed from — We enrich the environment instead of polluting it as chemicals do.



A space age breakthrough made it possible to grow and dehydrate us so we go dormant in ideal laboratory conditions. In powder form we are put in protective containers . . . until you are ready to activate us by placing us in your wet waste system — Where we wake up hungry.



Then we go to work for you in the only method that really eliminates waste. We'll solve your waste problems COMPLETELY — and SAfely — without polluting our world.

Women in the pulpit

By ANN O'LEARY

"What God wants is what I am concerned about. I have to answer to God, not men."

With these words, Jean Tolbert, pastor of the Trinity Chapel Church of God, 107 Sixth St., answers those who believe a woman has no place preaching.

But Pastor Tolbert and two ordained female ministers of the Assembly of God Church say not many people voice criticisms of the occupation they have chosen.

Terzah Perry, pastor of the Assembly of God Church of Canalou, and Kathryn Baughn of Canalou, who has been preaching for more than 40 years, say their path to the ministry has not been difficult because they were women. But both have encountered people who just don't think a woman has a place in the pulpit.

"A lot of people don't accept lady ministers," says Kathryn. "But I believe God has a place for women in the ministry as well as men."

Kathryn and Terzah, as ordained ministers of their faith, have the same powers as ordained men and can perform services such as baptisms and weddings. But Jean is a licensed evangelist rather than a minister and is not able to perform baptisms or weddings.

"That's fine with me," says Jean, who would rather be called just Jean or Sister Tolbert than addressed as "Reverend." "I would rather preach."

Kathryn, who was born in Canalou and taught school before her ordination, has pastored churches in Indiana, Texas and Missouri. She is still very active with the Canalou Assembly of God Church and preaches and acts as a substitute Sunday School teacher.

She has never married.

"I remained single for the work of the Lord, that's just my personal conviction," she says, although other circumstances, such as caring for her sick mother, were also a factor.

Terzah, a Stoddard County native, has been married to Harry Perry, a retired construction worker, for 34 years, and has three children. She says she would advise any young women entering the ministry to be careful about her selection of a mate. Her own husband has supported her ministry "100 per cent" and is very involved with her church.

"It takes someone who loves the ministry to be a minister's husband," she says emphatically. "Any young woman who is going to enter the ministry had better be sure her husband is for her work."

Jean thinks "marriage is probably great" but hasn't found the right person yet. In addition to her preaching and evangelical work, she is part of the Tolbert Sisters, a religious singing group composed of herself and her sisters Grace and Ann. Another sister, Liz, was in the group for several years, until her marriage.

"But matrimony broke us up," Jean jokes.

She and her other two sisters are still going strong, however, and sing often, at services at Jean's church and at funerals. They have sung on the radio and appeared on television.

Both Kathryn and Terzah entered the religious life very young. Jean felt that she had a calling for several years, but resisted until she was sure that preaching was what God wanted her to do.

Although her father, Kelly Tolbert, is a preacher, and her late mother, Bertha, was an evangelist, Jean did not automatically inherit her profession.

"I certainly wouldn't be in this if I hadn't felt the call of God in my life." She says her greatest desire is to be a traveling evangelist. She quit her job at a shoe factory to go on the road preaching, but got sidetracked by the pastorate of the Trinity Chapel Church of God. She is happy with her work now, but still has the desire to travel with her ministry.

"I'll do it someday," she says confidently.

Although the three preachers study the Bible for inspiration for their sermons, they try to remain open to any messages which God may be sending them.

"I prepare myself as much as I can, then I try to follow the leading of the spirit," says Jean.

Kathryn remembers preaching a sermon and suddenly feeling an urge to begin talking about returning to a good life. After the service was over, a woman approached her and told her the sermon had been of no value to anyone in the church. A few steps behind the woman was a young man with tears in his eyes, who said, "Sister Baughn, that sermon was meant for me."

The three women feel that preaching about the Bible is generally more worthwhile than talking about current events. While they support equal pay for equal work, none of them support the Equal Rights Amendment entirely.

"I think women are about on the level the Bible meant them to be," Kathryn says. "But I think a woman should be allowed to progress as much as she can."

Her two colleagues agree with her.

"I'm as liberated as I want to be," says Terzah.

Jean quotes First Corinthians, chapter 11, verse 3:

"The head of every man is Christ, and the head of the woman is the man, and the head of Christ is God."

The condition of family life in the world today disturbs the preachers.

"To me, the lack of communication in families and the lack of consideration parents and children have for each other is the cause of the trouble," says Terzah. "Turning back to God is the answer."

"I think parents are more to blame than anybody," asserts Jean. "They have failed the Book. Kids have been turned loose and parents can't be bothered with them. They can't be taught about God or anything that concerns God. When you leave God out of the family, you're going to pay for it."

She has another comment.

"Instead of sending their kids to church, they (parents) ought to take them."

Although they personally have had little difficulty as women in the ministry, all three women say it seems as if there are not as many female preachers today as there were several years ago.

But Kathryn and Terzah say the lay women in the church are much more active in church affairs than they were years ago.

"There may not be as many ordained ministers, but the women in the church are much more active," Terzah remarks.

Another change the women have seen is the use of televisised crusades.

"I don't know why we shouldn't use T.V. to get the gospel of Christ out," Terzah reasons.

The ministry has been a busy life for these women, but they say they have thoroughly enjoyed it. And there are side benefits, too.

She has lost 62½ pounds since February, and you'll never convince her she did it all on her own.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lathum

Scott-Lathum

GRIFFITH, Ind. — Speaking vows at the United Methodist Church here July 3 were Deborah Scott and Teddy Lathum, both of Gary. Officiating at the wedding was the Rev. Doyle Paux of Griffith.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Scott of Gary. The groom is the son of Mrs. Freeda Parker of 1903 Kentucky Ave., Sikston, Mo. and the late Eber Lathum.

White orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath were carried by the bride.

Maid of honor was Jacalyn Scott of Gary. Mrs. Caryn Duszka of Los Angeles, Calif. was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Becky Becke and Betty Tandarich of Munster, Marilyn Farrar of Gary, and Theresa Scott of Griffith.

James Lthum of Matthews, Mo. was best man. Groomsmen were Don Becke of Munster, Arnold Duszka of Los Angeles, Calif., David Loudermilk of Gary, Tommy Lathum of MacDill Air Force Base,, Fla. and Don Spradling of Matthews, Mo.

Jami Lively of Steger, Ill. and Larry Dean Polk Jr. of Portage were flower girl and ringbearer respectively. Candlelighters were Arnold Duszka of Los Angeles, Calif. and David Loudermilk of Gary.

Mrs. Lathum is a 1969 graduate of Calumet High School at Gary and is a payroll clerk at Community Hospital in Munster. Lathum graduated from Matthews High School at Matthews, Mo., in 1970 and is employed by Midwest Lumber and Supply Co. of Gary.

The couple lives at Richton Park, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Keefer

Barnes-Keefer

St. Paul's Episcopal Church of Sikeston was the setting for the July 8 wedding of Beverly Ann Barnes and Michael Dean Keefer. The Rev. William Sharkey officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Harley Barnes Jr. of 101 Linda Drive and Mr. and Mrs. Merl Keefer of 915 Alexander St.

Julie Harbin of Sikeston was maid of honor. Best man was the groom's brother, Dan Keefer of Sikeston.

Ushering guests were Harley Barnes III of Sikeston, brother of the bride, and Richard Triplett of Hickman, Ky., the groom's cousin.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Keefer are employed at Missouri Delta Community Hospital. They live at 309 N. Prairie St.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Trucks

Huffstutler-Trucks

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Huffstutler of Matthews and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trucks of Sikeston.

The bride wore an A-line dress of white polyester. The bodice and sleeves were accented with Chantilly lace. The same lace trimmed her floor-length veil.

Mrs. Jannie Kenedy of New Madrid, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Laura Gilliam and Sandra Hubbard of Cape Girardeau were bridesmaids.

Larry Standrige was best man. Groomsmen were Jim Dover and Mark Wade. Ushers and candlelighters were Wayne Huffstutler of Matthews Route One, the bride's brother, and Larry Proffer of Sikeston, brother-in-law of the groom.

The bride attended Matthews High School. The groom is a 1974 graduate of Sikeston Senior High School and is employed by the Reliable Insurance Co. of Cape Girardeau.

Mr. and Mrs. Trucks live in Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. James Arthur Broshot

Cain-Broshot

COLUMBIA — Linda Beth Cain of St. Louis and James Arthur Broshot of Cameron were united in marriage July 17 at the A. P. Green Chapel in Columbia. The Rev. Gregory Robinson officiated at the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cain Jr. of Canalou and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Broshot of Columbia and Gladstone, Ore.

The bridal gown of polyester organza was styled with a scoop neckline and a Venise lace collar. Two rows of Venise lace were appliqued on the bodice between the collar and the natural waistline. Lace encircled the waist, bodice and hemline of the full skirt, which swept into a semi-cathedral train. The bodice seams were edged with self-fabric ruffle lines that topped the shoulders and two layers of ruffles formed the short sleeves.

The bride graduated from Matthews High School at Matthews in 1967 and attended William Woods College at Fulton and the University of Missouri-Columbia. She has a bachelor's degree in art and was employed by the Orchard Paper Co., of St. Louis until her marriage.

Broshot is a 1968 graduate of Rolla High School of Rolla. He attended Washington University of St. Louis and the University of Missouri-Columbia. He has degrees in law and history and is the assistant prosecuting attorney of Caldwell County.

The couple lives in Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Hatley

Holden-Hatley

CARUTHERSVILLE — Paulette Madonna Holden became the bride of Gregory Perry Hatley July 3 at the First Presbyterian Church in Caruthersville, with the Rev. Paul Currie officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Holden and Mrs. Peggy Bryant, all of Caruthersville.

The bride's grandmother is Mrs. Velma Davenport of Sikeston. The groom's grandmother is Mrs. Bonnie "Ma Ma" Mayfield of Caruthersville.

Miss Holden wore a gown of lightweight cotton styled with a high neckline and empire waistline. The skirt was A-line and ringed with pastel colors. The bodice of the gown was light blue.

Connie Holden of Caruthersville, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Richard Green of Huffman, Ark. was best man. He is the groom's cousin.

After the wedding ceremony, a reception for the couple and their guests was held in the fellowship room of the church.

Mrs. Hatley is employed at Faultless Dry Cleaners of Sikeston and is a 1973 graduate of Sikeston High School.

Hatley is a 1976 graduate of Sikeston Vocational Trade School where he trained in welding. He is employed by National Lock Co. of Sikeston.

TOMATO CORN

16-ounce can stewed tomatoes
2 ears, corn, any size
Salt, pepper and sugar to taste

Heat tomatoes. Cut kernels from corn; with back of knife scrape cobs to release pulp; add to tomatoes; boil gently, covered, until corn is cooked — about 3 minutes. Stir in salt, pepper and sugar. Serve in sauce dishes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Ann Landers

Second chances are for real

Dear Ann Landers: I'm the girl everyone is talking about behind her back. I'm the girl mothers tell their daughters not to associate with. Why? Because two years ago I made a big mistake and got pregnant.

The guy swore he loved me and wanted to marry me. He said if I loved him I should be willing to prove it. The clincher was when he said, "Everybody does it."

I had the baby and put it up for adoption. (Any 15-year-old who keeps her baby is being very unfair.) The guy, of course, disappeared. I haven't heard from him since.

Now I am 17 and in love with a wonderful person. He knows all about my past and never mentions it. He respects my wishes and I don't have to fight with him about proving my love. He says he is willing to wait because I am worth waiting for. Believe me, Ann, I feel like the luckiest girl in the whole world.

So please print my letter for all teenagers to read. There are two lessons here that might be of value. First -- everybody ISN'T doing it. Second, just because a girl makes a mistake doesn't mean she is branded for life and nobody decent will give her a second look. If she thinks of herself as a good girl and acts like one, others will, too. -- From Shame To Pride

Dear Pride: Your letter will have infinitely more meaning coming from you than from me. Thanks for writing. And heartiest congratulations for turning your life around.

Dear Ann: I haven't the nerve to say it. Please print this:

Dear Family: I love you and your children and their children. You all visited me yesterday. Today I spent five hours wiping walls, cleaning candy off carpets, removing food stains from the furniture. I am 70 years old. I have no help. It takes all my energy to do what I need to do for myself. I'm so exhausted as I write this letter I feel ill.

Please come often. I love you all, but don't ever leave my house in such a mess again. -- Grandma

Dear Grandma: I wonder how many readers are asking themselves -- "Can it be -- ????" Well -- it just might. I hope your letter helps not only you, but other grandmas as well.

Dear Ann Landers: My problem isn't really serious, but I'd like to know the answer. I am afraid of worms. They really give me the creeps. When I see one unexpectedly, I react like many people react to snakes. My question is this: Can a worm crawl up cement steps? Since we moved to this new house, I've found a worm or two on the top step and this has got me thinking. Is someone putting them there or do they get there on their own? -- Shrecked In Oshkosh

Dear Shrecked: Worms can crawl up concrete steps. The ones you've seen got there by themselves.

I hope you will make friends with the little fellows. They are just about the most harmless creatures on the face of the earth. Read about them, then force yourself to look at one for about ten minutes. You will marvel at the way they move. When you can hold one in your hand --presto, the fear will be gone.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — To save fuel I plan my menu so an entire meal can be cooked in the oven. I even find that frozen vegetables can be put in a casserole with a lid. Add a small amount of water and cook along with the main dish. — MRS. J.I.

DEAR POLLY — The cheapest and easiest way I have discovered to clean mirrors, windows, etc. is to use regular club soda. I find it the most reasonable cleaning agent on the market and always keep it with my other cleaning supplies. Wipe once over with a soft dampened cloth and then dry with paper towels, crumpled newspaper or a dry cloth. The soda cuts all grease, cooking stains, nicotine stains, etc. and the glass really sparkles. This is an old bartender's trick. — Mrs. E.F.P.

DEAR POLLY — My old rotary lawn mower could not be used any more, so I removed the motor, throttles and gas tank. I placed a board over the platform, drilled holes in the board and bolted it on where the motor had been. This made a handy cart for hauling things such as baskets of clothes around the yard. — MARY C.

Anecdotes part of hotel's 100-year history in Vienna

By ERIC WAHA

VIENNA (AP) — Austrian Archduke Otto, known as the "handsome Otto," reportedly came out of his room in the Vienna Sacher Hotel wearing only his sword, according to one witness. Another asserted the Archduke wore the regulation tie and hat, but nothing else.

This supposedly happened in the last century, and it is one of the anecdotes surrounding the Vienna Sacher Hotel, which this year celebrates its 100th anniversary.

Another is about a guest who left some important papers in his hotel room. He discovered this on his return home. Desperately he searched his mind for the name of the hotel, which he had forgotten.

So he wrote a letter to the "Chocolate Cake Hotel Vienna," because he knew a cake had been named after the hotel, the famed "Sachertorte."

Two new recipes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

CHEESE SQUARES

11-ounce package pie-crust mix
1 tablespoon caraway seed
2 cups (not packed down) grated (medium-fine) sharp cheddar cheese

With a fork, lightly stir together the mix, caraway seeds and cheese. Stir in the amount of cold water (¼ cup) called for on the mix package; form into a ball. Divide dough in half. On a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one-half of the dough at a time to an 8-inch square; with a pastry wheel, cut into 2-inch squares. Bake on an ungreased cookie sheet, slightly apart, in a preheated 425-degree oven until browned — about 12 minutes. Delicious served slightly warm from the oven. Makes 32.

MORNING COFFEE

Zeppole Coffee

ZEPPOLE

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
Pinch of salt
1½ teaspoons sugar
1 cup ricotta cheese
¼ teaspoon vanilla
Corn oil for frying

Beat eggs slightly; add remaining ingredients except the oil; beat gently until combined — batter will be sticky. Drop by half-tablespoonfuls (push off batter with another spoon) into deep oil heated to 375 degrees, frying a few at a time, until Zeppole turn over by themselves and are golden-brown — about 3 minutes. Drain on brown paper and roll in confectioners' sugar. Serve at once. Makes 36.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — To save fuel I plan my menu so an entire meal can be cooked in the oven. I even find that frozen vegetables can be put in a casserole with a lid. Add a small amount of water and cook along with the main dish. — MRS. J.I.

DEAR POLLY — The cheapest and easiest way I have discovered to clean mirrors, windows, etc. is to use regular club soda. I find it the most reasonable cleaning agent on the market and always keep it with my other cleaning supplies. Wipe once over with a soft dampened cloth and then dry with paper towels, crumpled newspaper or a dry cloth. The soda cuts all grease, cooking stains, nicotine stains, etc. and the glass really sparkles. This is an old bartender's trick. — Mrs. E.F.P.

DEAR POLLY — My old rotary lawn mower could not be used any more, so I removed the motor, throttles and gas tank. I placed a board over the platform, drilled holes in the board and bolted it on where the motor had been. This made a handy cart for hauling things such as baskets of clothes around the yard. — MARY C.

By ERIC WAHA

VIENNA (AP) — Austrian Archduke Otto, known as the "handsome Otto," reportedly came out of his room in the Vienna Sacher Hotel wearing only his sword, according to one witness. Another asserted the Archduke wore the regulation tie and hat, but nothing else.

This supposedly happened in the last century, and it is one of the anecdotes surrounding the Vienna Sacher Hotel, which this year celebrates its 100th anniversary.

Another is about a guest who left some important papers in his hotel room. He discovered this on his return home. Desperately he searched his mind for the name of the hotel, which he had forgotten.

So he wrote a letter to the "Chocolate Cake Hotel Vienna," because he knew a cake had been named after the hotel, the famed "Sachertorte."

The letter was duly delivered and the guest got his documents back.

In the days of the Austrian-Hungarian empire, which collapsed in 1919, "chambers separees" — secluded rooms — of the hotel harbored many romances, including those of the handsome Archduke Otto, father of Emperor Karl.

CHEESE SQUARES

An excellent way to use pie-crust mix.

11-ounce package pie-crust mix
1 tablespoon caraway seed
2 cups (not packed down) grated (medium-fine) sharp cheddar cheese

With a fork, lightly stir together the mix, caraway seeds and cheese. Stir in the amount of cold water (¼ cup) called for on the mix package; form into a ball. Divide dough in half. On a prepared pastry cloth with a prepared stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll out one-half of the dough at a time to an 8-inch square; with a pastry wheel, cut into 2-inch squares. Bake on an ungreased cookie sheet, slightly apart, in a preheated 425-degree oven until browned — about 12 minutes. Delicious served slightly warm from the oven. Makes 32.

MORNING COFFEE

Zeppole Coffee

ZEPPOLE

2 eggs
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
Pinch of salt
1½ teaspoons sugar
1 cup ricotta cheese
¼ teaspoon vanilla
Corn oil for frying

Beat eggs slightly; add remaining ingredients except the oil; beat gently until combined — batter will be sticky. Drop by half-tablespoonfuls (push off batter with another spoon) into deep oil heated to 375 degrees, frying a few at a time, until Zeppole turn over by themselves and are golden-brown — about 3 minutes. Drain on brown paper and roll in confectioners' sugar. Serve at once. Makes 36.

Traffic in low gear

Taxes take cars off the roads

SINGAPORE (AP) — Highways are no longer happy ways for motorists on this crowded island since the government decided to curb private car ownership by pricing it out of the reach of many.

Thousands of cars have been taken off the road in recent months by those who say they cannot afford increased taxes and other expenses.

Automobile Association membership decreased last year for the first time in 57 years, by 179 to 30,928, said AA President Milton Tan.

Earlier government efforts to improve traffic flow included one-way streets, special bus lanes, increased vehicle taxes and staggered office hours.

These didn't work and official policy now is to restrain "the growth of private car ownership by the imposition of higher road and related taxes and the Area Licensing Scheme . . . a gradual reduction in growth of cars until it reaches a constant two per cent per annum by 1992 . . ."

The Area Licensing Scheme (ALS) was probably the most dramatic single stroke in the anticar campaign.

In June 1975 access to the central business district was restricted on weekday mornings. Large warning signs with lights were erected around the 2.5 square mile zone and policemen were posted at each from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. to note the license numbers of violators. Cars with four or more passengers and trucks, buses and taxis were granted free entry. All others had to pay a daily or monthly fee for the privilege.

Those still determined to commute by car found all public and private garages and parking lots had been ordered to raise their rates.

When officials noticed motorists dawdling outside the zone just before 9:30, the restriction was extended to 10:15 a.m. Taxis with fewer than four occupants were then included in the crackdown.

When it appeared that the original entry fee was not deterrent enough, charges were raised from $3 (about U.S. $1.20) a day to $4 (U.S. $1.60) for private cars and from $60 (U.S. $24) to $80 (U.S. $32) a month. Autos owned by business firms — identifiable by a telltale letter Q on the license plate — pay twice as much.

By December satisfied traffic counters said there was a daily average of 12,000 private motorists driving downtown in the restricted hours compared with some 42,800 before the ALS was introduced. Almost 40 per cent of them were four-or-more car poolers.

Observers from the World Bank and congested cities in America, Europe and elsewhere in Asia started arriving in Singapore to pick up pointers.

In a seminar Lai Weng Cheong, the registrar of vehicles, blamed private cars for traffic jams and insisted that their ownership and operation had to reflect costs incurred by the community.

Fewer private cars mean fewer accidents and also contribute to the environment and to the quality of life on this 226-square mile island republic, he said.

On New Year's Eve, the government increased highway taxes for the second time in nine months, boosted registration charges and imposed roadworthiness surcharges on all cars more than 10 years old. From that point, the less affluent started taking their cars off the road.

Milton Tan said there was a net reduction of 2,621 registered vehicles in the first quarter of 1976. Singapore listed 140,534 cars at the end of March.

Prof. Wong Lin Ken, a member of parliament, said "adjustment to the new realities will be made more acceptable to the public and the status symbol attached to private car ownership reduced if the public transport system is quickly improved and increasingly used by those who now drive to work."

No firm decision has been made for a mass rapid transport system.

Pastor speaks

To rule by law

By
ARTHUR C. FULBRIGHT

The lack of respect for law itself is dangerous to a free society. It must be remembered that our freedom rests not in the mob, nor with the whims of the minority, but in the ordered pattern of the law. Once this is taken from us, our freedom has also been removed.

If each individual decides for himself which laws he will follow and which laws he will disobey, the entire fabric of law is broken down.

Once such a fabric is destroyed it is difficult to rebuild; then we no longer constitute a nation, merely a society at war, one with the other.

Racial equality can exist only in the same proportion as respect for laws exists. What a tragedy it would be if racial minorities succeed in destroying our system of law; they would, in the very process, destroy the only things which can make them free.

The question resolves itself simply: Do individuals, in a free society ruled by law, have a right to act at will, regardless of law, if they so desire? The question has never been answered in the affirmative in modern civilized society, except by terrorists and totalitarians.

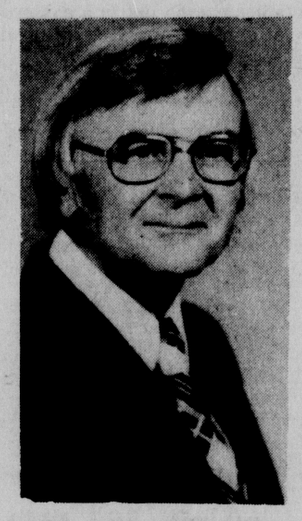
Many of our jurists have come to look upon the law as merely an expression of the temper of the times or, even more often, of their own individual views. How tragic and appalling. In the face of the subjective view of law which is prevalent today, those within society who wish to alter existing laws have been encouraged not to pursue the legislative path, or even to propose constitutional amendments. Such methods are considered too tedious, and too slow. They have, instead, been encouraged to take to the streets, thereby making evident to these same jurists that the temper of the community demands change.

How close can leaders come to preaching the doctrine of violence, even as a threat, without having members of their group pursue such a course actively? The answer, of course, is that once violence has been threatened, it is almost certain that violence will result. Once it is stated that a law need not be obeyed unless it is a "good law" the beginning of an end to rule by law has been initiated.

We are free in America because we have accepted the idea that one man's rights end where another's begin. Once we reject this idea, then the whole concept of the nature of law has been abandoned.

Those who have no faith in a society ruled by law should remember for a moment what a society ruled by tyrants and anarchists is like, and there would be no law to which appeal might be made for either "eaual rights" or "equal application."

Daniel Webster stated, "Liberty exists in proportion to wholesome restraint." Such restraint is not always in evidence in America today, and without it we are in danger of truly becoming a government of men and not of law.



Dr. Arthur Fulbright

On this basis, those who urge civil disobedience as a way of life, as a means for obtaining equality before the law, should remember that the seeds of the destruction of law itself are found in that idea. And those who submit to the intimidation of threats should remember that in the resubmission rests the failure of society to maintain that order without which freedom and liberty are lost.

Manufacturing industries in the 1890's employed nonunion workers for an average of 62 hours a week at a wage of 14-15 cents an hour while their contemporaries in the postal service worked 48 hours per week and earned 37 cents an hour.

Doctor says 'no' to this face cream

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My face is really starting to wrinkle, sometimes it feels so tired I can almost feel the muscles breaking down, a sort of a stinging feeling. Are there any exercises that will help me any at all?

I have always taken care of my skin by using face creams, but I never use any greasy creams for sleeping at night.

I know there isn't much that can be done for wrinkles, but anything you can advise me on would be greatly appreciated. I have heard of some people using Preparation H ointment for wrinkles. Would this be harmful to the skin?

DEAR READER — I hear a lot of things through the letters from readers but I have never heard of using Preparation H ointment for face wrinkles. No, I would not recommend it for face wrinkles nor, for that matter, for hermorrhoids.

Preparation H contains phenylmercuric nitrate, an organic compound of mercury which is supposed to have some antiseptic effect. However, the mercury is fixed by the superficial cells of the tissues and does not penetrate to have any real beneficial effects on bacteria. I am not fond of the use of mercury anyway for any purpose. Preparation H contains shark liver oil and a live yeast cell derivative.

Of those ingredients the shark liver oil might help your face in the same way any moisturizer would. You can get that effect from Vaseline or any oil. The oil over the skin surface prevents the skin from losing excess moisture and in that way helps prevent wrinkles temporarily.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10. Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer to give you more information on care of your skin and prevention of aging and wrinkling. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 66 years old and have these brown spots on the back of my hands and spreading up my arms and to my neck. Could this mean there is something wrong with my liver and could it be serious? I've been told these are liver spots. I do worry about this.

DEAR READER — They are called liver spots but they have nothing at all to do with the liver. They are the result of prolonged exposure to the sun over years and years and they are most common on the backs of the hands. They are often classified as part of aging of the skin but they are really caused by the sun.

I am sending you The Health Letter on Your Skin that I mentioned earlier in this column. Everyone should be aware that the sun is responsible for most of the aging effects we see in the skin. There is no way you can maintain or have repeated tans without aging or damaging the skin. The skin changes occur years later after youth and the tan is gone. Youth must be served and is not interested in what the skin will look like at 40 or beyond but that is the cause.

You can protect your hands and arms to help prevent more of these brown pigmented spots. Some dermatologists will remove them for you but it requires the use of chemicals that induce local destruction or surgery or electrocautery. If they bother you from a cosmetic point of view you can see about that. Otherwise they are not important. Stop worrying about your liver, they have nothing to do with it

I am not fond of the use of mercury anyway for any purpose. Preparation H contains shark liver oil and a live yeast cell derivative.

Of those ingredients the shark liver oil might help your face in the same way any moisturizer would. You can get that effect from Vaseline or any oil. The oil over the skin surface prevents the skin from losing excess moisture and in that way helps prevent wrinkles temporarily.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-10, Your Skin: Sun, Aging, Spots and Cancer to give you more information on care of your skin and prevention of aging and wrinkling. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 326, San Antonio, TX 78292.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 66 years old and have these brown spots on the back of my hands and spreading up my arms and to my neck. Could this mean there is something wrong with my liver and could it be serious? I've been told these are liver spots. I do worry about this.

DEAR READER — They are called liver spots but they have nothing at all to do with the liver. They are the result of prolonged exposure to the sun over years and years and they are most common on the backs of the hands. They are often classified as part of aging of the skin but they are really caused by the sun.

I am sending you The Health Letter on Your Skin that I mentioned earlier in this column. Everyone should be aware that the sun is responsible for most of the aging effects we see in the skin. There is no way you can maintain or have repeated tans without aging or damaging the skin. The skin changes occur years later after youth and the tan is gone. Youth must be served and is not interested in what the skin will look like at 40 or beyond but that is the cause.

You can protect your hands and arms to help prevent more of these brown pigmented spots. Some dermatologists will remove them for you but it requires the use of chemicals that induce local destruction or surgery or electrocautery. If they bother you from a cosmetic point of view you can see about that. Otherwise they are not important. Stop worrying about your liver, they have nothing to do with it

Tokyo String Quartet is enjoyed by all, not common

NORFOLK, Conn. (AP) — People in the audience whistled and stomped their feet. An uncommon reception from generally restrained classical music fans. But the Tokyo String Quartet is not common.

They play together as though there were not just a cello, a viola and two violins. They play practically as one, yet maintain their individuality.

"They are in the front rank of all quartets, young and old," said violist Raphael Hillyer. "If you were to name the top five in the world they would be on it. I don't think there would be any disagreement, anywhere."

Hillyer was in Tokyo during the summer of 1966, teaching with the Juilliard String Quartet. Three of the present members of the Tokyo String Quartet, then all about 20 years old, were in the class.

"It only takes a few minutes to figure who's exceptionally talented," he said. "These people made an impression at once. They had potential as a great quartet."

In such a quartet, said Hillyer, each player must retain his individuality, but there must be a "unanimity of feeling about music. That's the whole enigma of a first-rate quartet, the way of blending the individuals."

He encouraged them to study in the United States and helped them form a quartet in 1969. Two of the musicians spent a time with the Nashville Symphony Orchestra to earn money to attend Juilliard.

In the summer of 1969 the new quartet practiced from morning to midnight for seven weeks, rehearsing a repertoire for a prestigious chamber music competition in Munich, Germany. They took first prize and were off. A recording contract went with the first prize.

"This is our dream," said the group's violist, Kazuhide Isomura.

"We all fell in love with chamber music. We all believe quartet music is the greatest literature ... When we play for an audience we get excited. We get high."

None of them ever wanted to be a soloist, although Hillyer said some of their teachers tried to push them in that direction.

Playing chamber music, second violinist Kikuei Ikeda said, is "like having a conversation. You have just one person talking and it's not so good. Here we're all sitting around talking. I like that better."

This summer, while they're in residence at the Yale summer music school in Norfolk, they are learning five Beethoven quartets. Next season they're booked for 97 concerts in the United States and Europe after they complete a six-week tour of Japan.

"Ten to 15 years ago you could hardly give away a string quartet, except a few. Now we are in a renaissance of chamber music. It's a sound the young people are mad for," said Audrey Michaels, the quartet's press representative.

The quartet splits about $2,500 a concert after they pay their manager and such tour expenses as transportation and housing.

July 25, 1926

Highway 16, extending from Morehouse into Sikeston, will be opened Saturday to traffic by the State Highway Department. This will add six miles of completed concrete slab to the concrete road already extending from Bird's Point to Sikeston and will eliminate the necessity of detouring around by Salcedo to get to Morehouse.

Willis H. Meredith of Poplar Bluff, Democratic candidate for the short term senatorial nomination, will speak in Malone Park Sikeston on Friday.

Nancy Jane Porter, wife of George Porter, 331 Matthews street, died at her home Tuesday from cancer of the liver. She was 46 years old.

James Ainsworth, aged about 25 years, who was employed by the Missouri Pacific Railroad as a switchman, was instantly killed Wednesday in the yards at Charleston while performing his duties.

What's the law?

The case of the elderly hot-shot

Grandpappy still had a lot of zip in him, and he wanted a new car to match. Consequently, when a dealer showed him an automobile and told him that it could do over 100 miles per hour, Grandpappy bought it right on the spot.

A short time later, however, Grandpappy was on the spot — and so was the manufacturer of the automobile.

Taking the vehicle out of the showroom, Grandpappy soon had it zooming down a highway at 115 m.p.h. He was going so fast, in fact, that he couldn't stop it in time to avoid crashing into the rear of Hilda's car when it stopped for a traffic light.

Crawling out of the wreckage, Hilda not only sued Grandpappy for her injuries, but sued the manufacturer of his new automobile as well.

"To make a car that can go over 100 m.p.h. is pure carelessness," she complained in court. "What's more, the manufacturer compounded its carelessness in encouraging purchasers to go that fast by advertising the speed capabilities of the vehicle.

"If Grandpappy hadn't had all that power -- and had he not been encouraged to use it -- the accident would neeer have happened."

"That's old-fashioned thinking," responded the attorney for the car manufacturer. "We're in the space age now. Power is the thing. While we may provide it, the way it's used isn't our responsibility."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the automobile manufacturer liable for providing Grandpappy with such a high-powered vehicle?

This is how the judge fuled: NO! The judge held that the manufacturer of an automobile cannot be held accountable because a car is driven at an illegal rate of speed. A manufacturer is no more required to make an automobile that's incapable of illegal use, observed the judge, than is the manufacturer of a gun required to make a pistol that's incapable of killing someone.

Creator of electronic tennis game is having a barrel of laughs himself

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — Not to worry, that's Nolan Bushnell's philosophy. If he fails and loses his shirt, why, he'll just start all over again.

Bushnell is the 33-year-old inventor of the popular electronic paddle tennis game "Pong," and head of Atari, Inc., a games company that expects to gross $39 million this year.

Meantime, while steeling himself against any unkind cuts fate may wish to deal him, it's the good life for the ex-amusement park barker.

Pong, for those who may have missed it in bars, pizza parlors, arcades and other public places, is played on a television-type screen. The players earn points trying to smack a moving, lighted blip with electronic paddles — kind of like Ping Pong.

Bushnell worked his way through the University of Utah as a barker, graduating in 1968 with a degree in electrical engineering. He took a job with the California electronics firm Ampex, but quit to develop an idea he had for a game — Pong.

That was four years ago. The investment, $250. A year later Bushnell bought a 41-foot boat, got divorced and plunged into a seven-day-a-week corporate pressure cooker. At that point, he said, he cried to himself, "Whoa!"

"'Wait a minute,' I said, and I asked myself: 'Does it make sense to work for the good life and not have the good life?'"

He started taking weekends off, sailing on the bay, having lunch in fashionable San Francisco hotels — always with a lady friend.

"Some ladies feel uncomfortable with me and some don't," he said in an interview. "I find the aura of power and money is very intimidating to an awful number of girls."

Soviets push their language

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is stepping up efforts to spread the use and knowledge of the Russian language around the world.

"It would be quite wrong to say we're in a race with English or other languages to get more people to speak Russian," says Prof. Vitaly Kostomarov, head of Moscow's Pushkin Russian Language Institute and a leader in the Soviet language campaign.

"The point is to enrich people with a knowledge of Russian in addition to their own language."

The Pushkin Institute, which opened two years ago to help direct the effort, already has 2,500 foreign Russian teachers taking its correspondence courses. By 1980 a gleaming new language school for foreigners is planned to open in Moscow, supplementing facilities that already give courses to 11,000 foreigners a year in this country.

Meanwhile, some 2,000 Soviet teachers have fanned out around the world to teach Russian — 30 per cent more than five years ago. The Soviets say Russian is now taught in 87 countries, compared to 60 in 1971.

As for teaching aids, the Pushkin Institute has an annual budget the ruble equivalent of $13,000 to distribute free materials to overseas classes. The two-year-old Russian Language Publishing House has turned out more than six million copies of Russian textbooks and dictionaries.

"I think, with the greatest regret, that up to recent times we have been doing less to propagandize the Russian language than France, Germany, the United States and England have done in connection with their languages," Kostomarov said in an interview.

He favors even more effort beyond the present campaign, including a program to give Soviet medals to outstanding foreign Russian students the way France encourages foreign students of French.

According to Western statistics, Russian holds third place among world languages with about 200 million native speakers. Most of them are in the Soviet Union. Mandarin Chinese leads all world languages with 750 million speakers and English is second with 300 million.

The Soviets, however, say up to 400 million people may have at least some knowledge of Russian. They claim most scientific and cultural knowledge is available in Russian — they say English is the only competitor in this respect — and Russian also has political significance to the people of the world.

"In the consciousness of million of people, the Russian language is linked with communism, with dreams of happiness, with the difficult construction of a new society," one Soviet reference says.

Former CBS head deserts city life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Last May, Robert D. Wood resigned as head of CBS-TV after more than seven successful years. He also quit New York to return to his favorite locale for living — sunny Southern California.

It was a surprising move, leaving the power, big salary and pin-striped perquisites of CBS in Fun City. But Wood, born in Idaho, raised in Beverly Hills, says he has no regrets about his decision.

"To be back here, with my friends, my family, back where I was raised — geez, there's no way I can describe my exhilaration," said Wood, his voice as cheery as the day he was interviewed.

The man who gave the nod to a bold new show called "All in the Family" in 1971 and began a revolution in situation comedy isn't a member of the shuffleboard set yet. He's only 51, still active in TV.

He now heads Nephi Productions, Nephi being the name of the small Idaho town where he spent his boyhood summers. The company will develop TV shows exclusively for CBS — which Wood joined in 1949 — for at least four years. He already has four projects on the drawing boards.

They are a two-hour drama about a father and son; a pilot for a series about South Pacific families in late 1941, before the war; a Saturday morning variety show for kids; and another possible series starring award-winning playwright-actor Jason Miller.

Former president Wood, in short, now is producer Wood.

So he was asked how he now regards something some top producers here are fighting in court — the sanitized "family viewing" hour the networks adopted last season in response to public beefs about TV sex and-or violence.

He was diplomatic about it, which is natural since his network pushed it and he had to defend it while at the helm of CBS-TV.

He said as a budding TV producer he considers the family hour "as a helluva opportunity.

"I'm not getting into the embattled points of view on the family hour. I'm just saying it's there, I know why it's there, I know the merits behind it and I'm going to see how much I can creatively make of the opportunity it presents."

Women's suffrage is topic

The story of the long and bitter struggle for British women's suffrage, SHOULDER TO SHOULDER, returns this month on "MASTERPICE THEATRE," airing at 8 p.m., Sundays and repeated at 8:30 p.m., Fridays on KETC-TV, Channel 9. The series begins on today and July 30.

The six-part BBC produced series centers on the remarkable Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, her militant oldest daughter, Christabel, and artistic pacifist daughter, Sylvia.

The first episode opens with the founding of the Women's Social and Political Union in Manchester, England. The following episodes trace the spreading influence on working-class women and the violent resistance of the government.

SHOULDER TO SHOULDER dramatizes the atrocities inflicted on women who were imprisoned for their actions. One episode relates the circumstances leading up to the tragic sacrifice of Emily Wilding Davison, who brought attention to the cause by throwing herself under the King's horse.

New or renewing members of Channel 9 may receive a complimentary copy of the book, "Shoulder to Shoulder," a detailed documentary account of the Suffragette Movement compiled by Midge Mackenzie, one of the series' creators.

For more information, write to: Channel 9, 6996 Millbrook Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63130.

Creator of electronic tennis game is having a barrel of laughs himself

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — Not to worry, that's Nolan Bushnell's philosophy. If he fails and loses his shirt, why, he'll just start all over again.

Of course, Nolan Bushnell's shirt is pretty firmly fixed on his back these days, when he's not relaxing his 6-foot-4 frame in a giant Japanese hot tub at his $160,000 home.

Bushnell is the 33-year-old inventor of the popular electronic paddle tennis game "Pong," and head of Atari, Inc., a games company that expects to gross $39 million this year.

Meantime, while steeling himself against any unkind cuts fate may wish to deal him, it's the good life for the ex-amusement park barker.

Pong, for those who may have missed it in bars, pizza parlors, arcades and other public places, is played on a television-type screen. The players earn points trying to smack a moving, lighted blip with electronic paddles — kind of like Ping Pong.

Bushnell worked his way through the University of Utah as a barker, graduating in 1968 with a degree in electrical engineering. He took a job with the California electronics firm Ampex, but quit to develop an idea he had for a game — Pong.

That was four years ago. The investment, $250. A year later Bushnell bought a 41-foot boat, got divorced and plunged into a seven-day-a-week corporate pressure cooker. At that point, he said, he cried to himself,"Whoa!"

"'Wait a minute,' I said, and I asked myself: 'Does it make sense to work for the good life and not have the good life?'"

He started taking weekends off, sailing on the bay, having lunch in fashionable San Francisco hotels — always with a lady friend.

"Some ladies feel uncomfortable with me and some don't," he said in an interview. "I find the aura of power and money is very intimidating to an awful number of girls."

Soviets push their language

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is stepping up efforts to spread the use and knowledge of the Russian language around the world.

"It would be quite wrong to say we're in a race with English or other languages to get more people to speak Russian," says Prof. Vitaly Kostomarov, head of Moscow's Pushkin Russian Language Institute and a leader in the Soviet language campaign.

"The point is to enrich people with a knowledge of Russian in addition to their own language."

Whatever the reason, however, the campaign to teach foreigners Russian is now more active than ever before.

The Pushkin Institute, which opened two years ago to help direct the effort, already has 2,500 foreign Russian teachers taking its correspondence courses. By 1980 a gleaming new language school for foreigners is planned to open in Moscow, supplementing facilities that already give courses to 11,000 foreigners a year in this country.

Meanwhile, some 2,000 Soviet teachers have fanned out around the world to teach Russian — 30 per cent more than five years ago. The Soviets say Russian is now taught in 87 countries, compared to 60 in 1971.

THE RYATTS by Jack Elrod

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1963, the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain signed a treaty prohibiting nuclear testing in the atmosphere, in space and under water.

On this date:

In 1878, the first Chinese diplomatic mission to the United States arrived in Washington.

In 1934, Adolf Hitler staged an unsuccessful attempt to take over Austria. Troops of the Nazi Black Guard assassinated Austrian Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

In 1952, Puerto Rico became a self-governing commonwealth of the United States.

In 1956, the Italian liner Andrea Doria and a Swedish ship, the Stockholm, collided off the New England coast. The Andrea Doria sank, with a loss of 50 lives.

Five years ago: In Cape Town, South Africa, Dr. Christian Barnard and his team of physicians transplanted two lungs and a heart in a man.

One year ago: Turkey announced that it would halt all activities at American installations in that country because of the U.S. House of Representatives' refusal to continue arms shipment to the Turks.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Senator Frank Church of Idaho is 52 years old. Longshoreman and writer Eric Hoffer is 74.

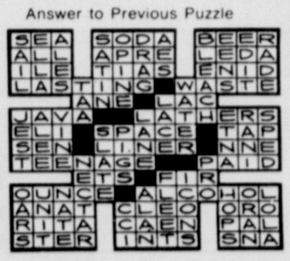
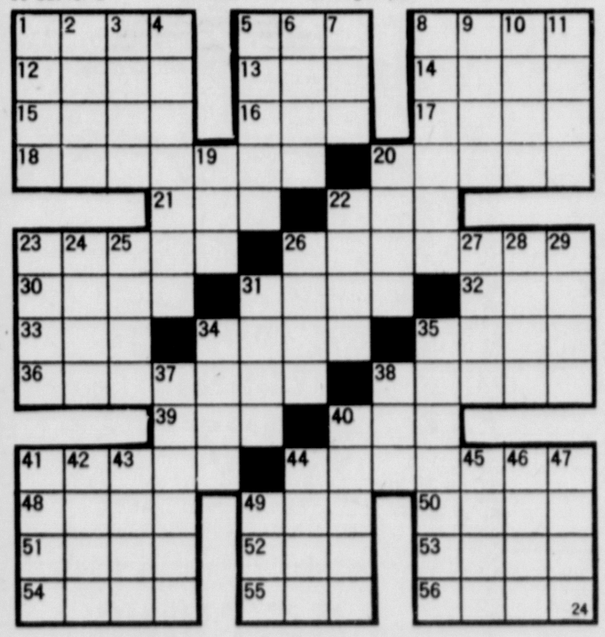
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1963, the United States, the Soviet Union and Britain signed a treaty prohibiting nuclear testing in the atmosphere, in space and under water.

On this date:

In 1878, the first Chinese diplomatic mission to the United States arrived in Washington.

In 1934, Adolf Hitler staged an unsuccessful attempt to take over Austria. Troops of the Nazi Black Guard assassinated Austrian Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.

In 1952, Puerto Rico became a self-governing commonwealth of the United States.

In 1956, the Italian liner Andrea Doria and a Swedish ship, the Stockholm, collided off the New England coast. The Andrea Doria sank, with a loss of 50 lives.

Ten years ago: Britain's House of Commons voted to nationalize the nation's steel industry.

Five years ago: In Cape Town, South Africa, Dr. Christian Barnard and his team of physicians transplanted two lungs and a heart in a man.

One year ago: Turkey announced that it would halt all activities at American installations in that country because of the U.S. House of Representatives' refusal to continue arms shipment to the Turks.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Senator Frank Church of Idaho is 52 years old. Longshoreman and writer Eric Hoffer is 74.

Michael Parks stars in "Perilous Voyage"

Michael Parks stars as a Latin American bandit who hijacks a ship at sea as the first step in his attempt to lead a revolution in his republic in "Perilous Voyage," a World Premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" July 29 (8-10 p.m. DST). Michael Tolan, William Shatner and Lee Grant also star.

Parks portrays Antonio De Leon, a determined criminal who hopes to take power in his small nation and set himself up as dictator. Tolan co-stars as Reynaldo Solis, De Leon's treacherous confidante who secretely plans to take control of the country himself once the revolution has been successful.

De Leon easily takes control of the ship from its weak captain and takes possession of the cargo of 2,000 machine guns, as well. The arms shipment is being supervised by Steve Monroe, a calculating operative who poses as a drunken, lusty playboy.

Monroe, with the aid of a fellow passenger, a deposed general, attempts to regain the ship and the arms.

Michael Parks stars in "Perilous Voyage"

Michael Parks stars as a Latin American bandit who hijacks a ship at sea as the first step in his attempt to lead a revolution in his republic in "Perilous Voyage," a World Premiere drama to be colorcast on "NBC Thursday Night at the Movies" July 29 (8-10 p.m. DST). Michael Tolan, William Shatner and Lee Grant also star.

Parks portrays Antonio De Leon, a determined criminal who hopes to take power in his small nation and set himself up as dictator. Tolan co-stars as Reynaldo Solis, De Leon's treacherous confidante who secretely plans to take control of the country himself once the revolution has been successful.

De Leon easily takes control of the ship from its weak captain and takes possession of the cargo of 2,000 machine guns, as well. The arms shipment is being supervised by Steve Monroe, a calculating operative who poses as a drunken, lusty playboy.

Monroe, with the aid of a fellow passenger, a deposed general, attempts to regain the ship and the arms.

"The Giant Eeel" is shown on Children's Film Festival

A young boy must prove himself to his friends through an act of bravery, so he sets out to capture a legendary monster, in "The Giant Eel," a 1971 film from Czechoslovakia, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival," Saturday, July 31 (12:00 - 1:00 p.m. DST) in color on the CBS Television Network.

In the story, Tony, a city boy, visits his aunt in the country for the summer. Because he is little and unathletic, he finds that life there is rather unpleasant -- the children, who have a local gang, are mean and don't take kindly to newcomers.

The gang spends most of its time in a deserted stone quarry that surrounds a quiet lagoon. Legend has it that a monster lives in the lagoon, and every year the bravest child tries to capture it. Tony decides that the only way to become accepted is to snare it himself.

"The Giant Eeel," made at Barrandov Film Studios, was directed by Ota Koval from a screenplay by Koval and Milan Simek. Tony is played by Jiri Kukol.

"The Olympaid"...a new series, starts on Tuesdays, July 27

THE OLYMPIAD, ten hour- long documentaries chronicling the 80-year history of the modern Olympic Games, is being repeated at 9 p.m., Tuesdays, beginning July 27. The series is captioned for the hearing- impaired.

Classic film footage of the early Olympic Games of this century is included in the programs. Interviews with participants in past Olympic games are also included.

THE OLYMPIAD presents the human stories of great athletes such as Jesse Owens, the Black American who came up against the explicit discrimination of Hitler's Germany in 1936 and Jim Thorpe, the American Indian who was struck from the Olympics honors list after he had won a Gold Medal. Babe Didrickson, Bill Toomey and Wilma Rudolph and many others are also featured.

The first documentary looks at the decathlon event. This event takes individual athletes closest to the Olympic ideal of "swifter, higher, stronger."

As a supplement to the series, the paperback book, "An Illustrated History of the Olympics" is being offered to new or renewing members of Channel 9, a public television station supported by contributions - $20 for a personal or $30 for a family membership.

William Holden stars in "The Wild Bunch" on Friday nites movie

Gunfighters, bandits and bounty hunters make their last stand in the old West in "The Wild Bunch," starring William Holden and Ernest Borgnine, with Robert Ryan, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Friday Night Movies," Friday, July 30 (8:00-10:35 p.m. DST) in color on the CBS Television Network. Also appearing in key roles are Warren Oats, Ben Johnson, Edmonds O'Brien and Strother Martin.

By 1913, the outlaw gangs of the old West were rapidly disappearing, driven into near- extinction by the forces of law and order and the emergence of the professional bounty hunter.

Under the leadership of the aging Pike Bishop, one remaining gang of outlaws rides into a Texas border town to rob a local railway. But they are ambushed by bounty hunters, led by Deke Thornton, and driven into Mexico, where they make a thieves' bargain with a Mexican bandit general to rob a munitions train. Still tracked by the bounty hunters, it proves to be the wild bunch's last hopeless stand.

The 1969 Warner Bros. - Seven Arts release was produced by Phil Feldman and directed by Sam Peckinpah from a screenplay by Peckinpah and Walon Green, based on a story by Green and Roy N. Sickner.

Orson Welles to narrate NBC'S "Magnificent Monsters of the Deep"

The story of the endangered southern right whales, a species of the leviathan of the seas which has found sanctuary off the coast of South America, is told in the award-winning actuality special, "Magnificent Monsters of the Deep," to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Thursday, July 29 (8-9 p.m. NYT).

Orson Welles is the off-camera narrator for the program, featuring zoologist Roger Payne, who has conducted a study of the whales near the Patagonian coast of Argentina.

The special was filmed by Des and Jen Bartlett (Emmy Award winners for "Incredible Flight of the Snow Geese"). "Magnificent Monsters of the Deep" is the fifth in a series of seven actuality specials produced by Survival Anglia Ltd. which are being telecast Thursdays, 8-9 p.m. NYT, on NBC-TV.

Dr. Payne, of the New York Zoological Society, his wife, Katy, and their four children visited the area of Peninsula Valdes, 600 miles southwest of Buenos Aires, intermittently for a period of 18 months as he studied the rare southern right whales.

The whales arrive there each May and stay until December. They were given their name by whalers of a bygone generation because they were the "right" whales to hunt; they were the most profitable because of their abundant oil and their size. The southern right whale is one of the largest of 10 species of great whales and a big one can be 60 feet long—the distance from home plate to the pitcher's mound on a baseball diamond. An adult right whale often weighs 65 tons—equal to the weight of about 30 full-size automobiles.

During the program, slow-motion photography shows how graceful the whales are as they travel through the water. Films also show how they are slaughtered and Payne explains why they may be needlessly close to extinction. The photography by the Bartletts also shows the whales rearing their young and peacefully co-existing with gulls and sea lions. In one sequence, the ingenuity of whales is on view when they lift their tail flukes above the water to catch the wind and, literally sail the ocean.

Payne first became interested in whales through acoustics. In the special he explains why he believes that whales are able to communicate with each other by sound. He discusses the underwater "songs" they emit.

"Magnificent Monsters of the Deep," winner of an Ohio State Award presented earlier this year, was telecast April 30 and Nov. 14, 1975, on CBS-TV. It was produced by Aubrey Buxton. Colin Willock wrote the script. The film editor was Leslie Parry.

Prince Valiant

by Hal Foster

Our Story: IN THE CHILL DAWN THE TROOPS FORMED RANKS AND AWAITED THE KING. BUT THE KING OVERSLEPT AND IT IS SUNUP BEFORE TRUMPETS SOUND AND HE AND HIS ARMED NOBLES RIDE FORTH, BANNERS WAVING. THEN THE KING EXHORTS HIS TROOPS TO FIGHT COURAGEOUSLY IN A NOBLE CAUSE.

PRINCE VALIANT HAD EXPECTED THE KING TO BRING HIS BANNER TO THE FIELD TO ENCOURAGE THE TROOPS, BUT THE KING AND HIS NOBLES WERE NOW SEATED ON CUSHIONED CHAIRS ON A BALCONY OVERLOOKING THE FIELD.

THE BATTLE BEGINS AT THE BRIDGE AND VAL'S FORCES RETREAT, BUT KASOV, SEEING THE RESERVES WAITING AT EACH SIDE, FEARS HE MIGHT BE CUT OFF AND WITHDRAWS.

VAL CALLS FOR A TRUCE TO CARE FOR THE WOUNDED AND BURY THE DEAD.
"I SEE YOU KNOW THE ARTS OF WAR," SAYS A TALL WARRIOR. "AND WHO ARE YOU?" ASKS VAL. "I AM TELAMON, THE RIGHTFUL KING," ANSWERS THE WARRIOR.

"I WAS ELEVEN WHEN MY FATHER, THE KING, DIED. MY UNCLE HAJAS BECAME REGENT. I FLED TO ESCAPE HIS ASSASSINS AND HE TOOK THE THRONE.

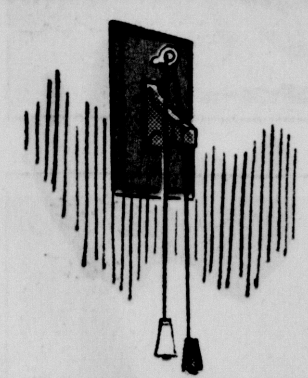
HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Thought you might enjoy a tip from the man of the house...

When our children were smaller, they ran us ragged turning on and off light switches they could not reach.

To eliminate this problem, I replaced the top screw of the faceplate switch with an eyebolt that had the same threads as the screw I removed.



Next, I drilled a small hole up through the toggle switch. Through this I passed a heavy piece of twine and knotted it tightly on the switch. One end was passed through the eyebolt and both ends were left to hang down the wall and trimmed off to a height that my children could reach.

The ends of the cords can be marked with black and white tape, or you could put two different plastic pulls on the ends (like the ends off pull-drapery rods).

The black indicates off and the white on. The kids got a big kick out of it and my wife and I could relax.

Jim Grab

Jim, you're the rainbow in our sky for sharing this with us.

And remembering times past at our house, I know lots of mommies and daddies are going to appreciate your hint.

A THOUGHTFUL WAY

DEAR HELOISE:

The flower candleholder wreaths are just perfect for a pet's grave.

They come in so many colors, we have one for each season.

When we change the flowers, we just rinse them and save them for that season again.

Mrs. Alex Case

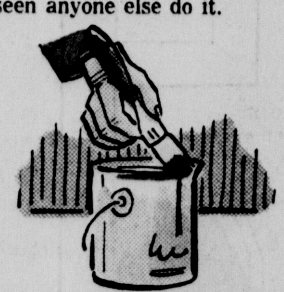
DEAR HELOISE:

I have a method of keeping the paint from running down the sides of the bucket; I have used it for years and have never seen anyone else do it.



It is awkward at first, but becomes natural with practice. It's all in the angle the brush is held when the excess paint is raked from the upper side. The excess falls back into the bucket.

When held so that the handle is outside the bucket and the paint raked from the under side of the brush, part of the excess falls into the rim of the can, overflows and runs down the sides of the bucket.

C.H. Rogers

By golly, you're right!

And you were even sweet enough to send us pictures showing both ways. You're certainly no drip!

Thank you for writing. Please do so again!

WHAT A SNAP!

DEAR HELOISE:

I helped with the Girl Scouts last year and there is nothing more annoying for these girls than to have to keep tugging at their badge sashes. They just have a way of falling off their shoulders.

So I sewed a snap on the inside of my daughter's sash and the other on her jumper at the shoulder seam.

Now she wears it in comfort.

Rosalie Boden

DON'T KNOCK IT!

DEAR HELOISE:

I am 9 years old and I just came up with what I think is a new idea for moms.

I found I could take an old door knocker and use it as a towel rack in the kitchen or bathroom.

Saves money!

Kim Tibbals

MY CARD, SIR!

DEAR HELOISE:

I make my own calling cards by using one of my return address stickers.

I cut out a cute-shaped piece of thin cardboard and paste the sticker on it. Various things can be used such as old greeting cards, etc.

Mae Davis

GOOD FOR BELTS

DEAR HELOISE:

Who says shoe polish is just for shoes?

My husband has a black belt made of imitation snake skin and it has begun to fade — and this is his favorite belt.

I decided to use black liquid shoe polish on it. I put one coat of polish on it, let it dry and then applied another coat and let it dry. It looks as good as the day he received it.

Make sure the polish is dry before you wear the belt!.

Mrs. S.H.

KITCHEN COVER-UP

DEAR HELOISE:

I baby-sit preschool and school children who like to do arts and crafts.

I usually use my kitchen table, and to keep crayon marks and paste off it, I made a cover for it out of an old twin-sized fitted sheet.

I laid the sheet on the table and pinned out the excess material lengthwise and crosswise (if any). Then, I made a flat feld seam where I had the pins, cutting off the excess sheet.

The cover just fits the table and stays in place because of the fitted corners. The same method could be utilized to fit any size table.

I find the children's work doesn't slip as badly on the cover, and it's a simple matter to just throw the cover in the washing machine when they are finished.

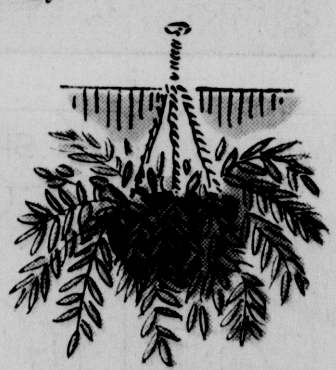
Elaine Marlow

A NUTTY IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:

I have a great idea for people who like plants in hanging baskets inside or outside their homes.

Simply cut a coconut in half, and after you have finished getting the meat out of the husk, wash both halves and let them dry.



Then, macramé a rope around each separate coconut half, put in your plant and they are ready to hang. They're really beautiful as well as useful.

- SMALL WONDER! "He who gives up the smallest part of a ____ has the rest no longer in his power." —Jean Paul Richter. Fill blank.

The missing word is "secret."

- Riddle-Me-This: Why is an empty matchbook hard to replace?

Because it's matchless.

- WHAT IS IT? A certain mythological creature had the head and wings of an eagle, and the body of a lion. What creature?

The griffin.

EVER experience a knot in a shoelace or piece of string that yielded to force? That is to say, when you gave it a tug the knot disappeared? You were assuming a risk, of course, for by yanking the ends you might have tightened the knot, making it that much harder to disentangle.

Let's suppose you are faced with this decision on each of the snags above. If, in each instance, the ends are pulled, two of the snarls will definitely bind.

Question: Which two snarls will definitely knot?

Answer: Snarls A and D.
